TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan. On behalf of my colleagues, Jimmy Walsh and other Members of the New York delegation, I welcome Mrs. Moynihan, Elizabeth Moynihan, who is with us in the gallery, and Senator MOYNIHAN.

He is one of our truly inspiring legislators. He has been a scholar, a legislator, an ambassador, a cabinet officer, a presidential adviser in four administrations, a witness, a teacher, a writer, and one of the best Senators ever to grace the Halls of this institution.

He is unmatched in his ability to craft innovative solutions to society's most pressing problems, from welfare to Social Security, to transportation, to taxes. His legislative stamp is everywhere. Known as, and I quote the Almanac of American Politics, "the Nation's best thinker among politicians since Lincoln, and its best politician among thinkers since Jefferson," Senator Moynihan has moved people through the power of his ideas. He is a unique figure in public life, a man of pure intellect who is unafraid of speaking inconvenient truths.

Senator Moynihan's life exemplifies the American dream. He grew up in a slum known as Hell's Kitchen. Abandoned by his father, his mother became the sole supporter of the family during the Depression. Small wonder that Senator Moynihan grew up to be a strong voice on welfare issues.

He recognized the danger of fostering a culture of dependency while understanding the importance of maintaining a strong safety net. He has proved to be one of the most accurate prophets of our era. Time after time, he has correctly predicted future consequences, even though many refused to believe him when his prediction ran counter to conventional wisdom.

In the 1960s, he expressed concern about the disintegration of the African American family. In the 1980s, he predicted the coming collapse of the Soviet Union. In the 1990's, he expressed concern about the tendency of our society to define deviancy down. Antisocial behavior, he warns, is tolerated at our peril.

For New Yorkers, Senator MOYNIHAN has always been one of our homegrown heroes, our proud gift to the Nation. Despite his reputation for attention to the more scholarly pursuits, he authored 18 books. Senator MOYNIHAN has never forgotten those of us who elected him. He is a hero to landmark preservationists for his effort to preserve the Custom House and the Farley Post Office, the new train station on the Farley site he helped plan and is continuing to fund, but it does not have a name yet. I believe it should be named for DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN.

When the Coast Guard left Governors Island, he persuaded President Clinton to agree to give the island to New York for a dollar. I am hopeful that in the last days of this Congress, we will be able to make that pledge a reality.

As ambassador to the United Nations, he denounced the resolution equating Zionism with racism. Seventeen years later, the U.N. reversed itself, revoking this shameful resolution. Senator MOYNIHAN was a prime mover behind ISTEA, which changed the way highway and transportation funds are distributed. He is widely credited with shifting transportation priorities and making it possible for us to invest in alternatives like high speed rail. As a member of the Senate Finance Committee, he has been a guardian of Social Security; and most recently, he has focused his attention on the importance of opening up government filings and reducing secrecy in government.

I was proud to have worked with him on the passage of the Nazi War Crimes Disclosure bill. After 50 years, Americans finally are beginning to get a glimpse of the things that our government knew. Senator MOYNIHAN has also worked tirelessly on getting an accurate census for our country.

Senator MOYNIHAN's absence will make the Senate a poorer place. I am hopeful that he will remain in the public eye as a strong voice of public conscience. We need him and we will miss him, and my colleagues are here to join me in paying tribute to the great Senator from the great State of New York, Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN, a true American treasure.

Mr. Speaker, I will place into the RECORD his biography and a list of his speeches. I also will place editorials and tributes that have appeared recently in the papers of our country, applauding the work and contributions of the great Senator from New York.

Includes reports on the redevelopment of Pennsylvania Avenue and architectural guidelines for Federal office buildings.

"One Third of a Nation," report of the Task Force on Manpower Conservation, submitted to President Lyndon B. Johnson January 1, 1964 (Task Force included the Director of the Selective Service System and the Secretaries of Defense, Health, Education, and Welfare, and Labor). Concluded that one-third of draft-age men were unfit for military service and called for manpower conservation program to give physical training and medical attention as necessary to meet national standards.

"The Negro Family: The Case for National Action," Office of Policy Planning and Research, U.S. Department of Labor, March 1965.

Report on Traffic Safety, Secretary's Advisory Committee on Traffic Safety, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, February 29, 1968 (commonly known as The Moynihan Report on Traffic Safety).

Concluded that using the CPI as cost of living index—which it is not—creates enormous costs to the Federal government in increased outlays and decreased revenues. The present upward bias is 1.1 percent points per year over the next decade, an overstatement of roughly one-third. The Commission states: "The bias alone would be the fourth largest Federal program."

"Secrecy" Commission on Protecting and Reducing Government Secrecy, Chairman. Appendix: "Secrecy' A Brief History of the American Experience," March 4, 1997.

"Memorandum of Points and Authorities of Senator Robert C. Byrd, Daniel Patrick Moynihan, and Carl Levin as Amici Curiae in Support of Plaintiff's Motions to Declare Line Item Veto Act Unconstitutional," November 26, 1997. Brief filed in the case The City of New York v. Clinton, the lawsuit brought by New York City challenging the constitutionality of the Line Item Veto Act of 1996. In a 6-3 decision on June 25, 1998 the Supreme Court ruled the Line Item Veto Act unconstitutional. Perhaps the most important case on legislative-executive relations in the history of the Court.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are cautioned not to refer to guests in the gallery.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL. PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to join in the tribute to our good friend and our distinguished Senator from New York, DANIEL PATRICK MOY-NIHAN; and I congratulate my colleague, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY), for helping to organize this fitting tribute. It is fitting in many senses, not the least of which is its bipartisanship.

I begin by paraphrasing the great William Shakespeare's play Julius Caesar: We have come not to bury the Senator, but to praise him.

New York has great pride in Senator MOYNIHAN and his career. A native son, he began his life in Hell's Kitchen. That crucible of Hell's Kitchen helped to create the character that is now our great Senator.

George Will's column recently was an excellent explanation of his distinguished career, but there are many points that I think all of us have some identity with. Certainly the fact that he spends his summers in Pindar's Corners in upstate New York shows that he is a Senator for the entire State.

In New York State, we have what is commonly referred to as upstate and down state. Now, the people from down state, which we think of as New York City, refer to everything north of the Bronx as upstate, or as everybody from upstate refers to everything in the five bureaus and Long Island as down state.

I would like to think of Senator Moy-NIHAN as being from mid-state. He has always defied that upstate-down state divide. There are a couple of songs that sort of sum up New York. Billy Joel wrote and sang a song called New York State of Mind. I prefer that to Frank Sinatra's New York, New York. New York, New York is a little presumptuous. The New York State of Mind I think explains perhaps the Senator, not playing the partisan role, not taking upstate versus down state, urban versus rural, or even domestic versus foreign in our policies. He has somehow avoided that trap.

Just as he did with many, many issues, you can describe him as a man for all seasons, a renaissance man; but certainly he has fulfilled many, many roles throughout his successful life.

As ambassador to India, he helped to bridge a gap between the world's two greatest democracies. India, for some reason, never saw itself as a friend of the United States until Senator Moy-NIHAN served there with distinction and helped to create that bridge which we saw somewhat fulfilled the other day when Prime Minister Vajpayee spoke here before the United States Congress, a very important role for 2 great peoples. He served in the cabinet in many administrations, as a professor in my hometown at Syracuse University, as United States ambassador. What a tremendous resume.

He was able to take on issues that few others would be willing to enter into the fray. We have a tremendous environmental issue up home in my hometown, Onondaga Lake. He looked at the factions that divided the cure for that problem and pointed at all of them and said you are all wrong. We need to get to work on this. He helped me as a Republican bring in the Army Corps of Engineers to play a major role.

I remember the first meeting we had with the Army Corps, and he said to the colonel who was going to take over this project, he said, this project can make a general out of you if you do a good job. Well, he is no longer on the job, but the job has begun and the lake is cleaner already. I owe my partner a great deal and the community does

The Erie Canal, the legacy of New York State which strung all of the pearls of the upstate cities together along this waterway, we are restoring that. We are recreating it; we are redeveloping it.

He was never shy about pointing out the peccadillos of our leaders, to his credit. He had a knack for reducing complex issues to the nut of the problem. But, on the other hand, he could also philosophize and wax thoughtfully and embellish. There was a saying when MOYNIHAN and D'Amato were the Senators, if you wanted to get the history of immigration in the United States, you saw MOYNIHAN. If you wanted a passport, you saw D'Amato.

That tells you a little bit about the man.

Somehow, he has managed over the years to avoid the slings and arrows of outrageous editorial writers, although I am sure he could point out a time or two when they took them on. I don't think too many of them were smart enough to take him on. He will be remembered for his witness and wisdom, for his devotion to his beloved wife, Liz, for his 6 decades of public service, for his pithy comments, but mostly for his honesty and integrity.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 min-

Mr. LAFALCE. Senator MOYNIHAN, I wanted to thank you because I have gone to you not only for the history, but for the passports also.

I am very pleased to join with all my colleagues today as we honor a true giant of the United States Senate, and really one of the giants of public life within the history of the United States; and the words we express today will really pale in comparison to his accomplishments and the esteem in which he is held

The breadth of his intellect is revealed in his literary output alone. He has authored 18 books on subjects ranging from poverty and race to education, urban policy, welfare, arms control, the family, government secrecy, international law. But while the quantity of DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN's record is tremendous, it is the quality that really matters. I can think of no one who has served in the Capitol complex during the 20th century who has made a greater contribution to our Nation.

Others have also mastered the intricacies of the appropriations process, the details of communication law; but too few of us are able consistently to keep the big picture in front of us all the time, and that is what Senator MOYNIHAN does best. He understands that what we do in one area of the law can and often does have unintended impact in other areas of life. He knows that solving one problem could easily create two more, so he moves with care and caution; and in that regard you could say DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN is a conservative in the best sense of that word.

But he also knows that without action, without government action, we would stagnate and atrophy, and that there are instances where taking bold action is the only appropriate thing to do, and it is a necessity. In that sense, he is a liberal in the best sense of that word

I guess my time has expired, so I just must include the rest of my remarks in the RECORD. But let me congratulate him on many, many things, but most of all for having the good common sense and the good judgment to have seen the jewel in his wife, Liz Moynihan, early on and made that decision, because I really think, PATRICK, she deserves the praise equally with you.

But PAT also knows that without action, we would stagnate and atrophy. And that there are instances where taking bold action is the only appropriate thing to do. So he is also truly "liberal," in the best sense of that word.

What has impressed me most over the years, however, has been the intellectual depth which Senator MOYNIHAN brings to his endeavors. He disdains imprecise thought and turgid prose. The rigor he brings to public discourse will be sorely missed. And the attention he paid to the quality of writing will be equally missed.

Indeed, I hope someone will pull together a book with samples of his writings, and that it will become required reading for freshman legislators. How often can we truly say we want to read another Member's or a Senator's speech or "Dear Colleague" letter? Yet every time I see PAT's letterhead, I know that I'll see new and imaginative uses of our language which, almost 100 percent of the time, are not only enlightening but also refreshing.

Mr. Speaker, today's tribute cannot fully reflect what we all owe Senator MOYNIHAN, but I hope that our words inspire people around the nation and throughout the world to look back on occasion and remember the importance of his contributions to the progress of the human race on this mortal coil.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, it is with a great deal of pleasure and an honor to join my colleagues today in standing before you to salute our very good friend and colleague, our distinguished Senator, senior Senator from New York, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN, for nearly 25 years, Senator MOYNIHAN has worked tirelessly for the citizens of our great State of New York, as well as for the rights and freedom of people throughout the world. Perhaps no other national figure of the past 4 decades has better symbolized or articulated the democratic ideals and traditions of our Nation than Senator Moy-NIHAN.

Prior to his arrival in the Senate in 1977, Senator MOYNIHAN served as both our United States ambassador to India and the United States ambassador to our United Nations. To that distinguished forum, he brought extensive foreign policy experience to the Congress, and he has been a leading voice on American foreign policy issues throughout his service in the Senate.

Senator Moynihan has long lent his name and support to the goals of lasting peace and justice in Northern Ireland. Along with Senators DODD, KENNEDY, MACK, and many others in the Senate, Senator Moynihan has been the leading voice of reason, calling on the parties to renounce violence and to secure lasting peace and justice by way of democratic means.

As a testament to his courage and conviction, Senator MOYNIHAN advocated his approach to peace in Ireland when it was still very unpopular to do

Senator MOYNIHAN's efforts and those of his colleagues, especially Senator Mitchell, have helped bring about peace in Northern Ireland today, something for which we are all highly grateful. Their efforts created the potential to finally end the long and painful history of a divided Ireland.

All peace-loving people, both here and around the globe, owe Senator MOYNIHAN a debt of gratitude. Accordingly, today, Senator MOYNIHAN, it is an honor to join with my colleagues in saluting you and thanking you for your selfless service to the people of New York, to the United States of America, and to peace throughout the world.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) is recognized during morning hour debates for 2 minutes.

Mr. RANGEL. Two minutes, Mr. Speaker, how do you talk about PATRICK MOYNIHAN in 2 minutes? It would take 2 minutes to thank Liz for allowing you to do all the wonderful things that you have been able to do:

Only in America. It makes us so proud, those of us that come from the great State of New York, to know that someone that could attend a high school like Ben Franklin, know Hell's Kitchen, know what it is like to shine shoes and work on the docks, and at the same time, be able to reach the intellectual heights that you have done, not just for New Yorkers or the Senate, but for America. It gives hope to everybody in this country, but especially throughout the world, to show that when one is given an opportunity, that maybe they cannot reach the same heights that you have, but it is possible to do it in the United States of America.

Your eloquence and wit, combined with your ability to defy party labels, whether it is liberal or conservative, you have always been able to do and to say and to be appreciated for what is good for the country. And whether we are talking about Kennedy or Johnson or Nixon or Ford, Presidents have been smart enough to know that when you are talking about PATRICK MOYNIHAN, you are not talking partisanship; but you are talking sound policy for our great country.

It has been said that New Yorkers have a little more self-esteem than we need. It has been said that those that are on the Senate Finance Committee or the Committee on Ways and Means walk with swaggers. And even though most Members really do not deserve that label, when we know that we are honored to include among our body someone of such esteem as you, then we should be allowed to walk a little taller.

Elizabeth, thank you for what you have done for our great country. We look forward to working with you, no matter what both of you decide to do later. God bless.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. QUINN. Mr. Speaker, I will include my prepared remarks for today's RECORD, because we in these prepared remarks talk about the things that Senator MOYNIHAN has done.

I would like to file those, and if I may, Senator, take a moment of personal privilege to thank you on behalf of the residents of Buffalo and Erie County in western New York for all you have done over several years. I remember when I got elected in 1992 and first came into office in 1993, the very first visitor in my office was you, the very first person to come over and talk with me. We sat in the corner and enjoyed a cup of tea, and you told me what would be important for New York State. And you were right.

You have been for all of us, Members and constituents alike, a model and an example. I can give you a little secret here that my cousin Peter Quinn in Monroe County in Rochester, New York, has a son about 7 or 8 right now, and his name is Daniel Patrick Quinn. My youngest brother, Mike up in Buffalo, has a son named Daniel Patrick Quinn. There are no John Francis Quinns running around that I know of, Senator, but lots of Daniel Patricks.

We cannot find a stronger advocate for the arts, whether it is the Darwin Martin House and the Frank Lloyd Wright effort in Buffalo, New York, when we turn to someone like you.

Finally Senator, and to Liz and your family, we obviously wish you the best; but some people would say that I'm talking the height of flattery, and I want you to know when I leave this place, whenever it is and for whatever reason, if I can leave as DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN leaves, I will be a lucky man.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to rise today and join with my colleagues to pay tribute and officially recognize the retirement of my good friend. Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN.

Senator MOYNIHAN has dedicated his life to service of his country. He served with the Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon, and Ford administrations, and as an Ambassador to India, U.S. Representative to the United Nations, and as United States President of the U.N. Security Council.

Upon his election to the United States Senate in 1976, Senator MOYNIHAN emerged as a strong advocate for the State of New York, but never lost sight of his obligations to the Nation as a whole. His strong commitment to education, science, and arts and humanities is testimony to his leadership and integrity as a United States Senator.

A prolific author, Senator MOYNIHAN has penned or edited a remarkable eighteen books. He truly personifies that old phrase "a gentleman and a scholar," and I am proud to count him among my friends. His strong example is one we all strive to follow.

When I arrived in Congress in January 1993, one of the very first visitors to my office in Cannon was Senator MOYNIHAN. We shared a cup of tea and talked about what was important for Buffalo and New York State. Senator MOYNIHAN has been a stalwart supporter of my district and our State, every day since that first visit. I want to say thank you: not only from me and my staff, but all Buffaloians.

Mr. Speaker, today I am proud to join with both houses and the New York State delegation in commending Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN on his commitment to New York and the country. I also join with his wife, Elizabeth; his children, Timothy Patrick, Maura Russell and John McCloskey; and indeed, all Americans in expressing our sincerest gratitude for his leadership and service.

We have marched in parades together. There is no stronger advocate in the Congress of the arts than PAT MOYNIHAN. Whether it's the Darwin Martin House in Buffalo with its Frank Lloyd Wright history or the Albright-Krax Art Gallery, we are fortunate to have had PAT MOYNIHAN as our supporter, benefactor and friend.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. McCarthy) is recognized during morning hour debates for 2 minutes.

Mrs. McCARTHY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I certainly stand here to give a tribute to our Senator from New York. I remember when I was running for my first election in 1996, the great Senator was assigned to me as his "buddy," and I remember going and meeting with you in your office and sitting there saying, Oh, my God, I am with Senator MOYNIHAN.

Senator, you have been of great service to New York. You have fought for New York, but you also have fought for the country. But one of the things I certainly respect about you the most is the way you always presented an argument. It was not the partisanship that sometimes we see today. You were always a gentleman. You were always someone with kind words for everyone, and I think that is something that we should all remember.

We all know about your intellect, we all know about your great words; but, really, I think New Yorkers and the country will remember you as being the gentleman from New York, and you served your time well.

Senator, we are going to miss you, but somehow I have a feeling that you will always have your hand in New York politics, one way or the other. The tributes that you are hearing today can never match the words and the deeds that you have done for all of us over the last 25 years.

Sir, I hope I can follow in your footsteps just with your wisdom, those are big shoes to follow; but someday we are going to have so many of us to remember you by.

Thank you, Senator.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) is recognized during morning hour debates for 2 minutes.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, it is a pleasure to be here to join with my colleagues this morning to honor Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN. It is a special pleasure for me, because I have a relationship to PAT that none of my colleagues can claim: I am his Congressman, as the Senator reminds me; and I could tell you one could not wish for a better constituent.

But it is not only an honor and a pleasure representing and working with the Senator, it is an education. One cannot have a conversation with PAT without benefiting from his years of experience and the depth of his insight. As the recent biography of the Senator shows, one can pretty much trace the history of the second half of the 20th century simply by following his career.

His is that rare life that crosses so many supposedly impermeable boundaries. He has made his mark in the academic and in the so-called real world. He has been a critical player in domestic and foreign policy. He has been a key member of Democrat administrations and Republican administrations. He has served ably in the executive branch and in the legislative branch. He has been esteemed as an author of books and an author of laws.

His record becomes more inspiring and amazing the more it is examined. Finally, he has brought that breadth and that stature to bear, not only on the great pivotal issues of the day, race and ethnicity, welfare fair and tax policy, the Cold War and terrorism, but also on the more local matters that can make a great difference in people's lives.

So, as a New Yorker and as an American, I am sorry to see PAT MOYNIHAN leaving the Senate; but as a Congressman, I know I will still be able to rely on his wise counsel.

I expect that I will not only be reading additional books by the sage of Pindar's Corners, but also constituent mail, and those are letters that I will be eager to receive.

I salute you, very able and distinguished public servant.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WEINER) is recognized during morning hour debates for 1 minute.

Mr. WEINER. Mr. Speaker, we live in cynical times. We live in times when reams of newspaper are printed about our foibles, individual and collective; but there is scant recognition of the greatness of our country and its great people.

Today we pay tribute to a truly great man, Liz Moynihan's husband. For more than a generation, Senator Moy-NIHAN has brought dignity to these halls, and during the push and pull of daily political discourse, there has been one voice which for more than 40 years has seen around the corner into the face of our future challenges.

Mr. Speaker, this is my first term; and if I serve just this one term, or 20 more, I hope to display just one ounce, one thimbleful, of the dignity and grace and wisdom of the senior Senator from New York.

Godspeed, Senator MOYNIHAN.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. HOUGHTON) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOUGHTON. Senator, it is hard for me to stand up here and talk to you, of all people, who are so eloquent and has given so many wonderful and meaningful things to us over the years. Also I think of the words of John Lord O'Brien, who you remember was the great lawyer from Buffalo and was the head of probably the greatest law firm in the history of the country, which was the War Production Board during World War II. Somebody was saying very nice things about him one time, and he says, "I accept that and I appreciate it. The problem I have is not inhaling them."

You have had so many nice things said about you, I know it must be very difficult. But as you know, no one person is indispensable, clearly you nor I nor anyone around here. But if anyone comes close to indispensability, it is you.

I think of that wonderful story that Archibald McLeash told at one time. He was talking to a group of students, and one of the students said at the end of the lecture, "Mr. McLeash, would you try to sum up what you have said?" And he said, "Yes, I will try." He said, "Don't forget the thing." And the student said, "What do you mean, Mr. McLeash, by 'the thing'?"

Mr. McLeash said, "I will tell you what 'the thing' is. You know, so many times in life we judge ourselves, are we a Congressman, a Senator, a head of this or in charge of that, what we do. The thing is not what we do, but what we are." And what you are and what you are to us and will continue to be, this is not a finite thing, it is more than I can express.

Obviously there are things that are important to me, what you have done in terms of our transportation in upstate New York, Route 17 or I-86, to be exact, extraordinary. Not only have you been able to do things which have really helped and opened up what could be an economic wasteland, and is not because of your efforts; but you put it all in perspective, such as many times in discussions we have, going away back, 30, 40 years, Governor Dewey and some of the things he was trying to do. It was very, very helpful.

I also remember being I think it was in the Cannon Caucus Room when Bob Dole decided he was going to step out of the race in 1988. And who was there from the other side? It was you. You did not have to be there. I do not know whether anybody asked you, but you were there to lend support to your colleague.

Also I remember the times that we have been at Seneca Falls and the Women's Hall of Fame and the importance of women's issues in this country.

I could go on and on, but I want to go back to what Mr. McLeash said, it is what you are, rather than what you have done.

There was a wonderful statement that George Patton made to the Third Army in 1945, and it goes this way: "The highest honor I have attained is that of having my name coupled with yours in these great events." I echo that now with you, sir.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) is recognized during morning hour debates for 2 minutes.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, time will not permit me to read my prepared remarks, Senator, so I will just summarize them. As a veteran of Hell's Kitchen, I went to Power Memorial High School in Hell's Kitchen, so we have that in common.

As a veteran of World War II, as a veteran of academia, as a veteran of four administrations serving as a cabinet official or sub-cabinet official, as a veteran of the U.N. and as a veteran of the United States Senate, what a career, what a life, a life that would be admired and is admired by all Americans. But especially we in New York admire you for your service to our State, to our city and to our country.

You have been an inspiration to millions of Americans, especially to the poor, for your work in dealing with the poor and helping those who are least fortunate. Really, I believe following through on the beliefs that you were taught as a young man I am sure and throughout your entire career, you have stuck to them, always looking out for the most unfortunate among us.

We are going to miss you here in Washington, but we are going to have you, we hope, a lot more back in New York where we can all cherish you as we have right now.

In the words of our ancestors, let me summarize by saying, may the road rise up to meet you, and may the wind be always at your back, your wife Liz's back, and your entire family.

God bless you, Senator.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, Senator MOYNIHAN has often said that there is no sense in being Irish unless you realize that some day, somehow, the world is going to break your heart. Well, obviously the hearts of New Yorkers are broken by the stepping down from the Senate of Senator MOYNIHAN. But, at the same time, we as New Yorkers can rejoice in the absolutely unparalleled contributions he has made to our country, to our State, and also in the fact that he is the quintessential New Yorkers.

Whether it was growing up in the streets of New York, shining shoes, working on the docks, working for Governor Harriman, running for the president of the New York City Council many years ago, serving as ambassador to the U.N. in New York where he stood up for the dignity of people everywhere, where he almost single-handedly denounced the resolution against Zionism, a man who was willing to always come to the brink, to stand and fight for what was right. Certainly during the 24 years he has been in the United States Senate, he has never allowed partisanship to in any way interfere with the job that he did.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) stated that he has the privilege of being your Congressman. I got the short straw. I represented Senator D'Amato for many years as his Congressman. I remember the many conversations I had with Senator D'Amato, where he would say how you were invaluable to the Senate, how partisanship never entered into the relationship you had, going back to the very first meeting after his election you had with him in the Hotel Carlyle in Manhattan.

I remember Senator D'Amato preparing for that meeting with you, and afterwards saying, "I just met the greatest guy in the world." From that day forward you forged a close relationship.

But that really personifies the relationship you had with all the people of New York. You were always there. You were, on the one hand, always defending the institutions of the United States, but, at the same time, willing to challenge accepted thinking.

Your book Beyond the Melting Pot certainly redefined the importance of ethnicity in the United States, the fact that you were willing to challenge Federal programs that were not working, which certainly antagonized people on the left; but then you went against people on the right by telling them that we had much more to do to strengthen the American family, we had more to do to be responsive to those who were being left behind in good economic times.

Senator MOYNIHAN, it really is a privilege for me as a Member of Congress to be able to join in this tribute to you. It certainly was a great meaning to me as a New Yorker for many years, whether it was reading your books, whether it was trying with my thesaurus and dictionary trying to understand all of your speeches and op-ed pieces in the New York Times and intellectual journals, whether it was always being challenged and sometimes provoked, other times really just put to the test by trying to measure up to the standards you set by answering the questions that you were posing; and you real personify what it means to be a Senator.

You are a man of Hell's Kitchen and a renaissance man; a working man and a Harvard professor; a street politician who ran for president of the city council; and a diplomat who walked with world leaders.

So I am again honored and privileged to be able to serve with you in the United States Government, but, most importantly, to be here today, and also to not really make a request, but almost impose upon you to say you have an obligation to work with us for all of your remaining years, to keep those columns coming, those op-ed pieces, to keep the letters and speeches coming, and never, ever stop probing our conscience, making us take that extra step to work for our constituents and the meaning of the United States.

Thank you, Senator MOYNIHAN.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY) is recognized during morning hour debates for 3 minutes.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in tribute to a great public servant and a dear friend, Senator Daniel Patrick MOYNIHAN. It is hard to believe, but we know you are going to stay fighting with us all this time.

Senator MOYNIHAN has served our country honorably through more than 4 decades of public life and four distinguished terms as Senator from New York. I want to especially salute Liz, our friend, your soulmate, your champion, your partner, your friend and fighter for all the causes that are good in New York and this country. We know you are going to continue to fight with us Liz fight with us, Liz.

As a New Yorker, it has been an honor to be represented by Senator MOYNIHAN; and, as a Member of Congress, it has truly been a privilege for me to work with him. A leading advocate for New York's renowned medical schools and teaching hospitals, Senator MOYNIHAN has fought tirelessly to make sure that New York receives the Federal health care dollars that it deserves.

As a member of the Irish caucus, I have seen firsthand Senator MOY-NIHAN's passionate commitment to establishing peace with justice for the people of Northern Ireland. Senator MOYNIHAN has also worked relentlessly to strengthen the United States-Israel relationship and to bring peace to that troubled region.

Yet Senator MOYNIHAN's storied legislative career, numerous political appointments and 62 honorary degrees are only part of what makes him so remarkable. Anyone who has had the pleasure of his company or the opportunity to work and fight by his side knows that his eloquence, intellect and dignity have made him a model leader for all Americans and a venerable advocate for the people of New York.

Indeed, Senator Moynihan has been a guiding light on so many issues critical to the American landscape, perhaps nowhere more evident than his lifelong commitment to ending poverty in this country. With his incisive intellect, his boundless passion, Senator Moynihan has worked tirelessly to speak for those who have no voice and to mend the social fabric of our Nation.

I know I speak for all New York and the Nation when I say that this institution will lose a brilliant mind when Senator MOYNIHAN retires next year, but we will continue to have your brilliant mind in fighting with us on all these critical issues that mean so much to New York and this country.

I will always treasure the time I have served with and have been represented by my good friend, Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN. We wish you well. Godspeed to you, Liz, as well.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Meeks) is recognized during morning hour debates for 1 minute.

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning to join my fellow colleagues in honoring the distinguished Senator from New York. For almost a quarter of a century, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN has represented the interests of the people of New York with a thoughtful, diplomatic leadership presence in the Senate. He has defined politics of civility.

His experience and expertise in domestic policy, foreign policy, science and the arts has guided our country through some of her toughest challenges. As a new Member of Congress seeking guidance, Senator MOYNIHAN and his staff were there for me whenever I called on them on behalf of the constituents of the 6th Congressional District.

MOYNIHAN's professional Senator story during four honorable Senate terms serves as a powerful contrast to the prevailing cynicism about politics and public service. PAT MOYNIHAN has been a larger-than-life figure for New York and the Senate, being a true role model and a great leader, with grace and wisdom, that has made all Americans proud, no matter what party, race, sex, religion or creed, no matter whether you are rich or you are poor. Indeed, Senator MOYNIHAN, your career has been about bringing people together. What a great legacy, about bringing people together and caring for Open behalf of my constituents, I thank Senator Moynihan for his dedication and distinguished public service; and I wish him and his wife, Liz, all of God's blessing. The people of New York will miss him greatly. So will the Congress, and so will our country.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY) is recognized during morning hour debates for 3 minutes.

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, when I first met Senator DANIEL PATRICK

MOYNIHAN, it was early in his career. As a graduate of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University in Medford, Massachusetts, he was, with characteristic concern for quality education, working with my husband and others to form a New York chapter of the Tufts Alumni Association. Its purpose was to found and fund scholarships and identify bright young students who would benefit from a college education. I remember then thinking how impressive he was in his grasp and understanding of the need of a quality education for all and the need for its early recognition.

When DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN ran for Senator from New York, it was as native son come home. A list of Senator MOYNIHAN's accomplishments would run on for hours, and we have heard many of them recounted here today. However, the most important things I believe so many will remember about him will be the fact that he changed their lives. He changed so many by applying intellect and concern for policy over politics.

During his distinguished career, many people gained a better quality of life and many people were able to better understand the government's functions, thanks to his thoughtful work.

Senator MOYNIHAN, it has been a great pleasure to work across the aisle from this House to the Senate and with you. We thank you for your hard work, and I thank you also for the work of your excellent staff. Although Washington may miss you, sir, we welcome you back to New York.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentle-woman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 2 minutes.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that a non-New Yorker has been able to get a word in edgewise this morning. I come to the floor as a fourth generation Washingtonian to pay tribute to a great New Yorker and a great American. Actually, I was a New Yorker. I was Chair of the New York City Human Rights Commission and I was the executive assistant to Mayor John Lindsey. The Senator introduced me when I was nominated to be the Chair of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

But I come this morning because Washingtonians would want me to come and other Americans would want me to come to thank the Senator for what he has done for the Nation's Capital, and, therefore, for his country. This is only one of the unique roles the Senator has managed to carve out in 25 years in the Senate.

As an African American, I also thank him for the prescient role he played in pointing out difficulties in the black family, a position that has now been embraced by black leadership themselves. As an academic, I thank him for his work as a public intellectual. I fished out only two of the many books he has written from my bookcase this morning. How he has managed to write books and be a Senator, this academic still does not understand.

The lasting monument of this great man, I must say to you, for this city and the country, is surely his work in resurrecting Pennsylvania Avenue. From the Capitol to the White House, instead of a slum, the American people now see an avenue the equivalent of the Champs Elysee. It would not have been that way were it not for the determination and the sheer persistence of DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN.

We will not have to rename The Avenue for you, Senator, in order to remember you. We will remember your work on Pennsylvania Avenue by our ongoing work and by your remarks in your Jefferson lecture at the University of Virginia in April, where you said, "In all a reassuring tale. An urban design, indivisible from a political-constitutional purpose, endured during two centuries and has now substantially prevailed. Pennsylvania Avenue lively, friendly and inviting. Yet of a sudden closed. Just so. In 1995, blockades went up at 14th Street and at 16th Street in front of the White House. Blockades and block houses. Armed Guards.'

We will open The Avenue for you, Senator.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 19, 1999, the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) is recognized during morning hour debates for 3 min-

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Speaker, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN has been valued and will continue to be valued for his wisdom on a kaleidoscopic range of subjects, for his prescient and nuanced analysis of social problems, his persistent and eloquent defense of government support for the poor and the disadvantaged, long after that position had become unfashionable; for his role in international affairs, as a participant and observer; as courtly diplomat and passionate defender of democracy. His example, his independence of mind, his indifference to fashion, his rejection of cant and conventional wisdom, is perhaps the best demonstration of why his favorite cause, the dignity of the free individual soul, matters so much.

Perhaps the proudest achievement of our country and our democratic system is that we allow people like DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN to speak their minds and rise to power.

His particular legacy to New York lies in his understanding that the lives of free individuals can be enhanced by the beauty and grandeur of all that surrounds them: the landscape, the streetscape, and the history that underlies them. So he made it his mission to see that our home, New York, would retain its distinguished features and add to its beauty and eloquence.

He committed himself to enhancing everyday life and to landmarks that spoke of the dignity of ordinary people, the efforts of the forgotten, and the conviction that every person matters. So throughout his Senate career, he worked to protect the landmarks of the women's rights movement in Seneca Falls, because he knew that the more celebrated proclamations of liberty in Philadelphia rang a little hollow for more than half the American people.

He worked equally hard to give Federal recognition to the Erie and Champlain Canals in New York, because he knows that the working folk who dug the ditches and piloted the boats, whose names we have forgotten, were more responsible for the westward expansion of our country and the opportunities it opened than the more celebrated frontier explorers.

He is working now to protect Governors Island in New York Harbor, the island most people ignored because its work was the daily grind of protecting the harbor, the overlooked work that sustains us. He has directed Federal funds to the protection of an ordinary businessman's house in Buffalo, because that little known man, Darwin Martin, had the daring and foresight to build a place of no pretension, but great beauty, by hiring an unregarded architect named Frank Lloyd Wright.

PAT MOYNIHAN insisted that public spaces where ordinary people pass daily and conduct their mundane business should remind them of their dignity and the soaring ideals of the American endeavor. So he insisted that the New York courthouses should be fine, even grand places, and he devoted himself to the rebirth of Pennsylvania Station as a place of splendor, a worthy replacement for the building we lost when people believed that public places should be drab and functional.

Of course, here in Washington, we know that it was PAT MOYNIHAN more than any other person who saw to it that Pennsylvania Avenue was also reborn, and again became a place of eloquence and beauty, appropriate to its place as the main boulevard of our Capital.

PAT MOYNIHAN made his home in New York, appropriately at the crossroads of the ordinary and the ideal, a tiny rural settlement named in honor of a classical poet, the Hamlet of Pindar's Corners. His home there at the same time was a modest rural farmhouse and a Greek temple, a common 19th century architectural style in upstate New York, but one rarely seen today.

His blending of the common, the human, the mundane, and of the highest ideals and greatest dignity, is a reflection of America at its best, what this country is all about. Nothing could be more appropriate for the man who best reflects that same vision, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN.

Mr. Speaker, PAT MOYNIHAN has always appeared larger than life. From the day he arrived in the Senate as a freshman in 1977, he was not just another Senator. He has always stood apart. He is one of the few Senators of whom it can be said that his name is just as powerful, just as important, whether the title 'Senator" is attached or not. After most of us leave Congress, the world has much less interest in what we have to say. But that will not be the case with PAT. When he speakswhether he is Senator MOYNIHAN. Professor MOYNIHAN, or just DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHANthe world listens.

He has been valued, and will continue to be valued, for his wisdom on a kaleidoscopic range of subjects-for his prescient and nuanced analysis of social problems, his persistent and eloquent defense of government support for the poor and disadvantaged, long after that position had become unfashionable, for his role in international affairs as participant and observer, as courtly diplomat and passionate defender of democracy and freedom. His own example—his independence of mind, his indifference to fashion, his rejection of cant and conventional wisdom-is perhaps the best demonstration of why his favorite cause—the dignity of the free individual soul matters so much. Perhaps the proudest achievement of our country and our democratic system is that we allow people like DAN-IEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN to speak their minds, and rise to power.

Any list of his achievements will be long. But we New Yorkers have some more particular and parochial reasons to thank him and to honor him, and reasons to be proud that we sent him to the Senate. He was born in Oklahoma, of course, and spent much of his professional life before he came to the Senate in Massachusetts. But we New Yorkers embraced him as he embraced us, and we will always be proud to count him as one of us.

His particular legacy to New York lies in his understanding that the lives of free individuals can be enhanced by the beauty and grandeur of all that surrounds them-the landscape, the streetscape, and the history that underlies them. So he made it his mission to see that our home, New York, would retain its distinquished features and add to its beauty and elegance.

It is telling that PAT MOYNIHAN did not put his greatest efforts into the more obvious treasures of the State, or into monuments to the great and famous. instead, he committed himself to enhancing everyday life, and into landmarks that spoke of the dignity of ordinary people, the efforts of the forgotten, and the conviction that every person matters. So throughout his Senate career he worked to protect the landmarks of the women's rights movement in Seneca Falls, because he knew that the more celebrated proclamations of liberty in Philadelphia rang a little hollow for more than half the American people. He has worked equally hard to give federal recognition to the Erie and Champlain Canals in New York, because he knows that the working folk who dug the ditches and piloted the boats whose names we have forgotten were more responsible for the westward expansion of our country and the opportunities it opened than the more celebrated frontier explorers. He is working now to protect Governors Island in New York Harbor-the island most people ignored because its work was the daily grind of protecting the harbor, the overlooked work that sustains us. He has directed federal funds to the protection of an ordinary businessman's house in Buffalo because that little known man, Darwin Martin, had the daring and foresight to build a place of no pretension but great beauty by hiring an unregarded architect named Frank Lloyd Wright.

PAT MOYNIHAN has not just looked to protect our history, however. In a time when public buildings and public spaces were given little regard, and their design was contracted to the low bidder PAT MOYNIHAN insisted that public spaces where ordinary people pass daily and conduct their mundane business should remind them of their dignity and the soaring ideals of the American endeavor. So he insisted that the new courthouses in New York should be fine, even grand places, and he devoted himself to the rebirth of Pennsylvania Station as a place of splendor, a worthy replacement for the building we lost when people believed that public spaces should be drab and functional. Of course here in Washington we know that it was PAT MOYNIHAN, more than any other person, who saw to it that Pennsylvania Avenue was also reborn, and again became a place of elegance and beauty appropriate to its place as the main boulevard of our Capital. I believe that New Yorkers and the Nation will thank him for his work on restoring aesthetics to community life for a long time to Typically, though, PAT MOYNIHAN did not focus on just a few great buildings and monumental spaces. One of his finest achievements, in my view, was his imaginative and inventive idea for financing what he called "enhancements" with highway money-parks, gardens, beautification, historic restoration, and other improvements of the landscape and the community, available to every place touched by a federally funded highway. Most of these enhancements are small changes in ordinary communities, changes that touch the life and lift the spirits of all those who see them and use them. Most people don't know that PAT MOYNIHAN had anything to do with them, but they may be one of his most lasting legacies to our Nation.

PAT MOYNIHAN made his home in New York, appropriately at the crossroads of the ordinary and the ideal—a tiny rural settlement named in honor of a classical poet, the Hamlet of Pindar's Corners. His home there was at the same time a modest rural farmhouse and a Greek temple, a common nineteenth century architectural style in upstate New York, but one rarely seen today. This blending of the common, the human, the mundane, and of the highest ideals and greatest dignity is a reflection of America at its best, what this country is all about. Nothing could be more appropriate for the man who best reflects that same vision. DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN.

Mr. LAZIO. Mr. Speaker, we are here this morning to honor Senator DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN, who will soon be concluding a distinguished career of public service. Senator MOYNIHAN's curriculum vitae extends over 44 pages. As one reads, one can not but be astounded that a single person could achieve so much, in so many areas.

During World War II, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN left college after one year to serve his country as a Naval officer. Returning to the United States after the war, he went on to become the sole person to ever serve 4 successions.

sive administrations at the Cabinet or Sub-Cabinet level. He served Presidents Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford in such roles as Cabinet Assistant Secretary, Counselor to the President, Assistant to the President, Ambassador and President of the U.N. Security Council. In 1977 he was elected to the United States Senate, a post that he has held until today. Throughout the course of his career, Senator MOYNIHAN has been the recipient of countless honors, ranging from honorary degrees from universities throughout the world, to awards from a variety of groups far too numerous to mention.

Yet, as outstanding as his record of achievement has been, what has always impressed me is the independence of mind that has consistently characterized DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN's views, statements and policy positions. During the early 1970s, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN incurred the wrath of many critics when he came out with a report on the social crisis posed by the explosion in out-of-wedlock births that was as prescient as it was controversial. Serving as our Ambassador to the United Nations, he spoke eloquently and forcefully in defense of Israel, when the infamous "Zionism equals Racism" resolution was passed in that body.

As a United States Senator, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN's willingness to take on the unpopular, yet necessary issues has remained intact. For years, when the conventional political wisdom was that Social Security reform was the "third rail of politics," DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN talked of the impending crisis of solvency for Social Security. He has similarly been willing to buck the tide of political convention and correctness.

To put it quite simply, DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN is one of the most honorable public servants I have ever met. His presence in the United States Senate will be sorely missed. He is a New Yorker, through the through, and has been a truly eloquent voice in Washington for all of us in the Empire State. I would be deeply honored to serve as his successor.

As he embarks upon a new chapter of his life, I would like to wish him Godspeed, secure in the knowledge that whatever new challenge DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN next chooses to address will be met with the same courage, determination and raw talent that has brought him success throughout his long and distinguished career.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks relating to this tribute to Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker protempore (Mr. LINDER) at 10 a.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer: Fulfilling Hebrew psalms and Christian exhortations, may all in this House and in this Nation be of one mind, sympathetic, loving one another, compassionate and humble.

Let no one return evil for evil, or insult for insult. On the contrary, make us a blessing for others, for this is our calling.

As God's children, we will inherit a blessing so far surpassing the momentary trouble we face and the inscrutable behavior we suffer.

God, Your blessing does not rest only on us. God's blessing, once revealed, so penetrates our being and all our relationships that we become a blessing for all our brothers and sisters in the human family, now and in the future, and forever. Amen.

CELEBRATING THE TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE REGU-LATORY FLEXIBILITY ACT

(Mrs. KELLY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the enactment of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

Over 20 years ago, several Members of this House, along with Members from the other body, worked tirelessly and in a bipartisan fashion to advance the interests of small businesses caught in the endless stream of new regulations pouring out of the Federal government. Regulatory agencies and executive departments were constantly advancing new regulations with a one-size-fits-all approach. This approach to regulation was destroying our small businesses.

A handful of visionaries came to the rescue with the Regulatory Flexibility Act which is often referred to as the magna carta of small business rights. It was advanced in a bipartisan manner by a group of individuals who deserve our praise today.

Members of the House who led the charge back then were Andy Ireland, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) and Neal Smith. Their colleagues in the Senate were John Culver and Gaylord Nelson. From the business community, there were many individuals who contributed to this effort, most notably John Motley and former Congressman Mike McKevitt. And, of course, as with most things we do, there was exceptional staff work done on making the Regulatory Flexibility Act a reality, most notably the contributions of then the House Committee on Small Business staffer, Stephen P. Lynch.

REFORM FOR SENTENCING OF SEX OFFENDERS

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, a 22-year-old Boston transvestite kidnapped and molested a 12-year-old boy with a screwdriver. After all of this, the judge said there is just a little too much hype about this case. Thus, Judge Lopez sentenced this sex offender to 1 year probation and no jail time.

Unbelievable. What is next? Country clubs for child molesters? Think about it. These courts are so screwed up, admitted serial murderers get 3 square meals, TV, law libraries, and air-conditioning.

Beam me up. I say there should be a court-ordered sex change on this transvestite performed by Dr. Lorena Bobbit in Boston, Massachusetts. That would stop this garbage.

I yield back the fact that this judge should be removed from office.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS FROM HOLLYWOOD UNDERMINES CAN-DIDATE CREDIBILITY

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, on August 10, 1999, there was an article in the Los Angeles Times. AL GORE was in Hollywood raising money for his campaign.

The Los Angeles Times reported that he told these big Hollywood contributors in very clear terms that a probe into Hollywood violence was the President's idea, not his. These Hollywood big wigs make a lot of money from violent movies and did not like the idea of Washington politicians meddling with their profits.

Well, Mr. Speaker, that investigation that AL GORE once disavowed is complete and it turns out that these Hollywood types have been marketing violent movies and video games to 12-year-olds. Even President Clinton is mad. But AL GORE has accepted over $13 million in donations from this special interest industry.

Now, AL GORE wants us to believe that he is going to do something about violent movies, video games and music lyrics. Would it seem too cynical if I said, quite simply, I do not believe it.

CALLING FOR RECALL OF CONTAMINATED GENETICALLY ENGINEERED CORN

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, we are told over and over again that the Food and Drug Administration is protecting the food supply by carefully scrutinizing this new genetically engineered food technology with full consideration for our safety. We are told over and over again that the biotech food industry will protect us. We are told over and over again that genetically engineered food is safe.

Mr. Speaker, my colleagues may have heard the startling new reports that unapproved genetically engineered corn has contaminated the Taco Bell taco shells found on our grocery store shelves. This corn has not been approved by the EPA for human consumption because of their concern for allergens.

The GE food industry, the genetically engineered food industry fails the American public and they are losing the public's trust in this matter.

Yesterday, the FDA announced that they will recall the product if their own testing confirms the contamination. I am asking Members to please sign my letter to the FDA asking for the recall and the FDA testing of more products that might contain this illegal corn variety.

DIGITAL DIVIDE ACCESS TO TECHNOLOGY ACT

(Mr. WELLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, let me share some statistics with my colleagues. Over 100 million Americans today are online, and seven new Americans go on line every second. One-third of all new jobs today are created in the technology sector, and in my home State of Illinois, salaries of technology workers are 59 percent higher than other traditional jobs.

There is great opportunity in this new economy, but educators tell me they notice the difference back home in our schools between those children who have computers and Internet access at home and those who do not. When we ask why they do not, they always say that the cost is the biggest challenge.

Well, the private sector, Ford, Intel, Delta and American Airlines have stepped forward to provide Internet-accessed computers for their employees. Unfortunately, the IRS wants to tax it. For a worker making $27,000 a year, that means $200 in higher taxes, just because their employer provides them with a computer. Think about that. The janitor, the assembly line worker, the laborer, their children having Internet access and a computer at home to do their school work.

Mr. Speaker, it is good policy; and I am glad to see the private sector stepping forward.

That is why I want to ask my colleagues to join with me in cosponsoring the DDATA Act, legislation that clarifies that employer-provided computers and Internet access are tax free, treated the same way as an employer-provided pension or health care benefit.

The DDATA Act is pro worker, pro education, and pro technology. Let us stop the IRS from taxing these kinds of employer benefits.

IMMIGRANTS IN HIGH-TECH IN-DUSTRY PROVIDE ECONOMIC SE-CURITY

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I think it is possible for this great body to address the concerns of many, if there is an effort to deliberate and concentrate and generate a solution.

This week, we may have the opportunity to look closely at the needs of our high-tech industry with respect to additional personnel. It is called the H1-B nonimmigrant visas. As many of us have heard and as the country has heard, this high-tech industry has been an anchor of our economic boom.

However, at the same time, there are serious humanitarian issues that I believe warrant our consideration. One of them deals with the providing of late amnesty options for thousands upon thousands of immigrants who have been living in this country and paying taxes, buying homes and raising their children, but because of an INS mistake, were not able to apply for late amnesty. Then we have the parity that needs to occur for Central America similar to that given to any Nicaraguans and Cubans so that the fairness will allow families to remain united.

Then, as we look at the nonimmigrant visas, it is important to protect American workers and to provide opportunities for employment in the high-tech industry for African Americans and Hispanics. We can do good if we put our minds to it.

PRESIDENT CALLS FOR MORE TAX GENERICS ARE CRITICAL IN AD-COLLECTORS AT IRS

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, it astounds me and most of my fellow Nevadans as well when we hear that the Clinton-Gore administration intends to veto the Treasury-Postal appropriations bill, a bill which this Chamber passed just last week: veto it simply because the bill does not give enough money to the IRS.

The IRS is demanding $224 million more than their current $8.6 billion budget to pay for 5,000 more tax collec-

Mr. Speaker, what the American people need is not more tax collectors; what the American people need is a tax break. The overwhelming tax burden currently placed on the American families is simply unconscionable and by vetoing the Treasury-Postal bill President Clinton also vetoes the repeal of the telephone excise tax, a tax passed over 100 years ago to fund the Spanish American war.

Not one single Nevadan has ever asked me to fight for more IRS tax collectors. Americans do not want the bloated bureaucracy of the IRS to expand; they want and deserve a tax break.

AMERICA SHOULD BE STRONG PARTICIPANT IN UNITED NATIONS

(Mr. McDERMOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I come before the House today to talk for 1 minute about today being United Nations Day. It is also the beginning of the decade of peace in the world. They are trying to begin to emphasize how to bring peace in a variety of different places across the globe.

It is important for us in this body to recognize the important part we play, not only by our contributions to the U.N. in which we have lagged seriously behind, but in our support for what goes on.

The United States has, from time to time, supported the U.N. when it has been in our interests and at other times we walk away from them. But as we look across the globe with all of the places, Sierra Leone or Liberia or Somalia, when we look, we see always that the U.N. sometimes has our support and sometimes does not.

Now, if we are going to be the leader of the world, we certainly are economically, but if we are politically going to be leaders of the world, we must participate in the United Nations in a very strong way. That means paying our

DRESSING HEALTH CARE COST ESCALATION

(Mr. CALVERT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, I do not have to tell Members of this body that health care inflation is out of control. Our constituents are telling us that

They are feeling the effects of medical costs that increased over 10 percent in 1999 alone. The latest projections are that health care inflation will outpace overall inflation for many years to come. This poses a significant threat to American families, government programs, and employers who are shouldering a growing burden of the U.S. health care costs.

One solution to this problem is to increase the availability of generic drugs. Generic drugs deliver the same health results as brand drugs, but generics cost 70 percent less on average than the brands they replace. The savings are significant.

A new report released by Sanford University in Alabama shows that for every 1 percent increase in generic drug utilization, consumers, taxpayers and employers save over $1 billion in prescription drug costs. It is clear that the greater use of generic drugs must be a part of the plan to cure the Nation's ailing health care system.

GENERIC DRUGS

(Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, most Americans know that the cost of pharmaceutical drugs is at a record high. Prescription drug costs rose 85 percent between 1993 and 1998. and prescription drugs represent the highest out-of-pocket expense for three out of four senior citizens.

Generic drugs are FDA approved to be safe and to be secure, but they cost 70 percent less than brand name drugs. The fact of the matter is, there are loopholes in today's laws that block entry to these affordable generic drugs.

This Congress needs to reform the Hatch-Waxman Act to improve competition and make our markets more accessible and fair. Let us end the brand drug monopoly that stifles competition, restricts our consumers' choice, and raises consumer drug

CHILDHOOD CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

(Mr. HEFLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, the month of September is Childhood Cancer Awareness Month, and I am proud to stand here wearing my gold ribbon of hope and voice my support for the children and families who are affected by this disease.

Cancer causes more deaths during childhood than any other disease. This vear an estimated 12.400 children will be diagnosed with cancer, and 2,300 will die. Though we celebrate with the survivors and their families, we cannot forget the children who will, unfortunately, succumb.

That is why I am preparing to introduce legislation on behalf of these children and their families that will support them through the hospice care. Later this month, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) and I will host a conference for Members and staff in order to address the challenges concerning hospice care for children and share our ideas and examine questions regarding this serious topic.

I hope my colleagues will support this legislation, the conference, and Childhood Cancer Awareness Month.

GENERIC DRUGS PROVIDE AF-FORDABLE HEALTH CARE AL-TERNATIVE

(Mr. GOODE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOODE. Mr. Speaker, today over 40 million Americans lack adequate health insurance coverage and millions more are struggling to cover their health care bills. Unfortunately, seniors and children are among the groups most vulnerable in American society. Finding solutions to this health care crisis has to be at the top of our agen-

Fortunately, there is help. Right now, generic drug companies are producing lifesaving and life-improving medicines that cost substantially less than brand name drugs. In fact, generic drugs provide one of the best values in the United States health care system. The substantial savings provided by generic drugs means more Americans can buy the medicines they need. It also means that through greater use of generic drugs, public health programs, like Medicaid and Medicare, can manage to help more Americans.

Generic drugs should be a key part of any prescription drug program approved by this Congress.

BRAND NAME AND GENERIC DRUGS ARE INTERCHANGEABLE

(Mr. PALLONE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, does anyone in the Chamber know the difference between Zantac and Ranitidine Hydrochloride? Here is the answer: Price. Zantac is the brand name of a popular medication to treat ulcers. Ranitidine Hydrochloride is the generic name of the exact same drug.

The Food and Drug Administration ensures that whether a consumer uses a drug by its brand name, such as Zantac, or a drug that goes by the generic name, such as Ranitidine, they will receive the same active ingredients and the same health benefits. To quote FDA Commissioner Jane Henney, "If the FDA declares a generic drug to be therapeutically equivalent to an innovator drug, the two products will provide the same intended clinical effect."

This is important, Mr. Speaker, because if we ever hope to bring health care inflation under control, we have to understand that brand drugs and generic drugs are truly interchangeable. Through greater use of high quality, less costly generic drugs, we can have truly affordable and effective medicine.

If we check our medicine cabinets, we find that there are more affordable generics available for many of these expensive prescriptions.

ADMINISTRATION HAS FAILED TO RESOLVE OIL CRISIS

(Mr. BALLENGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, first let me say the Federal Reserve has done a great job in keeping our economy strong and growing. Unfortunately, the Clinton-Gore administration's lack of a coherent energy policy threatens that very economic prosperity.

As I speak, fuel prices around the Nation and around the world are skyrocketing as the price of oil tops $37 per barrel. Rising fuel prices affect every sector of the economy and eventually every American.

Airlines are increasing fares; truckers, who deliver our food, medicine, and virtually everything else are straining to meet their contractual obligations and pay for fuel that is now costing an average of $1.62 cents a gallon. As consumer prices rise, consumer spending will decrease, leading to sluggish sales, larger inventories and slower growth.

So, Mr. Speaker, what is the administration's answer to the pending crisis? Well, instead of using the 8 years they had in office to develop an energy policy which would have prevented this crisis, the Clinton-Gore administration squandered those opportunities and now is only offering last-minute solutions, like begging Saudi Arabia to increase oil production.

For an administration that has not been ashamed to take all the credit for the current economy, I hope they do as much to solve this crisis than just admit, as they did in the spring, that they fell asleep at the switch.

BLUE RIBBON PANEL SHOULD BE FORMED TO PROTECT RIGHTS AND LIBERTIES OF ALL AMER-ICAN CITIZENS

(Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, at the time that Wen Ho Lee was first arrested, I met with the Chinese-American Political Association of the greater San Francisco Bay area. Many in that community raised their concerns that he was the target of selective prosecution, of racial profiling, and prosecutorial abuse. As we now see, as that case has started to come to a conclusion with the plea bargain, in fact many of the concerns raised by the Chinese community turned out to be true.

All Americans should be deeply disturbed by the prosecutorial abuse that was raised in this case and used against Wen Ho Lee. This does not suggest that Wen Ho Lee did not have some serious transgressions of the current law and policy, but what his government did to him should cause concern by all Americans.

All Americans are entitled to an impartial review of the actions by all parties to that prosecution. Unfortunately, the congressional committees, the FBI, the intelligence agencies, and all the rest participated in the feeding frenzy at the time of the arrest.

I think maybe we ought to have a national, impartial blue ribbon commission to look at the Wen Ho Lee case and see how we can better safeguard the rights and liberties of all American citizens.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LINDER). Pursuant to the provisions of clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair announces that he will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record vote on the Debt Relief and Retirement Security Reconciliation Act of 2000, together with such other votes as may have been postponed to that point, will be taken after the debate has concluded on that motion.

Record votes on remaining motions to suspend the rules will be taken later today.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 4919, SECURITY ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2000

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 4919) to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and the Arms Export Control Act to make improvements to certain defense and security assistance provisions under those Acts, to authorize the transfer of naval vessels to certain foreign countries, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York? The Chair hears none and, without objection, appoints the following conferees:

Messrs. GILMAN, GOODLING, and GEJDENSON.

There was no objection.

FHA DOWNPAYMENT SIMPLIFICA-TION EXTENSION ACT OF 2000

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (5193) to amend the National Housing Act to temporarily extend the applicability of the downpayment simplification provisions for the FHA single family housing mortgage insurance program, as amended.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "FHA Downpayment Simplification Extension Act of 2000"

SEC. 2. EXTENSION OF APPLICABILITY OF DOWN-PAYMENT SIMPLIFICATION PROVI-SIONS.

Subparagraph (A) of section 203(b)(10) of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1709(b)(10)(A)) is amended by striking "executed for insurance in fiscal years 1998, 1999, and 2000'' and inserting "closed on or before October 30, 2000''.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH).

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5193, the FHA Downpayment Simplification Extension Act of 2000 would extend existing statutory provisions in the National Housing Act that provides for the manner and method of calculating downpayments by new homeowners closing on mortgage loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

This simplification is merely a technical change that rewrites and clarifies downpayment requirements that, over time, have been amended in such a manner that are now unclear and difficult to understand. A simplified or streamlined method would provide savings to homebuyers and a calculation method uniformly understood by the mortgage industry and consumers.

This calculation method would reduce from a three-tiered approach to a two-tiered approach. Its effect would also decrease the amount of downpayments necessary. For example, this streamlined approach will save borrowers of a typical $150,000 home loan approximately $1,000 to $2,000 at closing.

In the 105th Congress this body passed similar legislation. Originally, the legislation was extended through a demonstration project to Hawaii and Alaska. In last year's VA-HUD appropriations act, this body extended the legislation to the rest of the country.

The current legislation will expire September 30. This bill's extension through October 30 accomplishes two goals. First, the extension will allow this committee more time to complete its work and pass the comprehensive housing conference report on H.R. 1776, the American Homeownership and Economic Opportunity Act of 2000. H.R. 1776 overwhelmingly passed the House on April 6 by a 417 to 8 vote and includes permanent authorization to simplify the manner of FHA downpayment calculations.

Secondly, and more important, this extension will eliminate any confusion that now exists in the mortgage finance market for the next few weeks where some borrowers would face uncertain downpayments requirements at closing.

Let me close by stressing that the extension of a technical change to the law reflects sound policy and allows creditworthy families greater homeownership opportunities.

I would also like particularly to express my appreciation for the work of the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAZIO), the gentleman from California (Mr. KUYKENDALL), and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) for their leadership in this area.

Mr. Speaker, I am submitting for the RECORD a letter received in support of this legislation by the National Association of Home Builders.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF HOME BUILDERS,

Washington, DC, September 18, 2000.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of the 200,000 members of the National Association of Home Builders, I am writing to express our support for H.R. 5193, the "FHA Downpayment Simplification Extension Act," which is scheduled to come before the full House of Representatives tomorrow under suspension of the rules. The bill provides a fifteen-day extension of the Federal Housing Authority's (FHA) downpayment simplification. We very much appreciate your consideration of our views.

NAHB is very supportive of FHA's down-payment simplification process. It has been hugely successful in enabling more low-income households to purchase their first home. Given such successes, we support Congress' action to provide a short-term extension until a more appropriate venue—namely through the authorization process—may be utilized and further, that at that time, the downpayment simplification be made permanent.

The simplification is a technical change that rewrites and clarifies downpayment requirements, that over time had been amended in such a manner that makes them unclear and difficult to understand. A simplified or streamlined method provides savings to the homebuyer and a calculation method uniformly understood by the mortgage industry and consumers. This calculation method is reduced from a three-tiered approach to a two-tiered approach. Its effect decreases the amount of downpayments necessary where the borrower is otherwise creditworthy.

Finally, as you may be aware, the issue of extending the FHA downpayment simplification is addressed in H.R. 1776, the "American Homeownership and Economic Opportunity Act," which passed in the U.S. House of Representatives on April 6, 2000 by an overwhelming and bipartisan vote of 417 to 8. Considering the strong support of this housing proposal within the House of Representatives, we continue to urge the Senate to consider H.R. 1776 and either bring it to the floor for a vote, or move to a formal conference with S. 1452, the Senate's manufactured housing legislation as soon as possible.

Thank you for the opportunity to express our views on this important housing issue. We appreciate your continued support for the home building industry and look forward to working with you during the remaining days of the 106th Congress, and into the 107th Congress, as we seek to provide safe, affordable housing for all Americans.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM P. KILLMER.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I rise in support of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support this 30-day technical extension of the FHA downpayment simplification formula. The bill makes sure that in the event of a VA-HUD appropriations bill not being signed into law by October 1, that FHA borrowers and lenders may continue to use the current simplified downpayment formula in anticipation of a permanent biennial or annual extension of this formula.

This bill is the second development over the last few months which clearly illustrates the folly of the current approach of interim extensions of the FHA downpayment simplification formula. Two years ago, Congress applied this formula nationwide to all 50 States for a period of 2 years ending October 1 of this year. Yet just a few months ago, confusion set into the mortgage markets as many lenders were concerned about the technical language of the 2-year application; whether the effective cutoff date was the day a loan closed or the day that HUD insured it.

We were in the ridiculous situation in which lenders all over the country might have had to revert to the old formula for a month or two, potentially raising down payment levels, creating confusion, and killing home purchases.

Fortunately, both congressional leaders and HUD concurred that Congress' intent was to refer to the closing date and HUD issued a clarification to that effect, and today's bill explicitly uses this approach.

The second development is today's bill, which highlights the possibility that we will not enact a VA-HUD bill by October 1. This once again raises the very real possibility that an interim extension for down payment simplification could expire unintentionally.

The obvious conclusion is that anything less than a permanent extension of the down payment formula runs the risk that we will be in the same position a year or so from now, facing expiration of the new formula.

Moreover, the approach of a permanent extension was taken in H.R. 1776, the homeownership bill, which passed the House earlier this year. This approach of a permanent extension was taken with overwhelming bipartisan support.

So I think our course should be clear. We should make this formula permanent through whatever legislative vehicle is available in the next few weeks.

Unfortunately, there is a real risk that through inadvertence the down payment simplification formula could lapse for an extended period of time, thereby forcing FHA borrowers and lenders to revert to the old, confusing, anti-consumer formula. This risk was highlighted by an action the other body took last week where a 1-year extension of the down payment formula was put into the VA-HUD bill in subcommittee but then was inexplicably stripped by the majority in full committee.

Thus, the real risk is that, as we simultaneously consider both the fiscal year 2001 VA-HUD appropriations bill and potentially a conference on H.R. 1776, down payment simplification could fall through the cracks, especially in the confusion of the last week or so of this Congress.

That would be a terrible result for the hundreds of thousands of home buyers that use FHA.

Therefore, I ask the chairman of our Committee on Banking and Financial Services that, however these various bills are considered, that we work to ensure that down payment simplification either permanently, as in H.R. 1776, or as an extension, is included in some bill that the President signs into law. And if it is an extension, I hope it will be a long-term extension, although I support the 30-day in today's bill.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LAFALCE. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, let me say to the gentleman, I concur in everything the gentleman has just said, and it is one of the reasons I am so strongly supportive of getting H.R. 1776 made into public law.

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank the Chair for changing this bill from 15 days to 30 days

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, in any regard, I will say to the gentleman that the scenario that he has laid out of possible problems is a credibly unfortunate scenario that could occur, and it is the intent of the Chair to be as vigilant as possible to ensure that it does not occur.

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman of the committee, and I thank the chairman of the full committee for their comments. I ask all to support this bill. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LINDER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5193, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and that I may include extraneous material on H.R. 5193.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

HOMEOWNERS FINANCING PROTECTION ACT

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3834) to amend the rural housing loan guarantee program under section 502(h) of the Housing Act of 1949 to provide loan guarantees for loans made to refinance existing mortgage loans guaranteed under such section, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 3834

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Homeowners Financing Protection Act".

SEC. 2. GUARANTEES FOR REFINANCING LOANS.

Section 502(h) of the Housing Act of 1949 (42 U.S.C. 1472(h)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(13) GUARANTEES FOR REFINANCING LOANS.—Upon the request of the borrower, the Secretary shall, to the extent provided in appropriation Acts, guarantee a loan that is made to refinance an existing loan that is made under this section or guaranteed under this subsection, and that the Secretary determines complies with the following requirements:

"(A) INTEREST RATE.—The refinancing loan shall have a rate of interest that is fixed over the term of the loan and does not exceed the interest rate of the loan being refinanced.

"(B) SECURITY.—The refinancing loan shall be secured by the same single-family residence as was the loan being refinanced, which shall be owned by the borrower and occupied by the borrower as the principal residence of the borrower.

"(C) AMOUNT.—The principal obligation under the refinancing loan shall not exceed an amount equal to the sum of the balance of the loan being refinanced and such closing costs as may be authorized by the Secretary, which shall include a discount not exceeding

2 basis points and an origination fee not exceeding such amount as the Secretary shall prescribe.

The provisions of the last sentence of paragraph (1) and paragraphs (2), (5), (6)(A), (7), and (9) shall apply to loans guaranteed under this subsection, and no other provisions of paragraphs (1) through (12) shall apply to such loans.".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH).

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3834, the Homeowners Financing Protection Act, would allow borrowers under the Rural Housing Service (RHS) single-family program to refinance their mortgages to take advantage of lower interest rates with new RHS-guaranteed loans.

Under the current law, RHS borrowers, under the direct or guarantee program, are precluded from refinancing their existing loan with a new RHS-guarantee loan. This anomaly affects low- and very-low-income families who originally qualified for RHS direct mortgage loans.

While the direct loans were meant to provide temporary credit in some circumstances, borrowers were unable to successfully apply for mortgage credit without a government guarantee even though their financial condition had modestly improved.

H.R. 3834 would remove the statutory prohibition from refinancing direct single-family housing loans using the guaranteed program. According to the General Accounting Office, as of May 31, 2000, approximately 9,100 RHS loans exist with an interest rate of 13 percent or higher; 65,000 loans exist with an interest rate of at least 9½ percent. It is clear that these borrowers would benefit from refinancing using the guaranteed program by lower interest rates and, therefore, lower monthly payments.

At the same time, the Federal Government would maximize its resources by providing a more cost-efficient mechanism to ensure homeownership for those sectors of our community that are unable to obtain private-sector financing and insurance.

In conclusion, I would like to thank my friend and colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAZIO), who is chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE), and particularly the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS) for their work in this area.

CBO has advised the committee that the bill is budget neutral.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the following letter from the Housing Assistance Council:

HOUSING ASSISTANCE COUNCIL, Washington, DC, August 18, 2000. Representative RICK LAZIO, Chairman, Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Attn: Joe Ventrone & Clinton Jones

Re: Title V Rural Housing
DEAR CHAIRMAN LAZIO: The Housing Assistance Council (HAC) writes you to support a proposal by Rep. Robert E. Andrews to amend Section 502(g) to permit refinancing of certain Rural Housing Service (RHS) direct loans with guarantees under Section 502(h) in Title V in the Housing Act of 1949.
Currently, there is no refinancing authority for the 502 loan guarantees. Rep. Andrews' request is supported by a General Accounting Office report, "Shift to Guaranteed Program Can Benefit Borrowers and Reduce Government Exposure" (GAO/RCED/ALMD95/63). We are informed that a change could possibly be moved on the suspension calendar

HAC earlier responded favorably to the GAO report in a letter to Associate Administer Czerwinski. We believe that the issue is one that should be addressed by Congress and can be done with very little budget impact. The adversely affected families now have higher incomes and can afford payments at current market rates, but are trapped in a situation not foreseen when the legislation was enacted, and which is beyond their control. It is difficult to justify interest payments to the government at rates up to 13 percent when private market rates are so much lower. The affected families had low incomes when RHS helped them attain home ownership. The very program which once helped them now causes them to make excessive mortgage payments.

It is our opinion that mitigating this problem is the right thing for the government to do and that the issue is not partisan in nature. We urge you to include a corrective amendment in legislation you may be developing which includes, or can include, Title V rural housing additions or changes.

Sincerely,

Moises Loza, Executive Director.

 $\mbox{Mr.}$  Speaker, I reserve the balance of  $\mbox{my time.}$

Mr. LAFALCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 3834, the Homeowners Financing Protection Act, and I pay particular attention and give particular credit to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS) for highlighting this difficulty for the Congress and for initiating legislative action on this bill.

The bill gives homeowners with existing Rural Housing Service guaranteed and direct single-family loans the opportunity to refinance such loans under the RHS guaranteed loan program.

Permitting such loans would enable homeowners with high interest-rate mortgage loans, in some cases as high as 13.5 percent, to lower mortgage rates and therefore their monthly mortgage payments by a substantial amount.

This is also good for the Federal Government since reduced mortgage payments reduce the default risk on such loans, thereby reducing the risk of foreclosure and payout by the Federal Government and for the Government. For example, the amount of the refinanced loan cannot be increased except by the cost necessary for the refinancing. This avoids over-leveraging the home. The interest rate on the refinanced loan cannot be higher than the mortgage rate on the existing loan. And the bill limits the Secretary's authority to guarantee refinanced loans to the extent provided in appropriation acts.

The bill is drafted with a number of protections for both the homeowner

Finally, I would note that, with passage of this bill, it is not the intent in the future that this new refinanced loan authority crowd out the issuance of new loan authority. The concern is that, if interest rates were to fall dramatically, homeowners could rush to utilize this new refinance authority. eating into loan authority for new guaranteed loans.

However, this concern can easily be addressed in future appropriations bills through different approaches, including the simple act of providing a sufficient dollar amount of loan authority.

In conclusion, I would again like to commend the very fine work of the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. AN-DREWS), and I urge adoption of this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding me the time. I rise in strong support of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, one of the hallmarks of this Congress will be the bipartisan cooperation and achievements of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

I want to thank the gentleman from Iowa (Chairman LEACH), the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAZIO), and the ranking member, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE). They have left their mark on this Congress in some significant and bipartisan ways; and it is a pleasure to serve with each of them. I thank them for their cooperation and the cooperation of the staff in bringing this bill to the floor in the spirit in which the committee has proceeded throughout this Congress.

To understand the importance of this bill, we need to understand what it would be like to be a family with an income of $26,000 or $27,000 a year living in a modest home in a rural area of the United States struggling to pay the bills, struggling to keep up, and confronting a mortgage payment each month that reflects a mortgage of 11 or

Many people in those circumstances would take advantage of recent changes in financial conditions and refinance their mortgage. They would go out and get a loan and pay off their existing mortgage, and they would replace it with one that requires lower monthly payments.

There are a lot of significant reasons why the citizens that I talk about cannot do that. First of all, they probably have a very low income, as I said; and secondly, they build up very little equity in their home, because the way they build up equity is to either live in a house that is appreciating regularly in value or by making early payments against their mortgage that would pay down the principle more quickly than they would interest.

Neither of those happy developments is happening for many of the people who we are talking about affected by this bill.

Presently, the law does not permit the United States Department of Agriculture to issue a loan guarantee or a direct loan in order to facilitate the refinancing of that mortgage loan. This bill changes that. It says that the United States Department of Agriculture can step in and, subject to its guidelines and to the other conditions set forth by the ranking member, can issue a loan guarantee or, where appropriate, a direct loan.

What does that mean to the family that I talked about at the outset of my remarks? Well, it may mean up to about $100 a month in lower mortgage payments, $100 a month more for health care or for education or to meet the other demands of the household. This is a sensible, bipartisan approach to a problem that is affecting a lot of people. As we heard previously, there are 65,000 borrowers across the country who are paying interest rates in excess of 9½ percent, and there are 9,100 of those borrowers paying interest rates in excess of 13 percent. This is a modest measure that will help those families in a significant way.

I would like to express my appreciation to the staff on both the majority and minority side for their cooperation, to the United States Department of Agriculture for their steadfast support of this, to Geoff Plague of my office for his outstanding work.

Let me again say to the gentleman from Iowa (Chairman LEACH) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LA-FALCE) and the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), and, in his absence, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAZIO), and also the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) that I appreciate their cooperation.

urge the adoption of the bill.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), who has spent so much of his time in this Congress on the housing issues.

(Mr. BEREUTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Iowa (Chairman LEACH) for yielding me this time and for his kind remarks.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong support for the Homeowners Financing Protection Act which is being considered under suspension of the rules

First this Member would like to thank the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH), the distinguished chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAZIO), the distinguished chairman of the House Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity, for their collective role in bringing this legislation to the floor today.

In addition, I would like to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. LA-FALCE), the ranking minority member of the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and the gen-Massachusetts (Mr tleman from FRANK), the ranking minority member of the House Subcommittee on Housing and Community Opportunity, for their efforts on this measure.

□ 1045

Furthermore, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Andrews) deserves particular attention, commendation and congratulations for introducing this important legislation. It is important to American homeowners of modest or average income. The gentleman from New Jersey has just given us, very specifically, some of the reasons why it is important to the homeowners and how it affects their pocketbook.

Among other important provisions, this legislation amends section 502(h) of the Housing Act of 1949 to allow borrowers of the Rural Housing Service single-family loans to refinance either an existing section 502 direct or guaranteed loan to a new section 502 guaranteed loan, provided the interest rate is at least equal or lower than the current interest rate being refinanced and the same house is used as security.

This Member supports the legislation because it facilitates the use of the RHS section 502 single family loan guarantee program. In fact, this loan program, which was first authorized with this Member's initiative, with the strong support of now the chairman of the Banking Committee, the distinguished gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH), some years ago and with the support of the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE), has been very effective in nonmetropolitan communities by guaranteeing loans made by approved lenders to low-moderate to moderate-income households. The program provides a guarantee for 30-year fixed rate mortgages for the purchase of an existing home or construction of a new home. It has been very good news for the taxpayer. Further the program operates with a minimum of red tape. The examples from my home State of Nebraska, where the program was slow to start, are illustrative of how popular and how important it is for low-moderate and moderate-income Americans.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, for the aforementioned reasons and many others, this Member would encourage support for H.R. 3834 which is being considered

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER). I would again stress what an extraordinary role he has played in this House on housing matters.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LAFAĽCE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LINDER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3834, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 3834, the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

CHANDLER PUMPING PLANT WATER EXCHANGE FEASIBILITY STUDY

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 3986) to provide for a study of the engineering feasibility of a water exchange in lieu of electrification of the Chandler Pumping Plant at Prosser Diversion Dam, Washington, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON) and the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 3986.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Idaho?

There was no objection.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3986 authorizes a study of the feasibility of exchanging water diverted from the Yakima River for use by two irrigation districts for water from the Columbia River. The study would be conducted as part of the Yakima River Basin Water Enhancement Project. The legislation will promote salmon recovery in the Yakima River without reducing the amount of water available to irrigators.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS).

(Mr. HASTINGS of Washington asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 3986. I thank the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, as Members know, the preservation of salmon in the Pacific Northwest is one of my top priorities in this Congress. I am convinced that we can save this national treasure while also preserving the jobs and quality of life of Pacific Northwest residents. My legislation is just one example of the benefits that could be attained for salmon by interested parties working together at the local level.

Very simply, Mr. Speaker, my legislation authorizes a study of the feasibility of exchanging water diverted from the Yakima River for use by the Kennewick and Columbia Irrigation Districts for water from the Columbia River. The study would be conducted as part of the Bureau of Reclamation's . Yakima River Basin Water Enhancement Project, a series of projects authorized by Congress to improve water quality and quantity in the Yakima River. These two systems currently take their water from the lower Yakima River where flows have already been decreased because of upriver diversions. By taking water from the much larger volume of the Columbia River, the impact on threatened and endangered species would be significantly reduced.

Specifically, this project provides the opportunity to increase Yakima River flows at Prosser Dam during critical low flow periods by up to 750 cubic feet per second. This approach will provide over twice as much flow augmentation as the previously approved electrification project and could completely eliminate the Yakima River diversion for the Kennewick Irrigation District. A new pump station and pressure pipeline from the Columbia River will be the cornerstone of a more salmonfriendly Kennewick Irrigation District.

This project is a winner for both fish and water users. It balances the need to improve habitat for threatened species while protecting water rights. Preliminary results from a lower reach habitat study indicate that these increased flows would greatly help salmon and bull trout. In addition, this proposal would provide substantial water quality improvements in the Yakima River.

It is important to note that a change in the diversion for the Kennewick Irrigation District from the Yakima River to the Columbia River will completely change the current operational philosophy for the district. It will evolve from a relatively simple gravity system to one of significant complexity involving a major pump station and pressure pipeline to the major feeder canals. This remodeling will have a significant impact on the existing system and its users during construction, start-up and transition. That is why it is essential for the Kennewick Irrigation District to be in a position to develop these facilities in the way that best fits its current and future operational goals and causes the least disruption to district water users. That is why this legislation requires the Bureau of Reclamation to give the Kennewick Irrigation District substantial control over the planning and design work in this study with the Bureau having the final approval. This approach will ensure continued involvement and support which is vital to the success of this project.

I might add, Mr. Speaker, that this bill has been going through the process on both the Republican and Democrat side. When you talk about water issues in the Pacific Northwest, you tend to polarize people in different approaches.

This bill and what it tries to do is unique in that it has broad support from virtually everybody involved in water issues in the Northwest. From the Bureau of Reclamation to the American Rivers, National Fisheries, U.S. Fish and Wildlife, the Yakima Nation, the Department of Ecology within Washington State, the Northwest Power Planning Council, the Washington State Water Resources Council, the Yakima Basin Joint Board of Irrigation. If we put all of these people together in a room on any other water issues, we would be bound to have polarization. But on this one because it does have the potential of augmenting flows in a river that needs more flows and saving salmon, to me it seems it is the right thing to do.

I urge my colleagues to support this. I want to thank the Committee on Resources for their work and support in getting this bill out of committee in a unanimous, bipartisan way.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Špeaker, the gentleman from Washington I think has properly explained the legislation and the purposes of the legislation and the intent with which it is offered before the House. I do not disagree with that. I, however, will ask Members to vote against this legislation, especially Members of our caucus. I do so not because of the content of the bill but because of the manner in which Democratic Members of the committee and of our caucus have been treated in this committee in terms of the scheduling of legislation that has been offered by Democratic Members of the House. Much of that legislation is essentially noncontroversial but important in those particular districts, and we continue to have a gross disparity both in the treatment in the committee and on the floor of the House.

As I have noticed and the leadership has agreed to, we would ask Members to vote against this legislation until such time as we can get a fairer treatment of pending legislation as we come to the closing days of this session. We have asked continuously, we have sent numerous letters to the chairman asking for hearings on various pieces of legislation. Those hearings have not been granted. Again many of those bills are noncontroversial. Then we are told because they do not have hearings, they cannot come to the floor. Yet we constantly are considering bills from the other side, without hearings on the floor, many of which have not even been heard in the committee.

Last week, 18 Republican bills were scheduled and no House bills, one Senate Democratic bill was scheduled and dealt with. Tomorrow there are scheduled to be 15 Republican bills and six Democratic bills. It is very clear that if we continue this, there will be many members of the Democratic Caucus who have matters pending before the committee and the House that simply will not be considered before the clock runs out. I think we can do better. We have done better in past sessions of the Congress. I would encourage at least the members of our caucus to vote against the consideration of this and the next bill on the suspension calendar later today when we have a recorded vote on this matter.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I find it interesting that the gentleman from California urges his Members to vote against a bill which he considers to be a good bill simply because he disagrees with the procedure and the proportion of bills that have been presented on the floor from each party. He calls that a gross disparity. Yesterday, there were five bills considered on this floor that were Republican bills out of the Committee on Resources and four bills that were Democratic bills that were considered on this floor out of the Committee on Resources.

I would point out to the gentleman from California that in this Congress, we have had more than twice as many Democratic bills on this floor under the suspension rule as there were the last time his party controlled this body. More than twice as many. I think that we have been more than fair with the minority party under the suspension rule and the number of bills that come out. In fact, the gentleman recognizes that tomorrow over a third of the bills on the agenda in the Committee on Resources are from the minority party. So while the gentleman raises an issue which is always of concern to the minority party, and rightfully of concern to the minority party, I think he makes a fallacy in his argument that we have not been fair to the minority party. I wish he would reconsider and look at the merits of the bills rather than the procedures by which they get here.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Just in quick response, I would say that obviously the number of suspension bills is greater because this committee really only does business by suspension and that is obviously their prerogative. I would also say that I appreciate yesterday's schedule. That was negotiated. That was negotiated with notice. However, amendments were offered without notice. Last week it was 16-zip. Obviously we continue to fall further and further behind. I appreciate it is a third of the bills and the gentleman is contending that is fair. We represent half of the Congress, half of the people in the Nation, and we are put in the position now as this session comes to a close as I said before that many members of this caucus had bills that were important to them and their district, not of great controversy, not of great ideological battle and to date we have not been able to get those matters put before the House.

I would again urge the members of our caucus to oppose the two bills offered by the Committee on Resources. This does not go to other matters on the suspension calendar, because that is the purview of those committees. But with respect to these two matters from the Committee on Resources, I would urge a no vote so that we can get consideration of the members of the caucus's bills that are still pending.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Again I would point out, the gentleman raises an issue which ought to always be of concern from the minority side of the aisle, whoever is in the minority. But again I would point out that bills under consideration by this Congress, 23.4 percent have been Democratic bills. The last time his party controlled this body, 11.8 percent of the bills were Republican bills. I think that we have been more than fair. He said that last week there were 16 bills and none of them were Democratic. I would remind the Member that one of them was from the minority leader in the Senate, Senator DASCHLE. I believe that that is a member of his party.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. If the gentleman will yield, I said that that bill had been dealt with, a Senate bill, a Democratic bill. That does not solve the problem for Members of the House.

□ 1100

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I would just point out that these bills ought to be based on their merits. This is a good bill. The gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) has recognized that this is a good bill, and we ought to consider it and not vote against it simply because he does not like the procedure by which the bills have come to the floor.

Last week we have, as I understand it. in the Committee on Resources asked the minority party for bills they would like to have put on the agenda, no bills were proposed from the minority party to put on the agenda, and, consequently, none were.

As I said earlier, we have five Republican bills tomorrow. A third of the bills that are on the agenda are Democratic bills, and I am glad that the gentleman forwarded those to us so we could consider them tomorrow, and they will be considered in a fair and appropriate manner.

Mr. Speaker, we will not reject them simply because they come from the minority party. We will look at them on the merits of the bill itself, so I would urge the Members not to get into this debate of killing bills simply because they are from one party or the other, but look at the bills on the merits of the bills.

I do not think the people of this country expect us to get into these types of partisan debates about whose bill it is. I expect that they expect us to look at the merits of the legislation and pass them if they are good bills, and this is a good bill, as admitted by the gentleman from California.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes to continue this dialogue.

Mr. Speaker, I would say that the speech that the gentleman just gave with respect to this bill and other bills about being considered on the merit is the reason we are asking Members to vote against these bills so that the Democratic Members can have their bills heard on the merits, marked up on the merits and voted up or down on the merits in the full House, that has not happened.

The gentleman can go on and on about 23 percent of the bills. The fact of the matter is we are half of the Congress, and there is a good number of Democratic bills that are languishing for no other reason than I guess that they are Democratic bills. I do not know how that determination is made, but obviously they have not been allowed to be considered on the merits.

Mr. Speaker, I would hope the Members would understand that there is very little else we can do other than to refuse to pass these bills until we get that kind of consideration to protect the rights of the minority Members of the House of Representatives, and I think it is important that we do that.

I think those Members were elected by the same number of people that others were elected by and their bills ought to be considered on the merit. Again, these are not great controversial bills. These are bills that are important to local districts, just as the ones before us today are, but they have not been accorded the same rights and privileges and, therefore, I would ask the members of the caucus and others, if they would like, to join us to vote against these two bills from the Committee on Resources.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that I am pleased to listen to the gentleman from California (Mr. George Miller) and his change of heart from being 6 years in the minority, because it did not appear this way when he was in the majority, as I mentioned earlier, and I will continue to mention, that more than twice as many bills of the minority have come up under this Congress than came up the last time his body controlled the House of Representatives.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS).

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON) for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I find this argument rather interesting, and I understand inside-the-Beltway politics, as far as getting your time on the floor, but on this bill particularly, I just want to make a point to my friend, the gentleman from California (Mr. George Miller), because I know that he worked very hard on the original bill when it passed back in 1993 and 1994, and in my time in this Congress, I have heard the gentleman from California say it once and I probably dare to say I heard him say it a million times that we need to save the salmon, we cannot wait, we have to do it, time is of the essence on all of these issues.

Mr. Speaker, here we have a situation where we clearly have a potential answer, and the remark I would say is that I do not think the salmon really care about inside-the-Beltway politics, but I do know that this issue has to be dealt with, and this is a proper way to deal with it.

So notwithstanding the request on the other side, I would urge my colleagues to support this bill, because on its merits, from the standpoint of the environment, from the standpoint of saving fish, from the standpoint of expanding water quality, this meets to the "T" with strong bipartisan support.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to say that this is a good piece of legislation, and I think both sides recognize that this is a good piece of legislation. We can wrap all the rhetoric around this that we would like, we need to pass this bill and do what we can to help save the salmon. I hope the Members will support this.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LINDER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. SIMPSON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3986, as amended.

The question was taken.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING NEED FOR CATALOGING AND MAINTAINING PUBLIC MEMO-RIALS COMMEMORATING MILI-TARY CONFLICTS AND SERVICE OF INDIVIDUALS IN ARMED FORCES

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 345) expressing the sense of the Congress regarding the need for cataloging and maintaining public memorials commemorating military conflicts of the United States and the service of individuals in the Armed Forces.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. CON. RES. 345

Whereas there are many thousands of public memorials scattered throughout the United States and abroad that commemorate military conflicts of the United States and the service of individuals in the Armed Forces;

Whereas these memorials have never been comprehensively cataloged;

Whereas many of these memorials suffer from neglect and disrepair, and many have been relocated or stored in facilities where they are unavailable to the public and subject to further neglect and damage;

Whereas there exists a need to collect and centralize information regarding the location, status, and description of these memorials:

Whereas the Federal Government maintains information on memorials only if they are Federally funded; and

Whereas Remembering Veterans Who Earned Their Stripes (a nonprofit corporation established as RVETS, Inc. under the laws of the State of Nevada) has undertaken a self-funded program to catalogue the memorials located in the United States that commemorate military conflicts of the United States and the service of individuals in the Armed Forces, and has already obtained information on more than 7,000 memorials in 50 States: Now, therefore, be it morials in 50 States: Now, therefore, be it Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That it is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the people of the United States owe a debt of gratitude to veterans for their sacrifices in defending the Nation during times of war and peace;

(2) public memorials that commemorate military conflicts of the United States and the service of individuals in the Armed Forces should be maintained in good condition, so that future generations may know of the burdens borne by these individuals;

(3) Federal, State, and local agencies responsible for the construction and maintenance of these memorials should cooperate in cataloging these memorials and providing the resulting information to the Department of the Interior; and

(4) the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Director of the National Park Service, should—

(A) collect and maintain information on public memorials that commemorate military conflicts of the United States and the service of individuals in the Armed Forces;

(B) coordinate efforts at collecting and maintaining this information with similar efforts by other entities, such as Remembering Veterans Who Earned Their Stripes (a nonprofit corporation established as RVETS, Inc. under the laws of the State of Nevada); and

(C) make this information available to the public.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN) and the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN).

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

H. Con. Res. 345 introduced by the gentleman rom California (Mr. ROGAN) addresses the need for a cataloged list of the many different public war memorials of the United States. Thousands of public memorials dealing with the United States' involvement in military conflicts exist throughout the world. However, there is no index or record as to their location nor is there a cataloged assessment as to their condition

Unfortunately, many of these memorials suffer from neglect, disrepair or have been relocated or stored in facilities where they are not accessible to the public.

Currently, the Federal Government only keeps track of those memorials that are federally funded; however, nonprofit organizations such as Remembering Veterans Who Earned Their Stripes have undertaken self-funded programs in an attempt to catalog these memorials.

H. Con. Res. 345 urges the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the National Park Service, to collect and maintain information on public memorials commemorating military conflicts of the United States. The resolution also urges a coordinated effort between the Federal Government and other organizations like Remembering Veterans Who Earned Their Stripes and collecting and maintaining this information which would then be available to the public.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation is ready to move forward, and I urge my colleagues to support H. Con. Res. 345.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROGAN) a Member who is the author of this legislation.

Mr. ROGAN. Mr. Speaker, first I want to thank my dear friend, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN), the distinguished chairman, for yielding the time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 345, which addresses the need to create a cataloged list of the thousands of public war memorials in the United States. Mr. Speaker, this resolution is the product of over a decadelong effort by Vietnam War veteran Brian Rooney and the nonprofit organization he founded, Remembering Veterans Who Earned Their Stripes, otherwise known as RVETS based in North Ridge, California.

Mr. Rooney believed that war memorials preserve the memories of our veteran's sacrifices and serve as a reminder of America's history. He discovered that today there is no detailed index or record of the thousands of public memorials dedicated to America's involvement in military conflicts, more importantly, dedicated to those who gave their lives for freedom.

Mr. Rooney investigated conditions for years. He found that these memorials suffer from neglect, disrepair and have been relocated or stored in facilities where they are not accessible to the public. Currently, the Federal Government monitors only those memorials that are federally funded. We have relied on the hard work of individuals like Mr. Rooney who have conducted this arduous task.

H. Con. Res. 345 urges the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the National Park Service, to collect and maintain information on public memorials commemorating military conflicts of the United States.

It urges a coordinated effort between the Federal Government and other entities like RVETS in collecting and maintaining this information which would then be made available to the public. RVETS already has cataloged over 7,000 monuments. They already have done most of the work needed to establish the database.

H. Con. Res. 345 is a bipartisan effort to honor our veterans. I want to thank Brian Rooney for his dedication not just to the country as a Vietnam war veteran, but for the decade he has spent conducting this search so that veterans could be honored.

I understand, Mr. Speaker, that this morning there has been some partisan bickering going on with respect to some of these resolutions, but I would just urge all of my colleagues to put that aside today so that we can appropriately honor veterans who have served our country and who have given their life and service for our country, and vote to support this bipartisan resolution

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), the chairman of the Committee on International Relations

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise today in support of H. Con. Res. 345, and I urge its adoption by the House, and I commend the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN) and the gentleman from California (Mr. ROGAN) for helping to bring this matter to the floor at this time.

This legislation which urges the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Park Service, to gather and maintain information on public memorials commemorating U.S. military conflicts and to make that information available to the public, which will be very useful to the entire nation. It further urges that the Federal Government cooperate with private entities in accomplishing that important goal.

Mr. Speaker, there are literally hundreds, maybe thousands, of memorials and monuments dedicated to our fighting men and women of our Nation's military. These include monuments commissioned and dedicated by the Federal Government, State governments and various localities. Over time, their number has grown to the point where it has become difficult to keep track of all of the monuments that are now in existence.

This legislation will help simplify matters by requesting the Interior Department to initiate action to collect and disseminate information, a step they have undertaken on all of these monuments. The end result will be helpful to both tourists and researchers alike, but particularly to all of our veterans organizations.

Mr. Speaker, I urge our colleagues to lend this bill their full support, and I thank the gentleman for yielding the time to me.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HANSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 345.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONCERNING THE EMANCIPATION OF IRANIAN BAHA'I COMMUNITY

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 257) concerning the emancipation of the Iranian Baha'i community.

H. CON. RES. 257

Whereas in 1982, 1984, 1988, 1990, 1992, 1994, and 1996, Congress, by concurrent resolution, declared that it holds the Government of Iran responsible for upholding the rights of all its nationals, including members of the Baha'i Faith, Iran's largest religious minority;

Whereas Congress has deplored the Government of Iran's religious persecution of the Baha'i community in such resolutions and in numerous other appeals, and has condemned Iran's execution of more than 200 Baha'is and the imprisonment of thousands of others solely on account of their religious beliefs;

Whereas in July 1998 a Baha'i, Mr. Ruhollah Rowhani, was executed by hanging in Mashhad after being held in solitary confinement for 9 months on the charge of converting a Muslim woman to the Baha'i Faith, a charge the woman herself refuted:

Whereas 2 Baha'is remain on death row in Iran, 2 on charges on apostasy, and 10 others are serving prison terms on charges arising solely from their religious beliefs or activities;

Whereas the Government of Iran continues to deny individual Baha'is access to higher education and government employment and denies recognition and religious rights to the Baha'i community, according to the policy set forth in a confidential Iranian Government document which was revealed by the United Nations Commission on Human Rights in 1993;

Whereas Baha'is have been banned from teaching and studying at Iranian universities since the Islamic Revolution and therefore created the Baha'i Institute of Higher Education, or Baha'i Open University, to provide educational opportunities to Baha'i youth using volunteer faculty and a network of classrooms, libraries, and laboratories in private homes and buildings throughout Iran;

Whereas in September and October 1998, Iranian authorities arrested 36 faculty members of the Open University, 4 of whom have been given prison sentences ranging between 3 to 10 years, even though the law makes no mention of religious instruction within one's own religious community as being an illegal activity;

Whereas Iranian intelligence officers looted classroom equipment, textbooks, computers, and other personal property from 532 Baha'i homes in an attempt to close down the Open University;

Whereas all Baha'i community properties in Iran have been confiscated by the government, and Iranian Baha'is are not permitted to elect their leaders, organize as a community, operate religious schools, or conduct other religious community activities guaranteed by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights;

Whereas on February 22, 1993, the United Nations Commission on Human Rights published a formerly confidential Iranian government document that constitutes a blueprint for the destruction of the Baha'i community and reveals that these repressive actions are the result of a deliberate policy designed and approved by the highest officials of the Government of Iran; and

Whereas in 1998 the United Nations Special Representative for Human Rights, Maurice Copithorne, was denied entry into Iran: Now, therefore he it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That Congress—

(1) continues to hold the Government of Iran responsible for upholding the rights of all its nationals, including members of the Baha'i community, in a manner consistent with Iran's obligations under the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and other international agreements guaranteeing the civil and political rights of its citizens;

(2) condemns the repressive anti-Baha'i policies and actions of the Government of Iran, including the denial of legal recognition to the Baha'i community and the basic rights to organize, elect its leaders, educate its youth, and conduct the normal activities of a law-abiding religious community;

(3) expresses concern that individual Baha'is continue to suffer from severely repressive and discriminatory government actions, including executions and death sentences, solely on account of their religion:

(4) urges the Government of Iran to permit Baha'i students to attend Iranian universities and Baha'i faculty to teach at Iranian universities, to return the property confiscated from the Baha'i Open University, to free the imprisoned faculty members of the Open University, and to permit the Open University to continue to function;

(5) urges the Government of Iran to implement fully the conclusions and recommendations on the emancipation of the Iranian Baha'i community made by the United Nations Special Rapporteur on Religious Intolerance, Professor Abdelfattah Amor, in his report of March 1996 to the United Nations Commission of Human Rights;

(6) urges the Government of Iran to extend to the Baha'i community the rights guaranteed by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the international covenants of human rights, including the freedom of thought, conscience, and religion, and equal protection of the law; and

(7) calls upon the President to continue—

(A) to assert the United States Government's concern regarding Iran's violations of the rights of its citizens, including members of the Baha'i community, along with expressions of its concern regarding the Iranian

Government's support for international terrorism and its efforts to acquire weapons of mass destruction:

(B) to emphasize that the United States regards the human rights practices of the Government of Iran, particularly its treatment of the Baha'i community and other religious minorities, as a significant factor in the development of the United States Government's relations with the Government of Iran:

(C) to emphasize the need for the United Nations Special Representative for Human Rights to be granted permission to enter Iran;

(D) to urge the Government of Iran to emancipate the Baha'i community by granting those rights guaranteed by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the international covenants on human rights; and

(E) to encourage other governments to continue to appeal to the Government of Iran, and to cooperate with other governments and international organizations, including the United Nations and its agencies, in efforts to protect the religious rights of the Baha'is and other minorities through joint appeals to the Government of Iran and through other appropriate actions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. HILLIARD) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Con. Res. 257.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, today we are considering a resolution to call once again for the emancipation of the Iranian Baha'i community.

□ 1115

We have passed similar resolutions seven times since 1982, yet the Baha'is in that country continue to be deprived of their basic rights by their government, by the Iranian government. Despite the fact that they are committed to nonviolence, tolerance and loyalty to government, the Baha'is continue to suffer deprivations and harassment from the fanatical elements of Iranian society, ranging from local clergy and their uneducated followers to highly placed government officials. Eleven Baha'is continue to languish in Iranian prisons; arrested, tried and sentenced as a result of their personal religious beliefs and peaceful religious activity.

Baha'i religious gatherings and administrative institutions were banned in 1983. A 1991 government document calls for the continued obstruction of the economic and social development of the Baha'i community. The Iranian constitution recognizes only four religions: Islam, Christianity, Judaism, and Zoroastrianism; and official rhetoric continues to name those as the only religions whose members may enjoy full rights.

Baha'is continue to be denied government employment, denied university employment, denied legitimately earned pensions, denied admission to Iranian universities, denied access to the legal system, denied access to decent places to bury their dead, and a host of other civil liberties that we in our Nation have come to take for granted as basic elements of a free and just society.

The election of President Khatami in Iran and the subsequent relaxation of the clerical dictatorship have brought hope that the rule of law will eventually prevail in that nation, and that full rights will be granted to all of its citizens, including the Baha'is. We have seen some improvement in the treatment of individual Baha'is. In the last 2 years, Baha'is have been granted passports for travel abroad more frequently and some have been granted business licenses again. A significant concession to the Baha'is was a recent modification of the rules of registration of marriages that now omits references to religion, allowing Baha'is to register marriages and legitimize their children for the first time in many vears.

Those steps are significant and they should be acknowledged as signs of promise for full emancipation to come in the future. Yet those actions have been taken silently and come far short of granting Baha'is the recognition under the constitution, the Iranian constitution, that would improve their situation and protect them from fanaticism.

We look to President Khatami to stand behind his promise of Iran for all Iranians and to take steps to extend the protection of his constitution to the Baha'is by granting those rights guaranteed by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and the International Covenants on Human Rights. We cannot remain silent when a community of 300,000 people continues to suffer the effects of persecution and deprivation while their government proclaims its support of human rights for all.

The passage of this resolution will voice once again that the United States finds the situation of the Baha'is in Iran intolerable and will not rest until that community wins full and complete emancipation.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to vote for H. Con. Res. 257.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this resolution. Mr. Speaker, I would first like to commend the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER) for introducing this resolution and thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. GIL-MAN) for moving it through the legislative process.

This important resolution concerns the continued persecution of the Baha'i community in Iran.

The resolution states that the Congress continues to hold the government of Iran responsible for upholding the rights of all its nationals, including members of the Baha'i community.

The resolution also condemns the repressive anti-Baha'i policies and actions of the government of Iran. These policies include, first, the denial of legal recognition of the Baha'i community; preventing the community from organizing and electing its leaders; stopping the education of Baha'i youth; and stopping the Baha'is from conducting the normal activities of a lawabiding religious community.

The Porter resolution also urges the government of Iran to permit Baha'i students to attend Iranian universities and to permit the Baha'i Open University to reopen.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, the resolution calls on President Clinton to continue to make Iran's treatment of the Baha'i community a significant factor in the development of U.S. relations with Iran; to emphasize the need for the U.N. Special Representative for Human Rights to be allowed to enter Iran, and to urge the government of Iran to emancipate the Baha'i community; and finally, to encourage other governments to appeal to Iran to protect the rights of Baha'is.

Mr. Speaker, the Baha'is in Iran have been persecuted far too long. Congress has gone on record since the early 1980s against harsh Iranian treatment of the Baha'is, and it is important that we do so again. Iran's leaders must understand that their anti-Baha'i policies are being closely watched by the international community. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H. Con. Res. 257.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN).

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Con. Res. 257, concerning the emancipation of the Iranian Baha'i community. Mr. Speaker, the Baha'i faith is the most recent world religion. Its founder, a Persian nobleman, declared his mission in 1863, proclaiming he was the promised one of all religions who would usher in a new age of peace for all mankind. Among Bahaullah's most fundamental teachings are oneness of God, oneness of the foundation of all religions, oneness of mankind and all peoples are equal in the sight of God.

The Baha'i faith was established in my district, the U.S. Virgin Islands, in 1954, with the settlement of pioneers on St. Thomas. The first local spiritual assembly of the Baha'i of St. Thomas was incorporated in 1965. The Baha'i of the Virgin Islands have been and are active in, among other things, providing education and enrichment programs for young children and adults, working with the Interfaith Coalitions on St. Thomas and St. Croix, as well as assisting in hurricane recovery efforts.

Mr. Speaker, the Baha'i community of the Virgin Islands strongly supports House Concurrent Resolution 257 because it would condemn the repressive anti-Baha'i policies and actions of the government of Iran, and expresses concern that individual Baha'i continue to suffer from severely repressive and discriminatory government actions, including executions and death sentences, solely on account of their religion.

I thank my colleagues for supporting this important resolution.

Mr. PÓRTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to strongly support H. Con. Res. 257, concerning the emancipation of the Iranian Baha'i community.

Thousands of human rights abuses take place around the world on a daily basis. Almost all go unnoticed by the U.S. media. The Baha'is of Iran are one such group.

Many in Congress have worked closely with the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States to bring attention to this situation. The Baha'i faith was founded in what was Persia in the 1840's and has grown to the largest religious minority in Iran. In the United States today, there are approximately 300,000 Baha'is. More than 90 percent are native born, and many of the remainder are refugees from Iran who have fled persecution.

of these One refugees is Kazemzadeh, who for over 30 years was the elected leader of the Baha'is in the United States, until he stepped down 2 years ago. Dr. Kazemzadeh immigrated to the United States from Iran in the 1950's and became a professor of history at Yale University. He has devoted a great deal of his time and efforts to improving the condition of his fellow Baha'is in Iran. He has quietly, in his way, been a tremendously effective fighter for his fellow Baha'is and has clearly saved many Bahai lives and much Bahai suffering. I would like to specifically commend Dr. Kazemzadeh for his decades of work helping the Baha'is.

Baha'is have suffered persecution since their religion was founded, but the situation gravely worsened in the aftermath of the 1979 Islamic Revolution. Many of the leaders of the Baha'i community were jailed at that time and many were executed solely for their religious beliefs. The fact the Baha'i community has survived in Iran over the past 20 years is a testament to the Baha'i people and their commitment to their faith.

This adverse situation for the Baha'i community could be completely reversed by the Iranian Government at any time. The repression of the Baha'is is spearheaded by the religious government of Iran in the form of laws and regulations that explicitly deny Baha'i basic rights accorded to other citizens of Iran, including other religious minorities. Religious intolerance has caused the world's people untold suffering and its presence is felt across the entire world. But in Iran it is institutionalized and written in law. And it is not only discrimination. In Iran it can mean torture, imprisonment, and death.

H. Con. Res. 157, similar to ones passed in previous sessions of Congress, calls on the Government of Iran to emancipate the Baha'is and afford to them in practice rights which should be inalienable to any human being which they are being denied. Before this administration speaks about opening relations with Iran and the positive reforms which are supposed to be taking place in that country, the Baha'is must be granted the same rights and privileges as all other Iranian citizens.

I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) for his dedication to human rights and to the Baha'is and to the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), the gentleman from New Jersey (CHRIS SMITH) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for again playing a leading role in bringing this resolution to the floor. Each of them have been dedicated leaders for the basic human rights of every person on earth. One of the real privileges and honors of being a Member of this body has been to serve side by side and work for human rights with these outstanding leaders. I urge Members to support this resolution.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, the repression of the Baha'i community in Iran is one of the most egregious ongoing violations of human rights, and I am very pleased that we are calling attention to it today. I first want to commend the gentleman from New York, the Chairman of the International Relations Committee, (Mr. GILMAN) for his bringing this important resolution to the floor today.

I also want to thank particularly the sponsor of the bill, my good friend and colleagues from Illinois, Mr. PORTER. I have had the very good fortune over the past 20 years of working very closely with JOHN PORTER on a vast number of human rights issues, and I commend him for his outstanding dedication to human rights. He has unwaveringly worked to alleviate the suffering of people around the world, and thanks to his efforts we can honestly say that the world today is a better place.

Mr. Speaker, one of the human rights issues that JOHN PORTER has championed since the day he was elected to the Congress is the situation of the Baha'is in Iran. The Baha'i has suffered greatly since Iran's Revolution in 1979. The constitution created by the Ayatollahs establishes Islam as the state religion of Iran. It also recognizes Christians, Jews, and Zoroastrians—religions that flourished in Persia before Islam—as "protected religious minorities" which are afforded legal rights. Iran's 350,000 Baha'i however, are not afforded these protections, and they enjoy no legal rights whatsoever.

Mr. Speaker, this blatant, officially sanctioned discriminations has far-reaching and inhuman consequences. until recently, Baha'i marriages have not been recognized in Iran. As a consequence, no Baha'i couple married according to their own religious rites since 1980 are legally married in the eyes of the Iranian government. The women have been liable to charges of prostitution and Baha'i children are considered illegitimate. It is not legal for property to be passed within Baha'i families. Baha'is cannot enroll in universities. Baha'is cannot hold government jobs, and those that once did are denied state pensions.

Baha'is cannot sue in the country's court, and they are not legally recognized to defend themselves even if they are sued. Baha'is generally cannot receive Iranian passports, which note the holder's religion. Baha'is are denied the right to assembly or to maintain administrative institutions. Since the Baha'i faith has no clergy, the inability to meet and elect officers threaten the very existence of the faith in Iran. Baha'is cannot teach or practice their faith or maintain contacts with their coreligionists abroad.

Mr. Speaker, I could go on listing the abuses and atrocities to which the Baha'i in Iran are subjected, but these obvious violations of the most basic of human rights are a clear indication of the magnitude of the abuses that Baha'is in Iran face daily. I strongly support this resolution, which highlights these abuses and calls on the Government of Iran to emancipate the Baha'i community. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution, and I call on the Government of Iran to recognize the rights of Baha'is and afford them the rights by other Iranian citizens.

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LINDER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 257.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RWANDAN WAR CRIMES WITNESS REWARD PROGRAM AUTHORIZA-TION

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill (S. 2460) to authorize the payment of rewards to individuals furnishing information relating to persons subject to indictment for serious violations of international humanitarian law in Rwanda, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read as follows:

S. 2460

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. EXPANSION OF REWARDS PROGRAM TO INCLUDE RWANDA.

Section 102 of the Act of October 30, 1998 (Public Law 105–323) is amended—

(1) in the section heading, by inserting "or rwanda" after "yugoslavia";

(2) in subsection (a)(2), by inserting "OR THE INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL TRIBUNAL FOR RWANDA" after "YUGO-SLAVIA"; and

(3) in subsection (c)—

(A) by inserting "(1)" immediately after "REFERENCE.—"; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

"(2) For the purposes of subsection (a), the statute of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda means the statute contained in the annex to Security Council Resolution 955 of November 8, 1994.".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. HILLIARD) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on  $S.\ 2460.$

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, on April 6, 1994, a massive genocide began in Rwanda. There was no mention of Rwanda in any of our papers on that day, but soon horrific accounts of a bloody and well-planned massacre filled the pages of our newspapers. A month later, 200,000 were dead and more were being killed each and every day, but White House spokesmen still quibbled with reporters about the definition of genocide.

Too many of the masterminds of that ugly chapter in human history are still at large. An international criminal tribunal for Rwanda exists, but it has failed to bring to justice all of the leaders. Rwanda needs reconciliation, but without accountability there will be no reconciliation.

Congress extended the rewards program to those providing information leading to the indictment of Yugoslavian war criminals 2 years ago. It is now time to place a generous bounty in U.S. dollars on the heads of all who seek power through extermination. The killers have fled to Paris, to Brussels, to Kinshasa and else where. With the passage of this measure, their havens will be less safe and their sleep will be less easy.

Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to fully support this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker I rise in strong support of this bill. First of all, let me commend the chairman in moving this bill through the Committee on International Relations and bringing it to the floor today. Rwanda is one of the great humanitarian disasters of this century. An estimated 800,000 people were slaughtered there earlier this decade, and only because of their ethnic identity. Expanding the State Department's reward program to persons having information leading to the conviction of persons responsible for the atrocities in Rwanda will enhance the prospect for justice for the victims.

I commend Senator FEINGOLD for moving this bill forward in the other body, and I urge my colleagues to support Senate bill 2460.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN).

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from Alabama (Mr. HILLIARD) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the chairman and my colleague for rising to introduce this bill, S. 2460, which would authorize the payments of rewards to individuals furnishing information relating to persons subject to indictment for serious violations of international humanitarian law in Rwanda. I commend them both for presenting that bill today.

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 2460.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the Senate bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SUPPORT FOR OVERSEAS COOPERATIVE DEVELOPMENT ACT

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4673) to assist in the enhancement of the development and expansion of international economic assistance programs that utilize cooperatives and credit unions, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 4673

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE

This Act may be cited as the "Support for Overseas Cooperative Development Act". SEC. 2. FINDINGS

The Congress makes the following findings: (1) It is in the mutual economic interest of the United States and peoples in developing and transitional countries to promote cooperatives and credit unions.

(2) Self-help institutions, including cooperatives and credit unions, provide enhanced opportunities for people to participate directly in democratic decision-making for their economic and social benefit through ownership and control of business enterprises and through the mobilization of local capital and savings and such organizations should be fully utilized in fostering free market principles and the adoption of selfhelp approaches to development.

(3) The United States seeks to encourage broad-based economic and social development by creating and supporting—

(A) agricultural cooperatives that provide a means to lift low income farmers and rural people out of poverty and to better integrate them into national economies;

(B) credit union networks that serve people of limited means through safe savings and by extending credit to families and microenterprises;

(C) electric and telephone cooperatives that provide rural customers with power and telecommunications services essential to economic development;

(D) housing and community-based cooperatives that provide low income shelter and work opportunities for the urban poor; and

(E) mutual and cooperative insurance companies that provide risk protection for life and property to under-served populations often through group policies.

SEC. 3. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

(3) market-oriented and value-added activities with the potential to reach large numbers of low income people and help them enter into the mainstream economy;

(4) strengthening the participation of rural and urban poor to contribute to their country's economic development; and and urban poor to contribute to their country's economic development; and

(5) utilization of technical assistance and training to better serve the member-owners. (b) DEVELOPMENT PRIORITIES.—Section 111 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2151i) is amended by adding at the end the following: "In meeting the requirement of the preceding sentence, specific priority shall be given to the following:

"(1) AGRICULTURE.—Technical assistance to low income farmers who form and develop member-owned cooperatives for farm supplies, marketing and value-added processing.

"(2) FINANCIAL SYSTEMS.—The promotion of national credit union systems through credit union-to-credit union technical assistance that strengthens the ability of low income people and micro-entrepreneurs to save and to have access to credit for their own economic advancement.

"(3) INFRASTRUCTURE.—The establishment of rural electric and telecommunication cooperatives for universal access for rural people and villages that lack reliable electric and telecommunications services.

"(4) HOUSING AND COMMUNITY SERVICES.— The promotion of community-based cooperatives which provide employment opportunities and important services such as health clinics, self-help shelter, environmental improvements, group-owned businesses, and other activities."

SEC. 4. REPORT.

Not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator of the United States Agency for International Development, in consultation with the heads of other appropriate agencies, shall prepare and submit to Congress a report on the implementation of section 111 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2151i), as amended by section 3 of this Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. HILLIARD) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4673.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Nebraska?

There was no objection.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. BEREUTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member rises in support of H.R. 4673, the Support for Overseas Cooperative Development Act. This Member introduced H.R. 4673, along with the distinguished Member from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY), to recognize the importance of and the strengthened support for cooperatives as an international development tool.

This Member would also like to thank the distinguished gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. GEJDENSON), the ranking member of the Committee on International Relations; the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Asia and the Pacific; the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH); the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HALL); the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. GILLMOR); and the distinguished gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. BURR), for their cosponsorship of this measure.

□ 1130

Indeed, this measure is a bipartisan effort and it certainly enjoys bipartisan interest and support.

Finally and very importantly, this Member wants to thank the chairman of the Committee on International Relations, the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), for cooperating in the advancements of H.R. 4673 through the committee and for his support.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation enhances language currently provided in Section 111 of the Foreign Assistance Act which authorizes the use of cooperatives in international development programs.

Specifically, this bill will give priority to funding overseas cooperatives working in the following areas: agriculture, financial systems, rural electric and telecommunications infrastructure, housing, and health. Importantly, H.R. 4673 does not provide for additional appropriations. While the administration does not routinely take positions on such matters, the Agency for International Development has not raised any objections to H.R. 4673 and I believe it is quite supportive and sympathetic.

Mr. Speaker, as we all know, cooperatives are voluntary organizations formed to share the mutual economic and self-help interests of their members. In the United States, cooperatives have existed, of course, for many years and in many forms, including agriculturally based cooperatives, electrical cooperatives, and credit unions. The common thread among all cooperatives is that they allow their members who, for a variety of reasons, might not otherwise be served by traditional institutions, to mobilize resources available to them, and to reap the benefits of association.

Since the 1960s, overseas cooperative projects have proven successful in providing assistance and compassionate assistance, I might emphasize, to lowincome people in developing and transitional countries. Today, people in 60 countries are benefiting from U.S. cooperatives working abroad through projects which can be completed at very little cost to U.S. taxpayers. The low costs are possible because the money used for the projects is spent on technical and managerial expertise, not on extensive bureaucracy and direct foreign assistance payments.

Mr. Speaker, the benefits of cooperatives as a development tool are numerous. This Member would like to mention examples of democratic and economic results from the fostering of cooperatives working overseas.

Building economic infrastructure is a key role of overseas development cooperatives. Through representatives from the U.S. cooperatives, people who have traditionally been underserved in their countries, especially in rural areas and especially women, receive technical training never before available to them. Such training in accounting, marketing, entrepreneurialship and strategic planning prepares them to effectively compete for the first time in their country's economy.

For example, agricultural cooperatives in El Salvador helped to rebuild the once war-ravaged country by providing a venue for farmers to pool their scarce resources and scarce experience in capitalism so that they can market and sell the fruits and vegetables they grow.

In rural Macedonia, a small country whose neighbors are immersed in ethnic conflict, credit unions provide their members a way to build lines of credit and savings for the future.

In rural Bangladesh during the early 1990s, cooperative members bought equipment for an electrification project which now supplies 5 million people with electrical power. Cooperatives lay the foundation then for future economic stability.

Mr. Speaker, when reviewing the impact of overseas cooperatives, one simply cannot ignore the impact they have had in assisting people in transitional countries to build democratic habits and traditions. In supporting cooperatives, people who have had no previous experience with democracy create an opportunity to routinely vote for leadership, to set goals, to write policies and to implement those policies. Cooperative members learn to expect results from their decisions and that their decisions can and do, in fact, have an impact on their lives.

In conclusion, this Member would like to thank the Overseas Cooperative Development Council, the OCDC, for its contributions to this measure. The OCDC represents eight cooperative development organizations which have been very active in building cooperatives worldwide. The Credit Union National Association, CUNA, has been very supportive of this legislation and, as a member of the World Council on Credit Unions, has contributed technical assistance to aid the growth of credit unions in key transitional countries such as the former Yugoslav, Republic of Macedonia and Bolivia.

Again, Mr. Speaker, overseas cooperative projects are simply a good investment towards building good economic stability and democratic habits in developing countries, and this Member urges his colleagues in this body to support H.R. 4673.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this bill. I would first like to commend the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. Bereuter), the subcommittee chairman, for introducing this important piece of legislation, and the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), the chairman of the committee, for moving it through the legislative process so quickly.

Mr. Speaker, credit unions and cooperatives give people more opportunity to help themselves. By promoting business enterprises and financial institutions which operate through a democratic decisionmaking process, the Congress can play a critical role in encouraging broad-based economic and social development, both at home and abroad.

The legislation before the House today will ensure that our foreign aid money adequately promotes credit unions and cooperatives overseas. The legislation states that priority must be given first to technical assistance to local-income farmers who farm, who form and develop cooperatives for farm supplies, marketing and value-added processing; the promotion of national credit union systems that strengthen the ability of low-income people and small businesses to have access to credit. It also establishes a rural electric and telecommunications cooperative for universal access for rural people and villages; and, finally, the promotion of community-based cooperatives which provide employment opportunities and other important services.

Also, Mr. Speaker, the legislation requires the Agency for International Development to report to Congress every 6 months on the implementation of this important program.

Mr. Speaker, cooperatives and credit unions allow communities to pool their financial resources, spread risk, and keep money in local circulation for the economic well-being of the constituency and localities they serve. This legislation, by promoting cooperatives and credit unions overseas, will ensure that Americans get the most bang for their buck in foreign aid money.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 4673.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I want to again express my appreciation to the distinguished gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) for his outstanding cooperation, his assistance, and for being a full partner in drafting this legislation. I appreciate his effort. With that said, I urge support of the resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 4673, a bill introduced by our Committee Members, Mr. BEREUTER, the gentleman from Nebraska, and cosponsored by Mr. POMEROY, the gentleman from North Dakota, would serve to enhance and expand international economic assistance programs that utilize cooperatives and credit unions. This bill encourages the formation of credit unions and grassroots financial institutions as a way to promote democratic decision-making while concurrently fostering free market principles and self-help approaches to development in some of the world's poorest and neediest countries.

The bill's purpose is multi-faceted. It encourages the creation of agricultural and urban cooperatives in the electrical, telecommunications, and housing fields as well as the establishment of base-level credit unions. By doing so, the bill also promotes the adoption of international cooperative principles and practices in our foreign assistance programs and encourages the incorporation of marketoriented principles into these programs. By ensuring that small businessmen and women as well as small-scale farmers have access to credit, and also a stake in their own financial institutions, the United States will foster the key values of self-reliance, community participation, and democratic decision-making in programs that directly affect their lives.

The bill amends Section 111 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the section of the Act that concerns the development and promotion of cooperatives, by adding specific language that promotes agricultural cooperatives, the establishment of credit unions and financial systems, and the creation of rural electric and telecommunications and housing cooperatives. The bill lists these increasingly critical areas of development as priorities for foreign assistance programs and requires the Administrator of the Agency for International Development to prepare and submit a report to the Congress on the implementation of Section 111 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 as amended.

I commend my colleagues for drafting this bill that also strengthens the intent and spirit of H.R. 1143, the Microenterprise for Self-Reliance Act of 1999 that the International Relations Committee reported and the House passed last year. Although strides have been made to increase access to credit for those who need it most, it is clear to me that much more needs to be done to enhance micro credit institutions and credit unions as well as agricultural cooperatives in the developing world to ensure that sound fiscal practices are applied in both rural and urban areas of the world's poorest countries.

I commend the bill's sponsors for their efforts to promote the formation of more and better managed cooperatives as well as the establishment of credit unions that are managed by the poor themselves to address agricultural, housing, and health care needs.

Accordingly, I urge passage of this worthy measure.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LINDER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4673.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FRANK R. LAUTENBERG POST OFFICE AND COURTHOUSE

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4975) to designate the post office and courthouse located at 2 Federal Square, Newark, New Jersey, as the "Frank R. Lautenberg Post Office and Courthouse".

H.R. 4975

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION OF FRANK R. LAUTENBERG POST OFFICE AND COURTHOUSE.

The post office and courthouse located at 2 Federal Square, Newark, New Jersey, shall be known and designated as the "Frank R. Lautenberg Post Office and Courthouse". SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the post office and courthouse referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the Frank R. Lautenberg Post Office and Courthouse.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4975.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us, H.R. 4975, was introduced by our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. LoBiondo) and was originally cosponsored by all members of the House delegation of the State of New Jersey on July 26, this year. This legislation designates the Post Office and courthouse located at 2 Federal Square in Newark, New Jersey as the FRANK R. LAUTENBERG Post Office and Courthouse.

This legislation was referred to the House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure. The committee then discharged the bill and it was subsequently rereferred to the House Committee on Government Reform. The building located at 2 Federal Square in Newark, New Jersey is wholly owned by the United States Postal Service.

The Senator from New Jersey after whom the building will be named under this legislation was born in Paterson, New Jersey in 1924, the son of an immigrant silk mill worker. He graduated from Nutley High School in Nutley, New Jersey in 1941 and served with distinction in the United States Army Signal Corps from 1942 until 1946. Mr. LAUTENBERG received his B.S. degree from Columbia University School of Business in New York in 1949. He served as commissioner of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey from 1978 to 1982 for a 6-year term. He was subsequently appointed by the governor to complete the unexpired term of Senator Brady and was reelected in 1988 and 1994 for the term ending January 3,

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation to name a postal facility in Newark, New Jersey after our col-league in the other House, Senator LAUTENBERG.

I want to just reference his work in the United States Senate since 1982 on a whole range of items, but I want to particularly point out and commend to all of my colleagues his work in the area of education, his sponsorship of the $1,500 HOPE scholarship credit, and his support for the largest increase in Pell grant assistance in the history of the Pell grant program. He has been a strong supporter of environmental legislation and other very important pieces of legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is entirely appropriate to join my colleague from the great State of Georgia in commending to the House this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. LoBiondo).

Mr. LoBIONDO. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding to me, and I rise in very strong support of this legislation.

Senator LAUTENBERG has been a great ally and friend to the citizens of New Jersey, and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE), and I all join in urging this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to come before the House today in support of H.R. 4975, a bill designating the Post Office and Courthouse at 2 Federal Square in Newark, New Jersey the "Frank R. Lautenberg Post Office and Courthouse."

As many of you may know, Senator LAUTEN-BERG is retiring at the end of this year after 18 years of distinguished service in the United States Senate on behalf of the state and the citizens of New Jersey.

Since I came to Congress in 1995, I have had the pleasure of working with Senator LAU-TENBERG on several occasions. We have been able to work together in a bipartisan fashion on many issues of importance to my districtsuch as aviation funding, beach replenishment projects, protecting the interests of the coast guard and his work on behalf of the Coastal Heritage Trail. These are just some of the issues that we have been able to roll-up our sleeves on and make a meaningful difference that will benefit the lives of those who live in South Jersey.

I would like to pay special attention to the Senator's work on protecting the New Jersey shore from erosion and the ocean water from contamination. As the Representative of the Second District in New Jersev, which has hundreds of miles of shoreline, protecting the shore is one of my highest legislative prior-

Recently, I had the opportunity to join with the Senator and the Mayor of Atlantic City, James Whelan, in urging the Senate to pass legislation that would require the EPA to use the latest technology available to sample and test ocean water at our beaches to ensure the public's health. I cosponsored and voted in favor of companion legislation, which passed the House in April of last year.

In fact, there hasn't been an issue that the Senator and I have worked together on since 1995 that we haven't achieved results. We have been able to come together on numerous occasions to protect the interests of South Jersey residents. Although the Senator and I don't necessarily agree on every issue, I agree that naming the post office and courthouse in Newark after Senator LAUTENBERG is an excellent way to pay tribute to him on the eve of his retirement from public service.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 4975 has gained the support of the entire New Jersey Congressional delegation, who have come together in a bipartisan fashion to support this bill and honor a distinguished public servant for the state of New Jersey. I would also like to thank the Majority Leader, Mr. ARMEY, for bringing this legislation before the full House today for consideration and my colleague Mr. PAYNE.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE).

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman from Pennsylvania and the gentleman from Georgia for allowing me to have a few words to say on H.R. 4975, the Frank R. Lautenberg Post Office and Courthouse designation

As we know, this is a very important and proud day for us in New Jersey and, Mr. Speaker, I am proud to be a sponsor of the bill to name the post office in my hometown of Newark, New Jersey, after one of our State's most accomplished and dedicated public servants, my friend and colleague, Senator Frank Lautenberg.

Senator LAUTENBERG is well known throughout New Jersey and the Nation for his prolific legislative achievements, but even before his election to the United States Senate, he worked tirelessly in pursuit of the American dream.

His is indeed a classic American success story. Born to immigrant parents who were forced to move constantly in search of work, he set goals for himself early in life and never wavered in his quest to fulfill his aspirations.

After completing high school in Nutly, New Jersey, he enlisted in the United States Army, serving in the Army Signal Corps in Europe during World War II. And he is very proud of his war record.

After World War II, he earned a degree with the great GI Bill of Rights, which gave opportunities to people who fought to preserve democracy and opportunity for higher education. And he earned a degree from Columbia Univer-

Then, in the spirit of American entrepreneurship, which he fought so hard to defend, he joined with two boyhood friends in establishing a payroll service company, Automatic Data Processing, which now has grown to be one of the largest companies in the world. This started in a basement with two fellows saying, we have an idea.

It is especially fitting that this post office we are naming for Senator LAU-TENBERG in his honor is located in Newark because he has been a champion of the revitalization efforts in our city.

From the day I was elected to the House of Representatives back in 1988, I have been able to count on Senator LAUTENBERG as an advocate of major economic development efforts, including the world-class Performing Arts Center, the development of the waterfront, millions of dollars in funding for Urban Core mass transit projects, including the Newark-Elizabeth Rail Link.

Senator LAUTENBERG has gained a national reputation as a powerful voice for environmental protection, fighting for safe drinking water, clean air, a ban on ocean dumping of sewage, clean beaches, prevention of oil spills, and a strong supporter of Superfund legislation to clean up toxic sites.

His legislation to ban smoking on airplanes will go to save many, many lives in this country and in the world because this has been taken up by evervone in the world.

So as I conclude, Senator LAUTEN-BERG has worked to improve educational opportunities in our Nation so that coming generations will have a chance to live the American dream as we all see it.

Senator LAUTENBERG helped author the HOPE scholarship, which provides a $1,500 tax credit for students going to college. He fought to improve our public schools. He fought to have new computers in our high schools.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to speak on behalf of the Senator.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New Jersev (Mr. PALLONE).

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from Pennsylvania for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I, too, rise in support of H.R. 4975, the bill that is sponsored by my colleague, the gentleman from Newark (Mr. PAYNE), to honor Senator LAUTENBERG with the naming of the post office in Newark in his honor.

I cannot say enough about FRANK LAUTENBERG. There is no more effective Member of the United States Senate or of the United States Congress than FRANK LAUTENBERG.

Let me say that over his three terms in office, and I suppose it adds up to 18 years as a Member of the United States Senate, I do not think anyone would suggest that anybody but FRANK LAUTENBERG was the most effective advocate for our concerns in the State of New Jersey. He is the Senator that get things done.

My colleague, the gentleman from Newark (Mr. PAYNE), talked about the various things that Senator Lautenberg has done over the years, legislatively. But I just wanted to focus briefly on the environmental issues, because my district in Middlesex and Monmouth Counties has a heightened concern with regard to the environment.

In Middlesex County, the northern county, we have a number of Superfund sites. And over the 12 years or so that I have been in Congress, I have seen Senator LAUTENBERG constantly out there helping me and helping my constituents to clean up the Superfund sites, to improve the program, to get citizens involved in the process. That is his hallmark. He is a grassroots person that gets the money and gets things done.

In Monmouth County, which is the county where I live along the shore, we have had concern for many years about ocean dumping, about the need for shore protection, about water quality. And if there is any area where Senator LAUTENBERG has shined and worked hard in this Congress, it is with regard to the need for clean water and improving our water quality.

I would say that our economy would not exist in the strong state that we have now along the Jersey shore were nave now along the Jersey snore were it not for Senator LAUTENBERG's efforts to provide funding for beach renourishment, to stop all the various ocean dumping sites that existed when he was first elected to the Senate. There were about 12 sites for dumping of toxic dredge materials, sludge materials, acid materials, wood burning. All these things have now passed and all these sites have been closed because of the efforts of Senator LAUTENBERG.

It is an amazing achievement over 18 years in the Senate. I only hope that this legislation, this naming of the post office, is just the first of many opportunities that we will have after he retires this year to name things after him and to make designations in his honor. Because he truly deserves it. I appreciate the fact that we here in the House have been the first to start the process with the naming of this post office today.

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise today to support this legislation which honors my friend and senior Senator from New Jersey, FRANK LAUTENBERG.

I am a proud cosponsor of this legislation, and applaud my colleagues, Congressman PAYNE and Congressman LOBIONDO, for bringing this important measure to the floor.

Senator LAUTENBERG is a great American and a son of my hometown of Paterson, New Jersey. Good things and great people hail from Paterson!

The son of immigrants, FRANK LAUTENBERG came from a working-class background. In fact, his father worked in the silk mills in Paterson, located around the same area where I grew up.

After graduating high school, he served the United States citizens by joining the Army Signal Corps in Europe. Upon his return, Senator LAUTENBERG began a life of public service to the citizens of the Garden State.

Along with two friends, Senator LAUTENBERG started a company that served as one of the largest employers of New Jersey workers, and helped shape the way business is conducted in America.

Automated Data Processing was and still is one of the foremost computing services companies in the world. It provides employer services to hundreds of thousands of businesses by providing the paychecks to more than 29 million wage earners each payday.

In 1982, I joined the majority of New Jersey residents in voting for FRANK LAUTENBERG to the office of Senator. We were impressed by his dedication to providing work and service in New Jersey and trusted that he would represent us well in the United States Congress.

Our gut and our vote proved right.

The impact he has had on our nation's health, safety and security is significant, and that is why we honor him today.

He is the author of laws that have shaped the lives and enriched the health and safety of Americans.

We can thank Senator LAUTENBERG for establishing 21 as the national legal drinking age, for banning smoking on airplanes and for making it illegal for anyone convicted of domestic violence to own a gun.

A strong environmental leader, Senator LAUTENBERG also helped write the Superfund, Clean Air and Safe Drinking Water Acts.

As Ranking Democratic Member of the Senate Transportation Appropriations Subcommittee, Senator LAUTENBERG has consistently supported sound investment in our nation's infrastructure.

Furthermore, he has worked tirelessly to secure hundreds of millions of dollars for New Jersey's highways, mass transit systems, airports and ports.

The Garden State has known this about Senator LAUTENBERG for 18 years, and I am proud to share his accomplishments with colleagues and fellow Americans who may not realize the impact that he has had on American policy and life.

So, as the great city of Newark continues to rise, it is more than appropriate that FRANK LAUTENBERG should be honored in name and reputation in this manner.

I urge all of my colleagues to support H.R. 4975, and am proud to join with others in recognizing the hard work and immeasurable contributions he made to the economy, quality of life, and safety for the citizens of New Jersey and America.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I have no other speakers on this side, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4975.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GERTRUDE A. BARBER POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4625) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 2108 East 38th Street in Erie, Pennsylvania, as the "Gertrude A. Barber Post Office Building".

H R. 4625

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. GERTRUDE A. BARBER POST OFFICE BUILDING.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4625.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us, H.R. 4625, was introduced by the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH). The legislation designates the facility of the United States Postal Service Building located at 2108 East 38th Street in Erie, Pennsylvania as the Gertrude A. Barber Post Office Building. The House delegation from the State of Pennsylvania has cosponsored this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH).

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, this is a great privilege. Let me, first of all, thank the gentleman from Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), the distinguished ranking member, who helped me shepherd this legislation through the committee and through the House of Representatives, with the unanimous support of the entire Pennsylvania delegation, because the person we are honoring today really enjoyed a Statewide reputation in Pennsylvania as an advocate of those with special needs

With every handshake, Mr. Speaker, Dr. Gertrude Barber left an indelible mark, reflective of her compassion and caring not only for those with special needs, but everyone. This native of Erie, a community that I have lived in all of my life and which I represent, touched so many individuals. Her special gift and passion was reserved for the mentally disabled, but through that, she touched the lives of an entire community and reached out and touched many people throughout the State of Pennsylvania.

For years, she gave all that she had and more, and she asked no less of the community in which she lived. Even when one met Dr. Gertrude Barber just once, that encounter lasted for a lifetime.

For these reasons, we as a community have decided to name the post office in Erie, on East 38th Street, the Gertrude A. Barber Post Office Building. I can again proudly say that every member of the Pennsylvania delegation has cosponsored this bill.

Dr. Barber died April 29 at the age of 88. During her life, she impacted not only Erie but our entire Nation. Her influence stretched outside of Erie into neighboring counties, States and everywhere in her path. It is inconceivable for Erie to imagine a life without Dr. Barber. There was something about this extraordinary individual that made one think that she would be around forever. To quote the Erie Times, who eulogized Dr. Barber, "She was a legend whose name and works will be with us for years to come.'

Dr. Barber served more than 2,850 developmentally disabled clients not only in Erie but throughout the State of Pennsylvania. She knew everyone by name, whether it was a client, volunteer, or staff person. She knew about their lives and the challenges they faced and she truly cared.

For those of us who visited her in her office and visited her at the Dr. Gertrude Barber Center, we saw that caring very much in action. The disabled children and adults always came first with her. Whether she was walking with the Governor or even a Member of Congress. Dr. Barber would always take the time to talk to her children. After all, they were every bit as important to her and maybe even more so.

A member of a prominent and respected family in Erie, Dr. Barber became a special education teacher in 1933. Focusing on a need in our community, she opened the center that now bears her name in 1952. The Barber Center has since blossomed and flourished under her strong and thoughtful and watchful hand. The Center has dramatically improved the lives of the developmentally disabled. The Center has facilities for autistic and Down syndrome children, classrooms, a library. and many satellite sites. It has sponsored adult literacy and adult job training programs. She and her staff have worked with mental health professionals from 33 countries, many coming to see the methodologies and accomplishments of this Center.

As Dr. Barber's dream continued to expand, so did the Center. During her 48 years of service, she established many satellite sites throughout Pennsylvania, including group homes in Philadelphia and in Pittsburgh. She started with a small staff, which grew to 60 in the 1970s, and more than 1,650 across the State today.

During her lifetime she was recognized by world leaders, including Pope John Paul II. and Presidents Kennedy and Bush. President Kennedy appointed Dr. Barber as a delegate to the White House Conference on Children and Youth. She was also a member of his Task Force on Mental Retardation. She testified many times before Congress about the needs of people with disabilities and mental retardation. National figures sought out her advice, and she gladly guided them.

This is the 10th anniversary of the year that the Americans With Disabilities Act was passed by Congress; and in July, 10 years ago, when President George Bush signed the Americans with Disabilities Act into law, he invited Dr. Barber to attend the ceremony. Her invitation was in recognition of the work she put into the caring for the disabled.

In 1981, she was on the planning committee for the International Year of Disabled Persons and was a delegate to the White House Conference on Education. Not only did Dr. Barber serve on countless local, State, and Federal committees, but she even established a number of local branches of national advocacy groups for people with mental retardation and related developmental disabilities.

She founded the Division of Mental Retardation within the Pennsylvania Federation Council for Exceptional Citizens, the Northwest Council for Exceptional Children and, in Erie County, the ARC. She also served as president of the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Citizens, the Pennsylvania Federation Council for Exceptional Citizens, and the Polk State School Board of Trustees.

In her honor, scholarships have been established at Penn State University, Gannon University, Mercyhurst College, and the University of Notre Dame. She was one of the most recognized advocates of people with special needs for generations and she made this her mission.

Dr. Barber was truly called to her life's work. She dedicated her life to the thousands of children and adults whom others often treated with disregard. She believed strongly in her dream to transform the lives of the developmentally disabled. Her dream was just one small seed planted in the broad fields of life, but she loved it and protected it. She believed in her dream until it grew and blossomed and gave great joy. She proved without doubt that one person, one extraordinary person, can make a difference.

In the new testament, Mr. Speaker, Matthew wrote, "The house fell, for it was not founded upon a rock." Dr. Gertrude Barber was the rock on which her centers for the disabled were built and, in fact, she was the rock on which the disability community in Erie and even throughout the United States could lean. Though she has died, her ideals and her goals live on.

It is my great honor to sponsor this legislation to name a post office after her. I urge my colleagues to join me in honoring a remarkable woman who has taught so much to so many with her message of caring.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) for managing this bill on the floor, and I would also like to thank the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUR-TON), the gentleman from New York (Mr. MCHUGH), and the ranking member, as I said, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), for their efforts in committee to make sure that this bill passes and becomes a reality.

I hope all my colleagues will support H.R. 4625 in recognition of this remarkable woman.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me congratulate my colleague and my good friend from the great State and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH). He is responsible for this legislation. And appropriately so, because in his home district, in the City of Erie, the person who we honor has been so well known. But also throughout our State her work has been documented, even in the area of Philadelphia, and it is obvious that this is the type of person that a Federal facility, like a postal facility, should appropriately be named, and will in this case be named, after her.

I want to thank my colleague for introducing this legislation and ask all to support H.R. 4625.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I vield back the balance of my the time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LIN-DER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill. H.R. 4625.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SAMUEL P. ROBERTS POST OFFICE BUILDING.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4786) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 110 Postal Way in Carrollton, Georgia, as the "Samuel P. Roberts Post Office Building''.
The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 4786

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SAMUEL P. ROBERTS POST OFFICE BUILDING.

DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 110 Postal Way in Carrollton, Georgia, shall be known and designated as the "Samuel P. Roberts Post Office Building"

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Samuel P. Roberts Post Office Building".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4786.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I rise today in support of the bill to rename the post office located in Carrollton, Georgia, after the Honorable Sam Roberts.

Sam Roberts was not just a community leader, not just a husband, not just a father, he was a friend to all of us in the Seventh District of Georgia. Sam lost his battle against cancer on January 3 of this year.

Sam was a distinguished member of the Georgia State Senate whose district laid within the Seventh Congressional District of Georgia. He won his Senate seat to represent State Senate District 30 in 1986 and was reelected in 1998. His second term was tragically cut short after his untimely death earlier this year.

Born April 10, 1937 in Rome, Georgia, after obtaining a degree in insurance and risk management from Georgia State University in 1963, Sam Roberts maintained a long career in management heading Roberts Insurance Agency. Sam Roberts received numerous community and civic awards such as "Who's Who" in Georgia and Small Businessperson of the Year from the Douglas County Chamber of Commerce. He was also Associate of the Year for the Douglas County Home Builders Association. Sam was admitted to the

Carrollton High School Trojan Hall of Fame and was a Jaycees International

Throughout his life, Senator Sam, as we knew him, was involved in countless community organizations and activities and civic clubs, including President of the Sertoma Club and the Douglas County Rotary Club, National Director of the U.S. Jaycees, in government affairs, and State Vice President of the Georgia Jaycees.

Sam Roberts also served on the Board of Directors of the American Cancer Society and the March of Dimes. He was the Chaplain of the Flint Hill Masonic Lodge. Sam was a member of the Douglas County Development Authority and the Douglas County Chamber of Commerce. He was also a youth football coach for 20 vears

While serving in the Georgia State Senate, Sam Roberts worked extremely hard for swift and strong punishment of criminals, to improve education for children, and to make our State government more efficient.

Sam Roberts was a resident of Douglas County for more than 30 years. He was a member of Heritage Baptist Church with his wife Sue. Sam is also survived by three wonderful children, Sherrie. Beau and Amber.

Mr. Speaker, the career of Georgia State Senator Sam Roberts as a professional, as a legislator, as a community leader, and as a family man clearly demonstrates why we should name this post office in his community, in our community, in his honor. I ask my colleagues to join me in renaming the U.S. Post Office in Carrollton, Georgia, after the Honorable Sam Roberts.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1200

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 4786, which names a post office after Samuel P. Roberts, was introduced by Representative BARR on June 29,

Mr. Roberts was born on April 10, 1937, in Rome, GA. He obtained a degree in insurance and risk management from Georgia State University and went on to head the Roberts Insurance Agency. He decided to enter politics and in 1996 he ran for the Georgia State Senate, representing District 30.

Tragically, his second term was cut short when he lost his battle with cancer and died on January 3, 2000, in Douglasville, GA. Naming a post office in his honor is a fitting way to honor his commitment to his community and family. I urge the swift adoption of this

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to reiterate my support for the bill at hand. I thank the gentleman from the great State of Georgia (Mr. BARR) for his comments.

Since Mr. Roberts formerly served as a member of the State Senate in his State and as a former member of the State Senate of Pennsylvania, I again want to thank the gentleman for recognizing that those who serve our public and other legislative bodies deserve recognition in this way.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the very kind remarks of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LIN-DER). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4786.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JUDGE HARRY AUGUSTUS COLE POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4450) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 900 East Fayette Street in Baltimore, Maryland, as the "Judge Harry Augustus Cole Post Office Building.

HR 4450

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. JUDGE HARRY AUGUSTUS COLE POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 900 East Fayette Street in Baltimore, Maryland, shall be known and designated as the "Judge Harry Augustus Cole Post Office Building

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4450.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us, H.R. 4450, was introduced by the distinguished gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS). This legislation designates the post office located at 900 East Fayette Street in Baltimore, Maryland, as the "Judge Harry Augustus Čole Post Office." H.R. 4450 is cosponsored by the entire House delegation of the State of Maryland.

Harry Augustus Cole was educated in the Baltimore City Public School System and graduated from Morgan State University in 1943. He served our Nation with distinction during World War II and then graduated from the University of Maryland School of Law, after which he practiced criminal and civil rights law.

Judge Cole is a man of many firsts. He was the first African American assistant attorney general in Baltimore City, the first African American to be elected to the State Senate of Maryland, the first chairman of the Maryland Advisory Committee to the United States Civil Rights Commission, and the first African American to be named to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Mr. Speaker, Judge Cole is most deserving of being honored by having a post office named after him in the city to which he has contributed so much for so long and where he has spent much of his life

I urge our colleagues to support H.R. 4450, and I commend the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for introducing this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4450. This legislation is the product of the work of my good friend, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), who represents both the State of Maryland and the City of Baltimore.

Mr. Speaker, Ĭ yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), the prime sponsor of this legislation, to allow him to articulate to the House his reasons to commend it for passage.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I also want to thank the gentleman from New York (Chairman McHugh) and certainly the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FATTAH), the ranking member, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR), and to all those on the Subcommittee on Postal Service for their support in bringing this bill to the floor of the House.

I believe that persons who have made meaningful contributions to society should be recognized. The naming of a postal building in one's honor is truly a salute to the accomplishments and public service of an individual.

H.R. 4450 designates the United States Post Office building located at 900 East Fayette Street in Baltimore, Maryland, as the "Judge Harry Augustus Cole Post Office Building."

Judge Harry Augustus Cole was a man of many firsts. Judge Cole was the first African American assistant attorney general in Maryland, the first African American to be elected to the State Senate of Maryland, the first Chairman of the Maryland Advisory Committee to the United States Civil Rights Commission, and the first African and the states of the United States Civil Rights Commission, and the first African and the states of the Maryland Advisory Commission, and the states Civil Rights Commission, and the states of the states can American to be named to Maryland's highest court, the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Educated in Baltimore City Public Schools, Judge Cole graduated from Morgan State University in 1943. I might add that he later served as the chairman of the Board of Regents of that institution. While at Morgan, however, he served as the president of the student council and the founder and the first editor in chief of the Spokesman College Newspaper.

A World War II veteran, Judge Cole graduated from the University of Maryland Law School, my alma mater, and practiced criminal and civil rights law for many years. He was a member of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, the oldest African American fraternity in the country.

Unfortunately, he passed away on February 14, 1999.

Harry Cole, who is one of my role models, is fondly remembered for his quick wit and sharp sense of humor. He was a man who always helped those in need and was always there for the indigent. He offered his services free of charge and was not looking for any kind of fame or thanks. Judge Cole extended his hand without ever seeking acknowledgment. I think it is time he is honored for the contributions he gave not only to the City of Baltimore, but to the State of Maryland and to this country.

He was also a distinguished veteran and served proudly in our United States Army. He is survived by his wife, Doris, and his three daughters, Susan, Harriette and Stephanie.

I urge my colleagues to support this postal naming bill that salutes a person from my district who was an outstanding veteran, an outstanding jurist, and spent his life providing service to others.

Mr. FATTAH. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I vield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4450.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES HEALTH BENEFITS—CHILDREN'S EQUITY ACT OF 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2842) to amend chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code, concerning the Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) Program, to enable the Federal Government to enroll an employee and his or her family in the FEHB Program when a State court orders the employee to provide health insurance coverage for a child of the employee but the employee fails to provide the coverage, as amended.

H.R. 2842

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Federal Employees Health Benefits Children's Equity Act of 2000".

SEC. 2. HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE FOR CHILDREN.

Section 8905 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

'(h)(1) An unenrolled employee who is required by a court or administrative order to provide health insurance coverage for a child who meets the requirements of section 8901(5) may enroll for self and family coverage in a health benefits plan under this chapter. If such employee fails to enroll for self and family coverage in a health benefits plan that provides full benefits and services in the location in which the child resides, and the employee does not provide documentation showing that such coverage has been provided through other health insurance, the employing agency shall enroll the employee in a self and family enrollment in the option which provides the lower level of coverage under the Service Benefit Plan.

"(2) An employee who is enrolled as an individual in a health benefits plan under this chapter and who is required by a court or administrative order to provide health insurance coverage for a child who meets the requirements of section 8901(5) may change to a self and familv enrollment in the same or another health benefits plan under this chapter. If such employee fails to change to a self and family enrollment and the employee does not provide documentation showing that such coverage has been provided through other health insurance, the employing agency shall change the enrollment of the employee to a self and family enrollment in the plan in which the employee is enrolled if that plan provides full benefits and services in the location where the child resides. If the plan in which the employee is enrolled does not provide full benefits and services in the location in which the child resides, or, if the employee fails to change to a self and family enrollment in a plan that provides full benefits and services in the location where the child resides, the employing agency shall change the coverage of the employee to a self and family enrollment in the option which provides the lower level of coverage under the Service Benefits Plan.

"(3) The employee may not discontinue the self and family enrollment in a plan that provides full benefits and services in the location in which the child resides for so long as the court or administrative order remains in effect and the child continues to meet the requirements of section 8901(5), unless the employee provides documentation showing that such coverage has been provided through other health insurance."

SEC. 3. ANNUITY SUPPLEMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 8421a(b) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(5) Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) through (4), the reduction required by subsection (a) shall be effective with respect to the annuity supplement payable for each month in the 12-month period beginning on the first day of the seventh month after the end of the calendar year in which the excess earnings were earned."

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to reductions required to be made in calendar years beginning after the date of enactment of this Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA). GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 2842.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this bill accomplishes two objectives. First, it protects children who are entitled to health insurance under a court order. Second, the bill changes the timing of certain adjustments to annunities to allow OPM, that is the Office of Personnel Management, to make more accurate calculations.

Federal agencies currently cannot guarantee that a Federal employee's child is covered in accordance with a court or administrative order. Ironically, Mr. Speaker, Federal law already requires that protection for children whose parents work for an employer other than the Federal Government. Current law provides that Federal employees may enroll in an FEHBP plan, that is the Federal Employee Health Benefit Plan, either as an individual or for self and family coverage. They are under no obligation to do so however

This important legislation will enable the Federal Government to enroll an employee in a self and family plan in the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program when a State court orders the employee to provide health insurance coverage for a child of the employee but the employee fails to provide the coverage.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, this bill delays adjustments to annunity supplementals received by certain FERS retirees. No one will be denied a benefit as a result of this delay, but the additional time will permit OPM to calculate these annunity supplements more accurately and ensure that the correct level of benefits is being paid.

Mr. Speaker, I am very proud to be an original cosponsor of this bill, it was introduced by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS).

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I and the children who will receive health care under this bill, thank the gentleman from Indiana (Chairman BURTON) and the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN); the ranking member, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH); and also we extend our appreciation to the members of our Subcommittee on Civil Service, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON), the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN), who have affirmed their commitment to children by cosponsoring this legislation.

H.R. 2842 also enjoys the support of Senator LEVIN who introduced the companion Senate bill, S. 1688, in the Senate.

According to the 1990 United States Census, 78 percent of noncustodial parents had health coverage available through their employers, but only 23 percent had their children covered voluntarily. The legal right to health care was denied to children by absentee parents, even though they had the option to include them in their medical insurance plan for little or no cost.

The Department of Agriculture estimates that in 1998, over 10 million children had no health care coverage. H.R. 2842 will allow the Federal agencies to join States and provide health insurance for children of its employees.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 required States to enact legislation requiring employers to enroll a child in an employee's group health plan when a court orders the employee to provide health insurance for the child but the employee fails to do so.

The Federal Employee Health Benefits Program law provided that a Federal employee may enroll in a FEHB Plan. The law does not allow an employing agency to elect coverage on the employee's behalf.

Further, FEHB law generally preempts State law with regards to coverage and benefits; therefore, a Federal agency is unable to ensure that a child is covered in accordance with a court order.

To correct this inequity, H.R. 2842, would enable the Federal Government to enroll an employee in his or her family in the FEHB program when a State court orders the employee to provide health insurance coverage for a child of the employee.

If the affected employee is already enrolled for self-only coverage, the employing agency would be authorized to change the enrollment to self and family. If the affected employee is not enrolled in the FEHB Program, the employing agency would be required to enroll him or her under the standard option of the service benefit plan Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

Finally, the employee would be barred from discontinuing the self and family enrollment as long as the court order remains in effect, the child meets the statutory definition of family member, and the employee cannot show that the child has other insurance.

I am pleased that H.R. 2842 is supported by the Association for Children for Enforcement of Support. ACES is the largest child support organization dedicated to assisting disadvantaged families entitled to support.

Mr. Speaker, someone once said that children are the living messages we send to a future we may never see, and when we think about what we are doing here, it is a very important deed providing children with health care coverage. I have often said it is not the deed, but it is the memory, and if we can have children that can gain health care when they need it and can look back on their lives and had access to doctors and could get well throughout their lives, I think they will be able to look back, not only on pleasant memories, but they will be able to look back

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and by doing so, we send a very powerful message to this future that we may never see.

on a healthy life.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), my distinguished colleague and one who has been at the forefront of issues regarding Federal employees and children.

(Mr. HOYER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the distinguished gentleman from Baltimore, Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for yielding the time to me and, Mr. Speaker, I also want to join with my other friend, the distinguished gentlewoman from Montgomery County, Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) in strong support of this Federal Employee Health Benefits Equity Act of 2000.

The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) and the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) have explained very well the purposes of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to, perhaps, discuss this in a little different perspective, but I think an important one. Many pieces of legislation come to this floor and we focus on them because they seek to focus on personal responsibility. Unfortunately, in America today too many people believe that having children is not a personal responsibility. They believe that perhaps it is biologically their child, but somehow not their responsibility.

We have passed legislation and the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary is on the floor, and he and I have cosponsored legislation which seeks to ensure that once somebody is blessed with a child that they will meet their responsibilities to that child. We passed legislation, as the gentleman from Baltimore pointed out, in 1993 which said that we were going to ensure that children would be covered under the health care policies of their parents. However, we did not also include Federal employees, the Federal Employee Health Benefit Plan, under that provision. We thought we

I think that was our concept but we had not and this legislation seeks to cure that defect in the language.

Now, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), and I are unreserved supporters of Federal employees; but Federal employees, like every other individual in our country, need to meet their responsibilities. I believe that I had and continue to have a personal responsibility for my children. It is not the responsibility of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) or the responsibility of the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), it is my responsibility. They are my children. Now, they are all adults now, but I view them as a blessing. I view it as a blessing that I have the opportunity and the wherewithal, very frankly, to help them.

I would hope every parent would do that; not only would I hope they would do it, it is my expectation that they would do it. And this legislation simply says, as the gentleman has pointed out in correct detail, that if a court orders you to carry your child on your policy and provide them with health care coverage, critical to every child in America, then the Federal employer, like every other employer, will comply with the law in making sure that you meet that personal responsibility.

So'I rise in very strong support of that. Some will say it is an additional burden on Federal employees; I say it is not. It is an equitable treatment of Federal employees as we want every other employee in America to be treated so that children in America will be better cared for and will grow up more secure and safe and better citizens.

Although this bill will not get national publicity, it is a very important bill, not only for the children that it will immediately affect, but for the principle that it adopts of responsibility of parents for the welfare and well-being of their children.
Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for his comments, because his comments really go to the crux of why we are doing what we are doing. I think all of us, all of us in this Congress accept the fact that we have to do everything in our power to make sure children have an opportunity to grow up so that they can be the best that they can be.

And when we think about something like health care, a child able to be taken care of if he has the measles or the mumps or has some kind of problem, health problem, just to know that that custodial parent is placed in a position where he or she can take that child to a health care provider and have that child taken care of is so very, very important.

As the gentleman said, this bill may not reach the headlines of our papers; but I can tell my colleagues one thing, it will reach the headlines of a lot of families, a lot of custodial parents who merely want their children to be healthy.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this very important legislation. I again, thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA). I want to thank all of the members of our subcommittee for the bipartisan effort in our quest to uplift the children of our great Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

$\Box$ 1245

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is a little bill that goes a long way, a long way as we have heard in terms of helping those children who are most vulnerable to make sure that they are provided health insurance. It is going to enable the Federal Government to enroll an employee in a self and family plan in the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program when a State court orders the employee to provide health insurance coverage for a child of the employee, but the employee fails to provide the cov-

I want to thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for sponsoring this bill, for recognizing its importance. I want to thank the chairman of the Subcommittee on Civil Service, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH), for helping this bill come forward; the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), the chairman of the full Committee on Government Reform; the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN), the ranking member of the Committee on Government Reform; the cosponsors and those who have spoken today, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), in effect.

I do want to ask that the Members of this House unanimously, I hope, support this important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2842, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title of the bill was amended so

"A bill to amend chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code, concerning the Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) Program, to enable the Federal Government to enroll an employee and his or her family in the FEHB Program when a State court orders the employee to provide health insurance coverage for a child of the employee but the employee fails to provide the coverage, and for other purposes.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SEC. 9. ADDITIONAL CLERICAL AMENDMENT.

The Patent and Trademark Fee Fairness Act of 1999 (113 Stat. 1537-546 et seq.), as enacted by section 1000(a)(9) of Public Law 106-113, is amended in section 4203, by striking "111(a)" and inserting "1113(a)".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) and the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4870, the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. COBLE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4870, the Intellectual Property Technical Amendments Act of 2000. As my colleagues may well know, the benefits of the modern economy and promise for future prosperity are strongly related to our intellectual property laws. We are relying upon the proper functioning of our country's patent and trademark systems. These laws are not a casual accident, but a result of constant refinement by the Congress.

Last year, the Congress passed landmark patent reform in the American Inventors Protection Act in the final days of the session. As we all know in the hurly-burly to pass such a large bill, it is usually the case that there are often many oversights and errors which require a follow-up technical corrections bill.

I am pleased to report that the bulk of today's bill is clerical and technical in nature. It removes semicolons, aligns paragraphs, and makes other housekeeping changes. It changes some titles of key offices at the PTO. It also includes some noncontroversial changes to make certain that reexamination and the status of patent applications go as anticipated.

It advances the Congress' goal of making the PTO a more responsible government department. Most importantly, it preserves the protections for the American inventor that we designed and implemented last year.

In closing, I am pleased that the efforts of the progress on H.R. 4870 reunited me with my friend and colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), who is a tireless advocate for the American innovator. Likewise, I want to extend my remarks and thanks to the ranking member, the gentleman from California (Mr. BER-MAN), for his valuable assistance in preparing this bill for consideration. The Members will realize that a strong and well-functioning patent and trademark system plays an integral part in our economic prosperity, should feel confident that the legislation before us plays a small, however important, role in continuing our efforts.

I urge all of my colleagues to support its passage.

 $\dot{Mr}$ . Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my good friend, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE), for shepherding this bill forward. As the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) indicated, last year Congress enacted substantial reforms to the patent system. After the enactment last year of the American Inventors Protection Act and the intervening months of implementation, it has become apparent that several minor adjustments to the law are needed. Most of the corrections within the manager's amendment and the underlying H.R. 4870, the Intellectual Property Technical Amendments Act, are truly technical, correcting punctuation and the like.

There are some minor substantive changes that are needed to implement last year's legislation. H.R. 4870, as reported by the Committee on the Judiciary and the manager's amendment, address several such issues. I want to thank the legislative counsel's office and those at the Patent and Trademark Office and the patent and trademark communities who have assisted us in identifying the problems with this bill that it addresses, and I urge the body's vote for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4870, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ESTABLISHING THE ELIGIBILITY OF ALIENS ADMITTED FOR PER-MANENT RESIDENCE

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 5062) to establish the eligibility of certain aliens lawfully admitted for permanent residence for cancellation of removal under section 240A of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

H.R. 5062

- "(ii) this Act or the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996, in the case of an offense committed on or before April 24, 1996.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 240(c)(6) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229a(c)(6)) or any other limitation imposed by law on motions to reopen removal proceedings, the Attorney General shall establish a process (whether through permitting the reopening of a removal proceeding or otherwise) under which an alien—

(1) who is (or was) in removal proceedings before the date of the enactment of this Act (whether or not the alien has been removed as of such date); and (2) whose eligibility for cancellation of removal has been established by section 1 of this Act:

may apply (or reapply) for cancellation of removal under section 240A(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229b(a)) as a beneficiary of the relief provided under section 1 of this Act.

(b) PAROLE.—The Attorney General should exercise the parole authority under section 212(d)(5)(A) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(d)(5)(A)) for the purpose of permitting aliens removed from the United States to participate in the process established under subsection (a).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) and the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 5062, the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 made long-needed reforms to our laws governing the deportation of criminal aliens. The act put an end to criminal aliens' indefinitely delaying their deportations through endless appeals and put an end to serious criminals such as rapists being granted relief from deportation. The results are clear and gratifying. The number of criminal aliens deported by the INS has gone up dramatically since enactment of the act. Our neighborhoods are safer, especially immigrant neighborhoods, which have always borne the brunt of crime committed by aliens.

One aspect of the 1996 act has, however, led to a number of deportations that strike many, including myself, as unfair. The act broadened the definition of crimes which are considered aggravated felonies for which no relief from deportation is available. The hardship has come about because this change was made retroactively. The new definition of aggravated felony applies to crimes whenever committed. Thus, aliens who committed crimes vears before enactment of the 1996 act. crimes not considered aggravated felonies when committed, have become deportable as aggravated felons.

Now, retroactive application of the law is the exception and not the rule, in the Committee on the Judiciary, for obvious reasons of notice and fairness. In addition, in some cases aliens have clearly rehabilitated themselves in the intervening years since committing their crimes, are no longer a threat to society and have started families. In these cases deportation seems an extreme remedy. Now, these hardship cases, in my opinion, could have been resolved if the INS had utilized its inherent power of prosecutorial discretion. The INS could have decided not to pursue deportation where the facts called out for forbearance. However, the INS has failed to do so. In fact, until recently the agency refused to admit it even had prosecutorial discretion.

Given this reality, it seems wise for Congress to step in and take action. H.R. 5062, introduced by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK), does so in a prudent and responsible manner. Under current law, legal permanent residents may apply for cancellation of removal if they have committed deportable acts. To ask for such relief, they must have been legal permanent residents for 5 years, have continuously resided in the U.S. for 7 years and not have committed any offense classified as an aggravated felony.

H.R. 5062 provides that offenses committed before 1996 that became classified as aggravated felonies in 1996, except for rape or sexual abuse of a minor, would not bar cancellation of removal. Under the bill, legal permanent residents already removed because of such offenses could reopen their removal proceedings to apply for cancellation of removal. It is in the Attorney General's sole and unreviewable discretion whether to grant cancellation of removal in particular cases.

H.R. 5062 makes one more change in the law to carry out our intent. For the purpose of qualifying for cancellation of removal, the 1996 reforms terminated periods of continuous residence as of the date of commission of a deportable offense. Legal permanent residents who have been here for many years thus could not benefit from cancellation of removal, even if it was otherwise available to them, because deportable offenses they committed in past years now prevent them from accumulating the required residence time.

H.R. 5062 provides that deportable offenses committed before the 1996 reforms no longer terminate periods of continuous residence for legal permanent residents. Legal permanent residents already removed because of retroactive application of the stop time rule could reopen their removal proceedings to apply for cancellation of removal. I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 5062. Enactment of this bill will make a meritorious correction without endangering the success of the 1996 bill's thrust against crime.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, if one can imagine this scenario, a contributing member of this community, it could be in Massachusetts or the State of Texas or in New York, a young man, newly married with a young family, working, contributing, and legislation then rises up and ensnares him into a net dealing with the whole question of a potential or a juvenile offense that might have occurred that did not even result in jail time. Either that individual is deported or the individual finds himself or herself at home in their country burying a loved one and cannot get back into the country. Their family is separated. All that they have is lost: homes, apartments, cars. This is the reason for H.R. 5062.

I want to commend the chairman, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE); and ranking member, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS); my chairman, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), for working through this; the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK); the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST), and his leadership; the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DIAZ-BALART); the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. LEHTINEN); the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER); the gentleman from California (Mr. BILBRAY); the gentleman from California (Mr. ROGAN); and the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE) for working with us on a very important piece of legislation.

It is by nature a technical bill, but it will eliminate the technical obstacles to applying for cancellation of removal under section 240(a) of the Immigration Nationality Act.

The effects of the bill, however, are not just technical in nature, and I have given my colleagues a scenario of a divided family, painfulness, the spouse now detained because of some minor offense that some judge early in their life felt that they were not even warranted jail time. It will have very real consequences in the lives of many longtime lawful, permanent residents of the United States who have been unfairly deprived of relief by the retroactive changes of the 1996 immigration bill.

First, it will eliminate retroactive application of the so-called stop-time rule by which an alien's lawful permanent resident status is taken away for eligibility purposes when proceedings are instituted by the issuance of a notice of to appear. No crime committed before September 30, 1996 would bar an immigrant from accruing the period of residency required for cancellation of removal.

It would also address the injustice caused by declaring longtime, permanent residents ineligible for relief, residents with families and roots in the community, on the basis of a retroactive change in the definition of an aggravated felony. The 1996 immigration law made people ineligible for cancellation of removal as aggravated felons on the basis of criminal offenses that were not aggravated felonies when they were committed.

For example, prior to 1996, a theft offense was treated as an aggravated felony only if a sentence of 5 years or more was imposed. Say, for example, Mr. X entered the U.S. as a lawful, permanent resident in 1970. He was convicted of shoplifting and sentenced to a 1-year suspended sentence in 1985. The harsh provision of the 1996 law made Mr. X statutorily ineligible for cancellation of removal despite the fact that he did not commit a serious crime and never again in life ever committed a serious crime. The judge who presided over that case did not think that the offense warranted even a single day of incarceration. But under H.R. 5062, Mr. X would no longer be barred from applying for cancellation of removal.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5062 requires the Attorney General to establish a process of reopening removal proceedings for aliens who were in removal proceedings before the enactment date of H.R. 5062 and who will now be eligible for cancellation of removal because of H.R. 5062. This will allow these aliens to reapply for cancellation relief. The bill specifies that the Attorney General should parole such aliens into the United States, give them an opportunity to apply to regain their lawful permanent residence status, and will cover those individuals who are left wandering and in a complete state of confusion, having gone to bury a loved one or attend to a sick loved one and cannot now restore their status in the United States to seek reunification with their families.

Mr. Speaker, these changes will permit long-term, lawful permanent residents who have been affected by the retroactive changes unfairly in the law to have their day in court, families will be reunited, children will have fathers, children will have mothers, and I believe it is the right thing. I urge my colleagues to vote for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to rise in favor of H.R. 5062. It is by nature a very technical bill. It will eliminate technical obstacles to applying for cancellation of removal under section 240A of the Immigration and Nationality Act. The effects of the bill, however, are not just technical in nature. It will have very real consequences in the lives of many long-time, lawful permanent residents of the United States who have been unfairly deprived of relief by the retroactive changes of the 1996 Immigration bill.

First, it will eliminate retroactive application of the so called "stop-time rule" by which an alien's lawful permanent resident status is taken away from eligibility purposes when proceedings are instituted by the issuance of a "notice to appear." No crime committed before September 30, 1996, would bar an immigrant from accruing the period of residency required for cancellation of removal.

It also would also address the injustice caused by declaring long-term permanent residents ineligible for relief on the basis of a retroactive change in the definition of an "aggravated felony." The 1996 Immigration law made people ineligible for cancellation of removal as aggravated felons on the basis of criminal offenses that were not aggravated felonies when they were committed.

For example, prior to 1996, a theft offense was treated as an aggravated felon only if a sentence of 5 years or more was imposed. Mr. X entered the United States as a lawful permanent resident in 1970. He was convicted of shoplifting and sentenced to a 1-year suspended sentence in 1985. The harsh provisions of the 96 law make Mr. X statutorily ineligible for cancellation of removal despite the fact that he did not commit a serious crime. The judge who presided over the case did not think that the offense warranted even a single day of incarceration. Under H.R. 5062, Mr. X would no longer be barred from applying for cancellation of removal.

H.R. 5062 requires the Attorney General to establish a process for reopening removal proceedings for aliens who were in removal proceedings before the enactment date of H.R. 5062 and who will now be eligible for cancellation of removal because of H.R. 5062. This will allow these aliens to apply for cancellation relief, the bill specifies that the Attorney General should parole such aliens into the United States go give them an opportunity to apply to regain their lawful permanent resident status.

These changes will permit long-time lawful permanent residents who have been affected by retroactive changes in the law to have their day in court. I urge you to vote for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, with great pleasure I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), the very distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration of the House Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary and my friend from Illinois for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, the 1996 immigration reforms improve public safety by facilitating deportation of dangerous criminals. Since 1996, the number of criminal aliens deported annually has almost doubled from 36,000 in 1996 to 67,000 projected for this year. Increased deportations benefit public safety in the United States because the recidivism rate for criminal aliens is high. Justice Department statistics show that half of all criminal aliens released from prison are convicted of another serious offense within 3 years.

Since 1996, cancellation of removal has been the primary relief from deportation available to aliens. Legal permanent residents are likely to receive cancellation of removal if they have continuously resided in the U.S. for 7 years and have not committed any crimes classified as aggravated felonies

Some hardship cases have arisen where deportation may not be appropriate. Republicans and Democrats in Congress have urged the Immigration and Naturalization Service to ensure that deportation proceedings are not prosecuted in inappropriate cases. However, the INS has been slow to respond.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5062, introduced by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK), makes two changes in existing law. The 1996 reforms expanded the aggravated felony definition and provided that aggravated felons are ineligible for cancellation of removal. The 1996 amendments that have resulted in hardship claims were added by Senate conferees late in the legislative process. While there is justification for deporting noncitizens convicted of serious crimes, applying a new standard retroactively arguably is unfair.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5062 provides that offenses committed before 1996 that were not aggravated felonies when committed, except for rape or sexual abuse of a minor, would not bar cancellation of removal. Legal permanent residents already removed because of sexual offenses could reopen proceedings to apply for cancellation of removal.

Second, the 1996 reforms terminated an alien's continuous residence on the date of commission of a deportable offense. For some legal permanent residents, offenses committed in past years now prevent them from accumulating the required residents time to apply for cancellation of removal.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5062 provides that deportable offenses committed before 1996 no longer terminate periods of continuous residence for legal permanent residents. Legal permanent residents already removed because of that provision could reopen their proceedings to apply for cancellation of removal.

Mr. Speaker, I hope my colleagues will support H.R. 5062.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary, and thank him for his assistance in this legislation.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, this bill is a product of the intense negotiations between the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank); the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hyde); the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum); the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee), and is a product of how far we have been able to go with the Frank-Frost original legislation, the gentleman from Texas has been in this in a very important way.

So we are proud of what we have been able to do in terms of deportable, minor offenses, which prior to the 1996 law, were pretty outrageous.

Mr. Speaker, I think we have come a great distance. We have another larger bill on this list waiting to be dealt with, the Fix 96 bill, so I am hopeful that spirit of the negotiations that brought us to this point on H.R. 5062 will move forward.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK), a major guiding force of this legislation who has worked in a determined and persistent and conciliatory manner to bring this legislation to the floor of the House, and a distinguished member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for her helpful efforts in bringing this bill to the floor.

I want to thank a number of members of the committee on both sides of the aisle, particularly the chairman of the full committee who put a lot into mediating this. It is an important step forward.

I want to say at the outset, I intend, if I am back here next year, and the early polls are good, to push for more changes than we now have. But this represents what we were able to agree on this late in this session, and while it is not everything I would like to see, it is a very significant improvement very worth passing. I hope that this bill does become law and that we are able to work with the other body and with the administration to put these provisions into law.

Some people have been puzzled and have asked me, well, how come there was retroactivity they thought constitutionally we could not do that, and I think it is an important point for people to understand. One cannot, under our Constitution, pass what the Constitution calls an ex post facto law if one is increasing the criminal penalty. But the right of a noncitizen with regard to deportation is not of the same constitutional order. So this is a policy judgment by the Congress to say that with regard to deportation, there should not be a difference, even though it would be constitutionally permissible of a retroactive sort. This leaves the effect of this bill on people who committed crimes on or after the date of enactment. That is one of the subjects that I hope we will address next

However, what this bill says that if one committed an offense on or before the date of the enactment of this bill, essentially one will now be treated as if the old law was in effect and there will be no element of retroactivity.

One of the things we should stress is, none of the offenses here affected now become nondeportable. We are not talking about people not being subject to deportation if, in a particular case, they ought to be deported. It increases the amount of discretion. It reduces the extent to which there was kind of an automaticity, but it does not say that people cannot be deported.

Not every offense is covered. I will be urging the Immigration Service, if we pass this, to read the intent of Congress here and in the discretion which they have and Members of this body had to recall to them the fact that no matter what, there is still prosecutorial discretion, that they will be guided by the spirit here of nonretroactivity in their administration of the bill and, in fact, focus on people who are genuinely dangerous and a threat to the community as they have the authority to do. But fundamentally, this is a time to feel good about making something better.

There are just two other points I want to make. One, I do want to stress, and I appreciate the gentleman from Texas including this and the gentleman from Illinois and others on the majority side; this is retroactively doing away with retroactivity, to some extent. That is, there are people who are already deported. Under this bill, people who are already deported will be able, because we instruct the Immigration Service to set up a procedure whereby they can apply to come back. The criteria I assume would be, to the extent that it can be reconstructed, if they would not have been deported in the first place, they should not be deported. It does not mean that everybody who is deported automatically comes back. There is a process, and they will have to show that if it was not for this change in the law, they would not have been deported.

The last point I want to make is this, Mr. Speaker. I appreciate the indulgence of my colleagues. It is a general point, not about this bill. We hear much too much today from people who are critics of our political system who tell us that only big money dominates politics, who tell us that we cannot get anything done in Congress unless there are huge campaign contributions.

Is this a very significant piece of legislation. This is an acknowledgment that a piece of legislation in 1996 had some flaws, it is a correction of those flaws. It will mean a great deal to many people; and to my knowledge, there are not a lot of campaign contributors among them. The people who have been victimized by this who, on the whole, have been people of limited economic circumstances.

So for those who are quick to kind of argue that political participation by citizens is worthless, that only big money counts, I would ask them to look at the example of this bill. This is a bill that has come to the floor today because of broad support by average citizens, most of whom, as I said, are not people of enormous economic wealth. No campaign contributions brought this bill to the floor. This bill was lobbied by citizens all across the country. Members from Sacramento and San Diego and Texas and Massachusetts and Florida, all over the country came together, because we all had constituents who were caught in a device that maybe nobody intended, maybe they did, but it was clearly working out more harshly than we thought appropriate. So I am very grateful to the majority for bringing this bill forward. I do want to stress again, this is an example of how citizens can get together and use their rights as citizens to get legislation changed.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank) for his words. It is a broad-based effort, and we are delighted that the effort was led by the gentleman from Texas (Mr.

FROST), the chairman of the Democratic Caucus, a member of the Committee on Rules. He is an original cosponsor of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Frost), and I thank him for his leadership on this matter.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support legislation that restores some sanity and common sense to our Nation's immigration policy. Many of us in Congress never intended for the 1996 immigration reforms to lead to the senseless deportation of those who have paid for their minor crimes and are now productive members of society. I have personally met with many families in my district that are now dealing with the trauma of the unwarranted deportation of a family member. These families will stay in America, but are often reliant on the care and financial support of the person facing deportation. These families may be forced to go on welfare or their children may be put into foster homes. Clearly, our communities are not made safer by breaking up these families.

With this legislation, Congress is beginning to address those provisions in the 1996 law that went too far. H.R. 5062 is the first step in the right direction of fixing the 1996 immigration legislation

□ 1315

Under current law, many legal residents can be deported for minor offenses that were not deportable offenses when they pled guilty to them. The bill will bring sensible relief to those who have paid for past infractions and will give people a chance to remain in the country. In addition, people who have already been deported under the retroactive provision of this law will be allowed to apply for readmission to the United States. This will allow families who were previously torn apart to reunite and regain the opportunity of the American Dream.

The bill does not fix all of the harsh provisions of the 1996 immigration legislation but it will bring some relief to those who have dealt with the tragedy of a deported family member.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume just to add to the importance of this legislation the bipartisanship that is evident. In addition to a lack of campaign contributions, many of these individuals who will ultimately seek citizenship are not voters as well. I think the fairness of this issue has risen so high that we can see this bipartisan effort today.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr.

McGovern).

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 5062, and I want to thank the chairman and ranking members of the Committee on the Judiciary, and especially my colleague, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank) for all their work in bringing this bill before the House.

In 1996, the Congress enacted the Illegal Immigration Reform and Responsibility Act. Now, nearly 4 years later, this Nation, built by immigrants, has witnessed broken families, devastated U.S. citizens, and people unjustly deported and jailed because of unjust provisions included in this bill

In the Third Congressional District of Massachusetts, which I represent, there are large concentrations of immigrant families; from Portugal, especially the Azores, Cambodia, Cape Verde, and other regions. I have listened to the anguished stories of these families. Some families have members facing deportation for felony convictions committed years ago, and the person responsible has served time and made restitution to this community.

H.R. 5062 gives new hope to these desperate families. It does not fix all the problems, but it is an important step in

Again, I want to thank all those involved for bringing it to the floor. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 5062.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the Chair the amount of time remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) has 6 minutes remaining.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER), a gentleman who has worked very hard on these issues, and these issues are particularly important to his constituents.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time, and I also rise in support of H.R. 5062.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCoL-LUM) for offering this legislation; the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), the chairman of the subcommittee for bringing it to us; and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), the chairman of the full committee; and their counterparts, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank), and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACK-SON-LEE) for working so hard on this bill. All of them have graciously given me time to point out the situation that this has caused in San Diego, California, where we have hundreds of families affected by the legislation that was passed in 1996.

Like my colleagues, I rise to say that we must stop deporting hard-working legal immigrants only because they committed a minor infraction years or even decades ago. We must stop hauling parents away in the middle of the night in front of their children and denying these people, now in detention, the most basic constitutional rights that we in America believe everyone should have.

That is exactly what the 1996 law did. It redefined the term aggravated felony to cover virtually every crime ever committed. It was retroactive, covering misdemeanor crimes decades ago, and denied basic constitutional protections, such as bail and visitation rights. I repeat, we are talking about legal immigrants, immigrants residing in this country in legal fashion, who have paid their debt, if appropriate, to our society.

So we are now rolling back several of the provisions of the 1996 law and allowing those who have been deported to appeal to return to the United States. This is a great and positive step. It will mean much to hundreds and hundreds of families in San Diego, California, and it means a lot to all Americans that we are restoring liberty and justice for all.

I urge everyone to support this legislation.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentle-woman from Chicago, Illinois (Ms. Schakowsky). We have worked together on battered immigrant legislation, and I appreciate her work on these matters.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

I represent a district, and I am proud to, that is probably one of the most diverse in the Nation. It is really a gateway to the United States for people from every part of the globe. They embrace our country in a way that demonstrates their willingness to play by the rules.

We are talking about people affected by this bill who are legally in the United States and, in the case of those people who have been impacted specifically by the provisions of the 1996 law, if they have committed some sort of infraction, have paid for that. They have already done that.

What this bill has done is cause pain to so many families because the rules have been changed, which in some ways is not really a very American idea, saying that now, even though they have paid the price, they are going to be deported because we have redefined that infraction that they have committed and they are going to be out. It means that they have to leave their families, and the pain that it has caused can be corrected by supporting H.R. 5062.

I urge that support, Mr. Speaker.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to once again ask for support of this legislation. I would hope that this is painless so that we can rid the pain to others.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 was touted as legislation that would control illegal immigration. It actually has many provisions that significantly affect American families, legal immigration and others seeking to enter the United States legally. Among other things, the 1996 law subjects long-time lawful permanent residents to deportation for minor offenses committed prior to the enactment of the 1996 law.

H.R. 5062 is the product of negotiations between Representative BARNEY FRANK, HENRY HYDE and BILL McCollum:

It applies only to eliminating mandatory deportation of legal permanent residents who committed offenses that were not deportable prior to enactment of the 1996 law.

Mandatory deportation will not be required for persons who were convicted prior to September 30, 1996, of "aggravated felonies" that were not deportable offenses at the time of the conviction. Such persons will be eligible to apply for cancellation of removal.

People who have already been deported under the retroactive provisions of this law will be allowed to apply for readmission to this country, thus providing an avenue for the reunification of families that were split apart by the retroactive impact of the 1996 law.

A technical provision known as the "stoptime rule" also will be eliminated for those offenses committed on or before enactment of the 1996 law. This provision enables persons to take advantage of cancellation of removal.

This bill is only a modest bill—merely a first step toward the reforms needed to address the injustices of the overly harsh 1996 law. With regard to retroactivity, persons who are deportable under the 1996 law remain deportable. Though they can apply for cancellation of removal, they may be ineligible for other benefits such as naturalization. Moreover, the bill applies only to convictions—rather than offenses-that occurred prior to the 1996 law.

More broadly, the harshness of the 1996 immigration law must be mitigated in future bills as seen in Representative JOHN CONYERS' H.R. 4966 (Fix '96 bill). The 1996 law must be changed to restore judicial review and discretion to the Attorney General and the courts, eliminate mandatory detention, and revoke retroactive enforcement of the 1996 law on a more comprehensive basis.

Mr. McCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 5062 and urge my colleagues to vote for this important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, this bill corrects an injustice in our laws. In 1996, Congress made several modifications to the nation's immigration law that had a harsh and unintended impact on many permanent resident aliens who live in the United States. Under these modifications, legal aliens who had lived in the United States for many years, and who may have entered a plea for a burdlary or simple assault years ago, suddenly were subject to automatic deportation with no right to seek a waiver from the Attorney General, as had been the law. This retroactive feature was a creation of the other body and was something I opposed in 1996. It is wrong and bad law.

The House intention under the 1996 act was to deport those immigrants who were guilty of a dangerous aggravated felony. However, a House/Senate Conference significantly expanded the definition of such felonies to include relatively minor crimes, and then applied the law retroactively. As a consequence, individuals who had committed comparatively minor crimes would be deported, even if the crime was committed 30 or 40 years ago.

The result, Mr. Speaker, was a manifest iniustice.

I will cite one example: Olufoake Olaleye, a legal permanent immigrant originally from Nigeria and mother to two American born children had lived in the United States for a number of years and had supported her family without ever having taken a nickel of public assistance. She was hard working, dedicated to her family, and in 1993 she was charged with shoplifting $14.99 worth of baby clothes after she attempted to return several items to an Atlanta clothing store without a receipt.

Olufoake, not unreasonably, wanted the matter resolved quickly and so appeared in court with a lawyer where she pled guilty, paid a fine, and was given a 12 month suspended sentence. There the matter would have rested. Unfortunately, under the 1996 law, her crime was considered an aggravated felony, and because the '96 bill included retroactivity provisions, the I.N.S. reopened her case and ordered her deported.

Mr. Speaker, it is wrong to retroactively deport a hard working immigrant for stealing $14.99 worth of baby clothes and to equate shoplifting with murder, rape and armed robbery. This Congress, with the best of intentions, went too far. H.R. 5062 will go a long way towards correcting this by eliminating retroactivity.

Mr. Speaker, we are a just and fair nation and must strike a just and fair balance in our immigration codes. H.R. 5062 does just that and I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this bill.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5062.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) and the gentleman from California (Mr. BER-MAN) will each control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 5106, the bill under consideration, and to insert extraneous material in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume; and I rise today in support of H.R. 5106, the Copyright Technical Corrections Act of 2000 and urge the House to adopt the measure.

H.R. 5106 makes purely technical amendments to Title I of the Intellectual Property and Communications Omnibus Reform Act of 1999 and Title 17. H.R. 5106 corrects errors in references, spelling and punctuation, conforms the table of contents with section headings, restores the definitions in chapter 1 to alphabetical order, deletes an expired paragraph, and creates continuity in the grammatical style used.

This legislation makes necessary improvements to the Copyright Act. The Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property and the Committee on the Judiciary support H.R. 5106 in a bipartisan manner and I urge its adoption today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) once again for his able leadership in moving this bill forward expeditiously.

H.R. 5106, the Copyright Technical Corrections Act of 2000, which I introduced with the chairman earlier this month, makes a number of technical corrections which merely change punctuation, correct cross references or paragraph numbering or correct editorial style in copyright law.

I want to join the chairman in thanking the Copyright Office and the legislative counsel for their assistance in the drafting of this bill, along with the staffs to the majority and my own subcommittee minority staff as well.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support for the

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am supportive of the goals targeted by H.R. 5106, the "Copyright Technical Corrections Act of 2000. This bill will make a number of technical corrections to the Amendments to Intellectual Property and Communications Omnibus Reform Act of 1999, which was passed and signed into law by the first session of the 106th Congress.

These corrections will allow for clarification of the intent and scope of the 1999 legislation and provide this Congress with an opportunity to correct errors, which have been identified in the current copyright law that have been iden-

The copyright laws of the United States provide legal rights to exclusive publication, production, sale, or distribution of a literary, musical, or artistic work, which also includes computer software programs. These laws provide security for those are engaged commercial transactions of every description. A few of these forms of commercial transaction are television, and radio programming, newspaper, and magazine publication as well as electronic commercial transactions that involve the commercial exchange of information.

It is my hope that the work we do today relating to copyright law will ensure the protection of artist's work well into this new century.

I would like to thank my colleagues on the House Judiciary Committee for their work in bringing this legislation to be considered by the Full House.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5106, as amended.

The question was taken: and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 5107, the bill under consideration, and to insert extraneous material in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Work Made for Hire and Copyright Technical Corrections Act of 2000 and urge the House to adopt this measure.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 5107 is non-controversial. It repealed an amendment in the Intellectual Property and Communication Omnibus Reform Act of 1999, IPCORA, which inserted sound recordings as a type of work that is eligible for work-made-for-hire status.

Following passage of the amendment in 1999, some recording artists argued that the change was not a mere clarification of the law and that it had substantively affected their rights. After the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) and I had several meetings and agreed that a hearing was in order, the Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property subsequently conducted a hearing on the issue of sound recordings as works made for hire on May 25, 2000.

A compromise solution was reached and H.R. 5107 implements that solution. It repeals the amendment in question without prejudice. In other words, it restores any person or entity to the same legal position they occupied prior to the enactment of the amendment in November 1999.

H.R. 5107 states that in determining whether any work is eligible for work-made-for-hire-status, neither the amendment in IPCORA nor the deletion of the amendment through H.R. 5107 shall be considered or otherwise given any legal significance or shall be interpreted to indicate congressional approval or disapproval of any judicial determination by the courts or the Copyright Office.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. Berman), the ranking member of the subcommittee; the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Conyers), the ranking member of the full committee; the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hyde), chairman of the full committee; and the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Bono) on our committee. There are others who will speak to this issue who also were helpful.

H.R. 5107 also includes other noncontroversial corrections to the Copyright Act. These amendments remove expired sections and clarify miscellaneous provisions governing fees and recordkeeping procedures. They will improve the operation of the Copyright Office and clarify United States copyright law.

The manager's amendment to H.R. 5107 that we are voting on today makes purely technical and noncontroversial changes to the text of H.R. 5107 as it was reported from the Committee on the Judiciary. The Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property and the Committee on the Judiciary support H.R. 5107 in a bipartisan manner, and I urge its adoption today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

My colleagues, this is a great day for musicians who create their own music and musicians that perform, and so I am pleased to rise in support as a cosponsor of H.R. 5107 because it strikes sound recordings from the definition of work made for hire in section 101 of the Copyright Act.

□ 1330

The bill undoes an unfortunate amendment to the Copyright Act made last November which changed the act to treat sound recordings as "works made for hire."

Without the benefit of committee hearings or other debate, the change terminated any future interest that artists might have in their sound recordings and turned them over permanently to the record companies. We have since learned that we should never do business this way.

After hearing testimony at the subcommittee level, all of the interested parties, I am glad to say, the subcommittee members, the recording artists and the recording industry itself, agreed that the provision was a substantive change in law and should be struck so that the law could be returned to the status quo ante. That is what brings us here today.

Returning the law to where it was before November of 1999 will ensure that any and all artists' authorship rights are preserved. Fortunately, the recording industry has worked diligently with the recording artists for the past several months to arrive at mutually agreed language. While slightly awkward in its legislative construction, I nevertheless want to compliment both parties in their efforts to reach compromise.

Now, the digital era lends to creators great opportunities for marketing their works of authorship and, at the same time, great perils of theft of those works. As we try in other legislative contexts to protect intellectual property rights in an open system of the Internet, we should not be changing the rules of such property rights in the middle of the night without hearings or proper committee consideration, as happened last year when this provision was first inserted.

I express my appreciation that we are undoing this unwise change, and I thank all of my colleagues that participated in bringing this measure to the floor and ask all of the Members of the House to give an ave vote on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN), a very important member of the committee that worked on this legislation. He has been in this area for many years, and he did very important work in this area.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman, my friend and the ranking member of the committee, for yielding me a generous amount of time. I would like to do several things in that time.

First, I would like to commend a number of colleagues who have played pivotal roles in moving this important legislation, most specially the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE), the chairman of our judiciary subcommittee. He deserves particular praise for his open-mindedness and his perseverance on this issue. There were times when people sought to impugn his motives. Notwithstanding that and the total lack of basis for that, he rose above the human tendency to retaliate and proceeded ahead, I think, very fairly and in wonderful fashion to help us come to this kind of conclusion. Without his efforts, this bill would not have had a chance of passing.

I also want to recognize several colleagues who have played pivotal roles: the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary, who has been a champion for the rights of recording artists; the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BOUCHER); the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN); the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WEXLER); the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT); as well as two individuals, one on the majority side, the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. Bono), who we spent a lot of time on airplanes to California discussing this issue, and a non-member of the committee who is particularly interested in this issue and the rights of recording artists, the gentlewoman from Missouri (Ms. McCarthy).

Section 2 of H.R. 5107 fulfills an important objective. It returns the law on the eligibility of sound recordings as "works made for hire" to its state prior to November 29, 1999. Equally important, it restores the state of the law without prejudicing the rights of any affected parties.

Finally, section 3 of H.R. 5107 makes certain unrelated changes to the Copyright Act to improve the operations of the U.S. Copyright Office. H.R. 5107 is strongly supported by both Democrats and Republicans. The bipartisan support for this bill is not surprising. It is wholly nonpartisan in nature.

H.R. 5107 is also supported by all affected private parties of whom I am aware. In fact, the language of H.R. 5107 is the successful outcome of several months of negotiations between representatives of the recording artists and the reporting industry.

For this accomplishment we owe a special note of gratitude to Jay Cooper and Cary Sherman, who represent the recording artists and recording industry, respectively. These gentlemen did yeoman's work and sacrificed many hours when they were supposed to be on vacation to craft acceptable language under often difficult circumstances and time constraints.

I would also like to thank the recording artists and record companies who worked so diligently to build this consensus.

The substance of H.R. 5107 is relatively easy to explain, while its impact is more difficult to express.

Section 2(a)(1) of this bill would remove the words "as a sound recording" from paragraph (2) of the definition of "works made for hire" in section 101 of the Copyright Act, words that this Congress added less than a year ago through section 1000(a)(9) of Public Law Number 106–113. When Congress enacted section 1000(a)(9) last year, we believed it was a non-controversial, technical change that merely clarified current law. However, since that time, we have been contacted by many organizations, legal scholars, and recording artists who take strong issue with section 1000(a)(9), asserting that it constitutes a significant, substantive change in law.

We have discovered that there exists a serious debate about whether sound recordings always, usually, sometimes, or never fell within the nine pre-existing categories of works eligible to be considered "works made for hire."

By mandating that all sound recordings are eligible to be "works made for hire," section 1000(a)(9) effectively resolved this debate and impaired the ability of creators of sound recordings that argue that particular sound recordings and sound recordings in general cannot be made "works made for hire." This, in turn, effectively prevents creators of sound recordings from attempting to exercise termination rights under section 203 of title 17, thus reclaiming their copyrights 35 years after an assignment of those rights.

By undoing section 1000(a)(9), section 2(a)(1) of this bill will prevent any prejudice to the legal arguments of creators of sound recordings. However, we are sensitive that, in undoing that amendment made by section 1000(a)(9), we must be careful not to adversely affect or prejudice the rights of other interested parties.

Specifically, we do not want the removal of the words "as a sound recordfrom the definition of "works made for hire" to be interpreted to preclude or prejudice the argument that sound recordings are eligible to be "works made for hire" within the nine preexisting categories. In essence, we want the removal of the words "as a sound recording" from section 101 of the Copyright Act to return the law to the status quo ante so that all affected parties have the same rights and legal arguments that they had prior to enactment of section 1000(a)(9).

It is for these reasons that we were convinced of the need to include section 2(a)(2) within this statute, which is intended to ensure that the removal of the words "as a sound recording" will have no legal effect other than returning the law to the exact state existing prior to the enactment of section 1000(a)(9). With the inclusion of section 2(a)(2) in this bill, we ensure that courts will interpret section 101 exactly as they would have interpreted it if neither section 1000(a)(9) nor section 2(a)(1) of this bill were ever enacted.

In short, and in conclusion, we believe passage of this bill is vital to ensure that whatever rights the authors of sound recordings may have had previously are restored and that such restoration is achieved in a way that does not unfairly impair the rights of others.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. BONO).

Mrs. BONO. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to stand before my colleagues today to speak in favor of H.R. 5107, the Work Made for Hire and Copyright Corrections Act of 2000. I am pleased that H.R. 5107 is being considered on the floor today, and I support this legislation.

This bill not only levels the playing field for both artists and the recording industry, but it also reverses the 1999 amendment to the Copyright Act that would have taken advantage of young artists who are not emotionally or financially prepared to sign their recording lives away.

As a member of the House Committee on the Judiciary, which considered this legislation, I am pleased that both sides of this debate were willing to sit down and draft a proposal that ensures that both the authors and the recording industry both benefit from such a well-conceived compromise.

I would like to thank the House Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property chairman, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE), and the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) for their hard work, persistence, and wisdom in pursuing a mutual understanding that reflects the thoughts and desires of both sides on this issue.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Kansas City, Missouri (Ms. McCarthy). No one has worked harder in the committee and in the negotiations than she.

(Ms. McCARTHY of Missouri asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. McCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 5107, the Works Made for Hire and Copyright Corrections Act, a resolution to rectify a complex and contentious copyright issue for recording artists and record companies.

Just prior to adjournment last year, four seemingly innocuous words were added to the Satellite Home Viewers Improvement Act: "as a sound recording." But these words were inordinately powerful. Their insertion threatened one of our most precious rights, the right to claim ownership of one's artistic creations. By inserting 'as a sound recording' into the bill, the work for hire provision of U.S. copyright law (revised in 1976) was fundamentally changed to prohibit the ownership of a sound recording by its creator after 35 years of sometimes onerous exploitation by a record com-

Typically, after the 35-year term, ownership of these works returned automatically to the creator. But these four words denied forever the rights of recording artists to own their creative and deeply personal expression of themselves they so generously share with the rest of us. The words also revised existing law and industry practice and did not merely clarify it.

The measure before us today corrects this injustice and repeals without prejudice the change made to U.S. copyright law last year.

I commend Jay Cooper, counsel to the artists groups, and Cary Sherman, Senior Executive Vice President and General Counsel of the Recording Industry Association of America, for their resolute commitment to negotiate a mutually agreeable solution.

I would also like to extend my heartfelt congratulations to the recording artists who made Congress aware of the need to restore their rights, in particular Don Henley and Sheryl Crow, cofounders of the Recording Artists Coalition.

I also applaud the tireless efforts of the members of the Recording Academy, Adam Sandler, and in particular, the Academy's president and CEO, Michael Greene. Without their perseverance and tenacity, this resolution would not have been reached. I also want to recognize the work of Margaret Cone and Susan Riley with the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists for their help.

From the bottom of my heart. I want to thank the gentleman from North Carolina (Chairman COBLE), the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN), and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) of the Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property for their active involvement and commitment to resolving this work-for-hire issue.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to join with members of the Committee on the Judiciary as a cosponsor of the legislation and especially with three of my colleagues on the subcommittee who also have been an integral part of this process: the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BOUCHER), and the gentlewomen from California (Ms. LOFGREN) and (Mrs. Bono). I applaud the Committee for working together in a spirit of bipartisanship.

I urge Members of the House to vote ves on this resolution, and I urge the Senate to work together as we did for swift passage this session.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I reserve

the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN).

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I simply wanted to add, while this in some way seems like a simple and straightforward proposition, it took a huge amount of time. I think it is worth paying special note to the staff, to Debbie Rose Aaron Blain, and Sampak Garg, Alec French of the subcommittee staff, and Stacy Baird and all the other staffers who worked on this, because they did invest a great deal of time; and I think they should be commended for that.

□ 1345

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 10 seconds to support the observations of the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) and to single out Alec French and Sampak Garg on our judiciary staff who were so excellent.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

In closing, the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN) was very generous in his remarks to me. I want to remind my colleagues, there were two mules pulling that wagon, and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) referred to the two Howards. I refer to us as the two mules because it became heavy lifting at times. As has already been mentioned, I mentioned the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE). They were both helpful to us. The recording industry and the artist community were both helpful.

Mr. Speaker, there was no ill intent involved with this. The Committee on the Judiciary submitted, or dispatched, six conferees, three Democrats and three Republicans. All six of us signed the conference report. It was my belief that we were merely codifying accepted practice, but that is subject to interpretation. With the passage of this bill today, I think that both parties, that is, the recording industry and the artist community, will both breathe easier, particularly the artist community. I too want to thank the staffers. Both Democrat and Republican staffers worked very diligently on this matter.

Ms. JACKŠON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I would like to offer comment on H.R. 5107, the Work Made for Hire and Copyright Corrections Act of 2000, for consideration. Under 17 United States Code 203, authors of copyrighted works have the right to terminate assignments of their copyrights thirty-five years after an assignment. Section 203 is designed to ensure that authors, who may have received very little compensation for the initial assignment of their copyrights, get a "second bite at the apple" if those copyrights have value after thirty-five years.

Unfortunately, the right to termination cannot be exercised by those creators of copyrighted works that are defined as "works made for hire," under 17 U.S.C. 101. Under Section 101, a work made for hire may be defined as: a work prepared by an employee within the scope of employment, or a work specially ordered or commissioned for use as one of ten, or in the case of statutorily specified categories of works. Statutorily specified work under the condition of a written agreement specifying the work shall be considered made for hire then it is considered under the conditions of section 101.

After the enactment of the new copyright law many organizations, legal scholars, and recording artists took strong issue with it, asserting that it constitutes a significant, substantive change in law. However, representatives of record companies and some legal scholars strongly disagreed with this position, and insisted that the new copyright law merely clarified prior law. The core of the disagreement between the opposing sides centers around pre-existing categories of works made for hire, and thus the extent to which sound recordings were previously eligible to be works made for hire

This bill only attempts to return the law regarding copyrighted work that was created as

"work made for hire" to its original state before the passage of the 1999 copyright legisla-

It is my hope that in the next Congress we will have an opportunity for hearing and full deliberation in this matter so that artists and commercial interest in copyrighted work can both be served by the copyright laws of our nation. I support this legislation and urge my colleagues to pass this.

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. COBLE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5107, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The amendment made by paragraph (2) shall be effective as if included in the enactment of section 215 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-208; 110 Stat. 3009-572). The amendments made by paragraphs (1) and (2) shall apply to an alien prosecuted on or after September 30, 1996, except in the case of an alien whose criminal proceeding (including judicial review thereof) has been finally concluded before the date of the enactment of this Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2883, the Adopted Orphans Citizenship Act, is designed to streamline the acquisition of United States citizenship by foreign children after they are adopted by American citizens. The bill makes the Federal Government a partner with parents who, with great compassion, adopt children from overseas.

The original bill was improved by an amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Delahunt). I want to thank him for suggesting the changes made in the amendment. He speaks with great credibility since he and his wife adopted a daughter from Vietnam at the end of the Vietnam War.

Under current law, when U.S. citizens adopt a child from another country, the child does not automatically become an American citizen. The parents have to apply to the Attorney General for a certificate of citizenship and the child then has to take the oath of allegiance required of naturalized citizens. This process can take years because of the naturalization backlog at the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

There is no reason to make adoptive parents and their new children to have to go through this laborious process.

After an adoption takes place and the child is brought to the United States consistent with United States immigration law, the child should automatically be considered a citizen.

This bill provides that internationally adopted children, and those children born to U.S. citizens overseas who are not considered citizens at birth, will become citizens as of the time they come to reside in the United States.

I should point out that it two U.S. citizens have a child overseas, the child is not considered a citizen at birth if neither parent has had a residence in the United States. Also, if a U.S. citizen and an alien have a child overseas, the child is not considered a citizen at birth if the citizen parent has not lived in the United States for five years, at least two of which were after the age of 14. Under current law, such individuals have to go through a petition process in order to obtain citizenship.

The adopted children covered in this bill will be considered citizens automatically when certain conditions have been met.

First, at least one parent has to be a U.S. citizen. Second, the child must be under 18. Third, the child must be residing in the United States in the legal and physical custody of the citizen parent.

H.R. 2883's grant of citizenship will also apply to qualifying children who arrived in the United States prior to its enactment and have not yet obtained citizenship pursuant to the Immigration and Nationality Act (as it existed before enactment).

The manager's amendment to the bill addresses the situation of aliens who have improperly voted in federal, state or local elections, or represented themselves as citizens for the purpose of registering to vote or to procure benefits under the Immigration and Nationality Act or any other federal or state laws. The amendment is intended to provide a limited class of aliens with exemptions from the penalties in the Immigration and Nationality Act and title 18 governing illegal voting and false claims of citizenship.

In some cases, individuals had a reasonable—if mistaken—belief that they were citizens of the United States. This can occur among foreign-born children brought to the United States at a young age if their parents did not realize that the children did not become citizens automatically. Of course, the enactment of H.R. 2883 and its expansion of automatic citizenship to more foreign-born children of U.S. citizens will greatly reduce the number of cases in which such a mistake can be made.

One such case is that of a Korean orphan adopted at the age of four months by an American Air Force Master Sergeant and his American wife while they were stationed overseas. That orphan entered the U.S. with her adoptive parents when she was two years old and has spent the rest of her life in this country. it was only after she became an adult that it became known to her that her parents had never filed the necessary papers to naturalize her prior to her eighteenth birthday. Consequently, under current law, she is subject to potential deportation and even prosecution because she mistakenly voted, thinking she already was a U.S. citizen. It simply would not be fair to subject such an individual to penalties under the immigration law for genuinely innocent acts.

The protections in the managers' amendment (title II of the bill) are granted to an alien if: (1) each natural or adoptive parent of the alien is or was a citizen of the United States; (2) the alien permanently resided in the United States prior to attaining the age of 16; and (3) the alien reasonably believed at the time of voting or falsely claiming citizenship (to obtain an immigration or other benefit under federal or state law) that he or she was a citizen of the United States.

An alien who meets this standard is protected against a finding that the alien was not of good moral character (among other things, a bar to naturalization), and is protected against being considered inadmissible or deportable. In addition, an alien who meets this standard shall not be subject to prosecution under sections 611 and 1015 of title 18.

All of these amendments are effective as if they were included in the relevant sections of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 2883. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I thank the gentleman from Texas for his work. Let me as well add my support for this legislation and thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) for his leadership. This simply clearly allows an adopted child as we all believe in this country has equal status with our own birth children, this adopted child that is adopted by a citizen of the United States will now have the same rights as a child born overseas to a citizen parent. I believe this legislation clearly promotes children's interests and puts children first.

Finally, I think it is important to note that we protect those individuals who vote, who believed because of their status with a citizenship parent that they had in fact citizenship, did not intentionally vote incorrectly inasmuch as they may not have had citizenship. It protects them from criminal prosecution so that the matter can be remedied and protects the voting privileges of the United States but also protects those who are well intended.

Again, let me applaud both the chairman and the ranking member of the full committee, again the chairman of this committee and as well indicate that I hope my colleagues will support this legislation, H.R. 2883.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Child Citizenship Act of 2000, H.R. 2883. This bill would amend section 320 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, the "INA," to include adopted children within its provision for automatic acquisition of citizenship in the case of certain children born outside of the United States who have a citizen parent. It also would amend section 320 of the INA to include adopted children within its provision for citizenship through the naturalization process for children born outside of the United States to a citizen parent who cannot under current law qualify for automatic citizenship.

Including adopted children within the provision for automatic citizenship would greatly reduce the time and paperwork required for adoptive parents to procure citizenship for their children. I think it is very important to do away with unnecessary distinctions between children by birth and children by adoption, particularly with respect to such things as paperwork requirements. The United States citizens who adopt foreign born children have enough paperwork to do in the adoption process.

The Child Citizenship Act also provides protections for certain aliens who vote in a United States election on the basis of a reasonable belief that they are citizens of the United States. It would protect them from being precluded from a finding of "good moral character," which is necessary for a number of important benefits under the INA, such as naturalization. It also would protect them from being considered inadmissible or deportable for voting in the election, and from certain criminal sanctions.

Voting in a United States election is one of the most precious rights of citizenship. I agree that people who vote knowing that they are not eligible for this privilege should be subjected to removal proceedings and in some cases to criminal prosecution, but I do not want this to happen in the case of a person who has a good faith belief that he is a citizen of the United States and has a right to vote. The law on automatic citizenship is difficult even for lawyers to understand. I am not at all surprised that people make mistakes when they interpret these provisions.

I urge you to support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT), the moving person of this legislation and one with a direct and very special interest and thank him for his leader-

Mr. DELAHUNT. I thank the gentlewoman from Texas for yielding me this

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased today to join my good friend from Texas, the chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, in support of this amended bill. I want to express my truly profound gratitude to him for his willingness to address the concerns that were raised by the administration and others regarding the bill as originally introduced. The bill before us is a consensus effort. In this time of cynicism about government and the sometimes strident debate we hear, this kind of bipartisan effort should remind the American people that Members with different perspectives who work hard and act in good faith can accomplish an excellent and bipartisan result. Again, I thank the gentleman from Texas for his leadership.

I also want to acknowledge the critical involvement of Senator Don NICK-LES, the author of the companion bill in the Senate, as well as Senators KEN-NEDY and LANDRIEU who worked so closely with us to get this measure, hopefully, to the President's desk.

Finally, let me express my appreciation to a number of key staff members without whom we would not be here today. I notice George Fishman, counsel to the subcommittee, and Peter Levinson of the full committee staff also played a key role. I would be remiss not to note the contribution of a Senate staffer, McLane Layton of Senator NICKLES' staff, who has not only been a major force behind this legislation but is herself the parent of children adopted from Latvia. Her concern and passion to remedy discrimination against adopted children is truly remarkable. I would also be remiss not to mention my own legislative director who has poured his heart and soul into this effort, Mark Agrast.

Mr. Speaker, today is truly a good day, a day that has been long in coming for adoptive parents like myself who feel deeply that their children who were born overseas have been treated differently, as if they were less American than are children who were born in the United States. For the law currently provides that our foreign-born sons and daughters are aliens. They do not have the benefits of citizenship when they arrive on our shores, come into our homes and fill up our lives with joy and love. No, we must petition for naturalization on their behalf, as if we, their parents, were not American citizens. That is unacceptable to Americans who have adopted and particularly for those who are considering adoption. That lengthy process of naturalization requires them to deal with a bureaucracy that is already overburdened and lacking in resources, for no valid reason. It is insulting to parents who have already overcome innumerable administrative obstacles to adopt our children and to bring them home. And more importantly, it is disrespectful to our children.

This bill would change all that. Under the bill, citizenship would be conferred automatically on all adopted children once they are in the United States. Parents will no longer be required to submit an application to have their children naturalized. Adopted children will no longer be the subject of discrimination. And parents will no longer need to worry about whether their children are citizens or not. And, of course, the INS will be relieved of the need to spend its limited resources on some 16,000 naturalization cases for the past year alone, and that number is expected to increase.

Furthermore, this bill would avoid some heartbreaking injustices that have sometimes tragically occurred. Some parents have discovered to their horror that their failure to complete the paperwork in time can result in their forced separation from their children under the summary deportation provisions Congress enacted back in 1996.

That was the experience of the Gaul family of Florida who adopted their son John at the age of 4. Though he was born in Thailand, he speaks no Thai, has no Thai relatives, knows nothing of Thai culture and has never been back to Thailand, until the U.S. Government deported him last year as a criminal alien at the age of 25 for property offenses that he had committed when he was a teenager.

One may ask how this could happen. The Gauls had obtained an American birth certificate for John shortly after adopting him and did not realize until he applied for a passport at age 17 that he had never been naturalized. They immediately filed the papers; but due to INS delays, his application was not processed before he turned 18. An immigration judge ruled that the agency had taken too long to process the application, but that did not make any difference. The 1996 law allowed him no discretion to halt the deportation. At least that is how the INS interpreted

In another recent incident, Joao Herbert, a 22-year-old Ohioan adopted as a young boy from Brazil, was ordered deported because as a teenager he sold several ounces of marijuana to a police informant. It was his first criminal offense, for which he was sentenced only to probation and community treatment. But under the law he was an aggravated felon subject to deportation because he had never been naturalized. He has now been in detention for a year and a half because the Brazilians consider his adoption irrevocable and refuse to accept him. And were they to do so, it is uncertain how he would get by. Like John Gaul, he knows no one in his native country and no longer understands his native tongue.

No one condones criminal acts, Mr. Speaker; but the terrible price these young people and their families have paid is out of proportion to their misdeeds. Whatever they did, they should be treated like any other American kid. They are our children, and we are responsible for them.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, the bill provides relief from deportation to one particular group of noncitizens who are subject to deportation under the 1996 law, namely, those who voted or registered to vote in U.S. elections in the reasonable mistaken belief that they were citizens at the time. This is a modest but important change that will correct a glaring injustice in our immigration laws.

The Child Citizenship Act of 2000 enjoys bipartisan and bicameral support and the full support of the administration. Again, I want to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) and his staff and our colleagues at INS for their cooperation and hard work in enabling us to reach this result. I urge all of my colleagues to join in support of this legislation.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation to remedy this important flaw in our immigration laws.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I want to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) for his generous comments.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to join my good friend from Massachusetts (Mr. DELAHUNT) and other members of the Judiciary Committee in support of H.R. 2883, the Child Citizenship Act of 2000, as amended. And I want to thank all Members who worked together to find common ground so that this legislation could move forward in a way that was acceptable to the Administration as well as the House and the Senate.

Over the course of the last year and more, the Committee on International Relations has been working on implementing legislation for the Hague Convention on Inter-Country Adoption, which this House took up and passed last night. This brought to my attention once again the difficult, and what must sometimes seem endless, procedures faced by U.S. citizens in adopting foreign-born children. We have all had constituents who have called our offices, desperate for help in solving last minute difficulties that have arisen in their search to build their family. After all the exhausting paperwork, extensive travel, and sometimes heart-wrenching experiences associated with so many international adoptions, it is unfortunate that U.S. families must negotiate yet another paper maze to obtain U.S. citizenship for their children. This additional hurdle is particularly difficult because upon their return many parents look forward to settling down to the joy of family life and its new challenges; they are not seeking yet more forms to fill out and move through the Immigration and Nationalization Service.

It was for this reason that I was the original co-sponsor of H.R. 3667, introduced by my good friend from Massachusetts, Mr. DELAHUNT, which has now been combined with the measure the House is taking up today. Once these children arrive in the United States, and the adoption is finalized, these children should be U.S. citizens, without going through a further naturalization process. And that is what H.R. 2883 does.

But we should remember that this is not just to avoid paperwork or ease mental discomfort. H.R. 2883 will end the occasional instance of injustice perpetrated by our immigration system. As mentioned by colleagues, there are tragic cases where children of U.S. parents, never naturalized because of inadvertence, are facing deportation because of a crime they have committed. While these children must face their punishment, to deport them to countries with which they have no contact, no ability to speak the language, and no family known to them is needlessly cruel. We must be sure that this never happens again.

I once again commend the sponsors of this legislation on both sides of the aisle and hope for its expedited consideration in the Senate.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that my colleagues have passed H.R. 2883, the Adopted Orphans Citizenship Act, and I wish to add my strong support for this long overdue legislation. H.R. 2883 would restore fairness to our immigration law by removing the burdensome requirement that U.S. citizen parents apply for naturalization for their foreign-born adopted children.

What our current immigration policy says to parents is that adopted foreignborn children are not equal to their biological siblings and are not worthy of automatic U.S. citizenship. Requiring foreign-born adopted children to apply for naturalization is insulting and it's wrong, with the passage of H.R. 2883, we are sending a clear message to American parents that, should they choose to adopt a child from another country. U.S. citizenship will be awaiting that child once he or she sets foot on U.S. soil. As the aunt of Koreanborn Jamie and Natalie, I strongly identify with this issue.

The birthright of all children of U.S. citizen parents, whether they are biological or adopted should be automatic U.S. citizenship. This bill will simplify the already complicated and complex process parents undertake when they embark on an international adoption and I applaud its passage.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2883, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read: "A bill to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to modify the provisions governing acquisition of citizenship by children born outside of the United States, and for other purposes.".

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table

RELIGIOUS WORKERS ACT OF 2000

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4068) to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to extend for an additional 3 years the special immigrant religious worker program.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 4068

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Religious Workers Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. 3-YEAR EXTENSION OF SPECIAL IMMI-GRANT RELIGIOUS WORKER PRO-GRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 101(a)(27)(C)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)(C)(ii)) is amended by striking "2000," each place it appears and inserting "2003,".

ing ''2003,''.
(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect on October 1, 2000.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 4068.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, under the Immigration and Nationality Act, a program exists which authorizes religious denominations throughout the United States to sponsor nonminister workers in religious vocations and religious occupations, such as lay workers, to enter the United States as permanent residents.

This program also authorizes visas for temporary nonimmigrant religious workers who will serve for a period not exceeding 5 years. This program was created by Congress in 1990 and has been extended several times. The nonminister religious worker programs will expire September 30th of this year; therefore, an extension of the existing program is necessary and must be accomplished with expediency.

As it exists, the legislation requires that an immigrant religious worker has been carrying on such vocation continuously for at least the 2-year period immediately preceding the time of application. This requirement was thought to reduce the likelihood of fraudulent applications; however, the Department of Justice and the INS have raised concerns regarding suspected fraud existent in the program.

Because of a vague definition of religious worker and the inability to require other precise definitions of religion, there has been suggestion of fraudulent applications in both the temporary and permanent categories.

In opposition to the views of the Department of Justice and the INS, religious institutions assert that a quantity of fraudulent applications has not been verified. The religious institutions hold the view that the limited number of visas granted per year for the nonminister aliens, which is not to exceed 5,000 persons, does not demand the addition of antifraud provisions to the existing programs.

In order to accommodate the interests of both the administration and the religious institutions, provisions to prevent fraudulent applications were discussed. Despite numerous attempts to find a resolution to these concerns and extend the program permanently, there remains disagreement as to the suggested antifraud provisions. Therefore, this bill will extend the existing Religious Worker Visa program for an additional 3 years.

Mr. Speaker, it is my hope that within that time, Congress will develop an acceptable program which reduces potential fraud, yet not require excessive administrative demands on the religious institutions which utilize this program.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 4068 and thereby approve a 3-year extension of the existing important program.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims.

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE), my friend, for yielding the time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy to play a part in the creation of the Religious Worker Program in 1990. I support these visas since they allow American religious denominations, large and small, to benefit by the addition of committed religious workers from overseas.

The visa program expires at the end of the fiscal year September 30. H.R. 4068, introduced by our colleague, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE), extends the program for 3 additional years until October 2003.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman for all the good work he has done on this issue. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. PEASÉ. Mr. Speaker, I reserve

the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LÉE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I want to add my accolades and appreciation to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE) for H.R. 4068, and also note the great work of the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) on this matter and thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, for his work on the Religious Workers Act of 2000.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation has the support of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the Lutheran Immigration Service and many other religious organizations. It is a vital piece of legislation that again raises its head in unity of Republicans and Democrats.

This legislation allows religious organizations to sponsor nonminister religious workers from abroad to perform service in the United States. Examples of nonminister related work are included, but not limited to nuns, religious brothers, catechists, cantors, pastoral service workers, missionaries, and religious broadcasters. Such individuals make important contributions to the United States by caring for the sick, the aged, providing shelter and nutrition to the most needy, supporting families in crisis and working with the religious leaders.

Mr. Speaker, this country has always had a history of involving the religious community in public service or voluntaryism, helping the most needy of our community, and this legislation allows this to happen.

I would have liked this legislation to have been permanent, but it extends it for 3 years. I hope during this time frame we will be able to see the value of these religious workers and ensure that we work to keep them. Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, the Non-Minister Religious Worker Visa Program, originally enacted as part of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1990, allows religious organizations to sponsor non-minister religious workers from abroad to perform service in the United States. Examples of non-minister religious workers include but are not limited to: nuns, religious brothers, catechists, cantors, pastoral service workers, missionaries, and religious broadcasters. Such individuals make important contributions to the United States by: caring for the sick and aged, providing shelter and nutrition to the most needy, supporting families in crisis, and working with religious leaders.

The program is composed of two parts. Part one, the Special Immigration provision, provides for up to 5,000 Special Immigrant visas per year. Once granted, this type of visa allows religious workers to permanently immigrant to the United States. Under current law, this part of the program will expire on September 30, 2000. While this bill will extend the program for an additional 3 years, we really need a bill that makes the program permanent.

The Executive Director of the Lutheran Immigration Service has stated that, "Foreign lay religious workers admitted to the United States under this provision serve very important and traditional religious functions in the congregations and the communities where they work and live . . . in many communities, there is an increasing need for religious workers who can help develop or start congregations for certain ethnic or language groups . . . and Congress should extend the provision permanently so that religious denominations may implement, without any trepidation, long-term strategic plans that rely on lay foreign workers." However, I support this bill as it does extend the program for 3 years.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN), who has worked very hard on this legislation. I thank her for her leadership on it.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of extending the religious worker visa program. I applaud my colleagues for recognizing the importance of this provision to religious communities across America.

My only reservation to the passage of this bill is the temporary nature of the extension. I believe that Congress should extend the religious worker program permanently. I believe that the Catholic Church, the Lutheran Church, the Methodist Church, the Christian Science Church, the Church of Jesus Christ and Latter Day Saints and other churches, synagogues, temples and mosques across America have much worthier work to accomplish than lobbying politicians every 3 years to allow a few thousand nuns, monks, sisters, brothers, cantors and other religious workers to enter this country.

Religious workers are among the most valuable members of our American society. They come to America at the call of their church and expect only the opportunity to serve. The services they provide to the communities they become a part of are immeasurable. For example, religious workers are involved in caring and ministering to the sick and elderly. Think about the hospitals and local hospice care facilities across the country and the comfort those who offer spiritual solace provide.

These facilities and their patients are all the better for our religious workers. Religious workers work with adolescents and young adults offering them spiritual guidance and counsel at a critical time in their lives.

Religious workers are involved in helping refugees adjust to a new way of life. Think of how frightening it must be to come to a new land and how welcoming it must be to know that you still have a church, where someone can lead a prayer in the language of your parents.

Most importantly, religious workers help our poor. Mr. Speaker, 3 years ago, in 1997, I read a letter from Mother Teresa urging Congress to extend this program. She said "my sisters serve the poor in Detroit where we have a soup kitchen and a night shelter for women. Let us all thank God for this chance to serve his poor."

That letter moved me and many of my colleagues to create legislation that would extend this provision permanently. While I applaud Congress for bringing this H.R. 4068 to the floor, I wish with all my heart that I could make this extension a permanent one.

I thank all of my colleagues who have worked with me on this issue, and I especially want to thank the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE) for his willingness to reach across the aisle to work with me on this important issue and for his successful struggle to bring a good resolution, although not a perfect one, to the floor today. I thank the gentleman and I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that we can fix this, as we can fix other immigration issues, and I ask my colleagues to support this legislation. And I thank the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE) for his leadership.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to acknowledge the work of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims; the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), the ranking member of the subcommittee; and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) and the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON), all of whom spent a great deal of time with us and with staff and with representatives of the religious denominations trying to meet the objections that were raised by the Department of Justice and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Mr. Speaker, it was the most candid, open, honest, effort that I have seen during my time here to reach a consensus; everyone operating in good faith. We have before us what I believe is a good bill. It is not a perfect bill. But under the circumstances and given the urgency of time, I believe it is the best we can do for the most. I would encourage all my colleagues to support the legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SCARBOROUGH). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4068.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

DIVISION A-DEBT RELIEF

SEC. 100. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) fiscal discipline, resulting from the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, and strong economic growth have ended decades of deficit spending and have produced budget surpluses without using the social security surplus;

(2) fiscal pressures will mount in the future as the aging of the population increases budget obligations;

(3) until Congress and the President agree to legislation that saves social security and medicare, the social security and medicare surpluses should be used to reduce the debt held by the public;

(4) until Congress and the President agree on significant tax reductions, amounts dedicated for that purpose shall be used to reduce the debt held by the public;

(5) strengthening the Government's fiscal position through public debt reduction increases national savings, promotes economic growth, reduces interest costs, and is a constructive way to prepare for the Government's future budget obligations; and

(6) it is fiscally responsible and in the longterm national economic interest to use a portion of the nonsocial security and nonmedicare surpluses to reduce the debt held by the public.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this division to-

(1) reduce the debt held by the public by $240,000,000,000 in fiscal year 2001 with the goal of eliminating this debt by 2012;

(2) decrease the statutory limit on the public debt; and

(3) ensure that the social security and hospital insurance trust funds shall not be used for other purposes.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his inquiry.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, is it within the rules of this House under the suspension of the rules that we can bring legislation before us that has already passed the House of Representatives?

We have two bills that have already passed the House and now they are coming back. Is it within the rules of the House that we can repass same bills, the same form without any changes?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under suspension of the rules, there is no prohibition against that.

Mr. RANGEL. No prohibition?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rules of the House, there is no prohibition.

Mr. RANGEL. Okay, Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 5203.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I think perhaps my statement might very well clarify things for my friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL). One may ask why we are bringing up and voting on a bill that includes the legislation which so overwhelmingly passed this House yesterday under suspension of the rules by a vote of 381 to 3, along with the popular pension reform legislation which earlier passed by a vote of 401 to 25 and had at least 181 cosponsors including 81 House Democrats.

At a time when Washington reporters like to talk about partisan maneuvering at the end of a season to get Members out of town and back home to their districts, I would like to point out how hard the sponsors of this bill are working, including the Democrats and Republicans alike, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN), the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), the gentleman from California (Mr. HERGER), and the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER), we are working towards bipartisan solutions to important issues on which we agree.

We are delivering this to the American people in these closing days of this session of this Congress, but the reason we are taking a series of votes on the same or similar legislation is it that we need to be sure that some form of these important solutions get passed by the other Chamber and get signed into law by the President.

Mr. Speaker, I know that a lot of negotiations are going on along Pennsylvania Avenue on a variety of issues, but we are producing results on these items that are most important to the people, the people that I represent in the State of Florida; protecting Social Security and Medicare, protecting and enhancing their retirement security, and protecting our hard-earned money from wasteful Washington spenders.

Make no mistake, over the last 6 years, the Republicans have done most of the heavy lifting in cutting wasteful Washington spending and bringing the budget into balance. Now, that there is a surplus, Republicans have begun the process of responsibly paying down the national debt, while protecting Social Security and Medicare and keeping our economy strong so that future generations of Americans inherit a Nation that is free of debt with a healthy thriving economy.

In accomplishing this major feat, which less than a decade ago, seemed impossible, Republicans have adhered to some basic principles which continue to guide us as we prepare to address the challenges ahead of us, and that is saving Social Security and Medicare for future generations.

These are our basic principles, one, payroll taxes belong to the people who pay into the system, not to the government. Two, the best way to keep Washington from spending more is to take surplus cash off the table and store if in a lockbox that can only be used for Social Security, Medicare or debt reduction. Three, long-term overpayments by taxpayers should be given back to taxpayers in the form of tax relief not co-opted by those in Washington who want to spend more.

So it is logical that as we try to keep our economy strong and keep hard-earned dollars in the hands of the wage earners of this country, we focus on pension reform and other components of this goal. Increasing the savings stimulates the economic growth, reducing the government's take on a person's savings and earnings encourages people to save, leaving them more of their savings to keep them through their retirement years.

□ 1415

It is no wonder why both these bills are so popular. The question is, why are we having trouble getting similar legislation moved through the other Chamber and on to the President's desk? These are the specific reasons we are bringing up this bill today.

First, we want to try again to break the logjam in the other body on moving forward with the Social Security and Medicare lockbox. Republicans have been pushing for this legislation since early last year but have been stonewalled by the minority. Everyone from the President to the Vice President says they want this but the minority in the other body continues to block its consideration.

We hope that they are not part of some larger political game; that they will finally agree to the lockbox and get this bill signed into law.

Second, Republicans want to set aside $42 billion of the FY 2001 surplus right now for debt relief so that those funds cannot be spent on more government programs. We should not use the surplus to make government bigger; we should use it to make the national debt smaller.

We would invite the President and our colleagues in the other body to join us in this historic effort to use 90 percent of the surplus for debt relief.

Here is what our lockbox does, and, again, it is identical to the legislation that we have previously passed: one, it sets aside $240 billion for debt reduction for FY 2001 alone. That is 90 percent of the entire surplus in FY 2001 dedicated to paying down the publicly held debt and putting us on to the path of eliminating the debt by the year 2012 or perhaps even sooner. It sets aside 100 percent of the Social Security surplus to pay down the debt until we pass legislation that actually saves Social Security. That is $165 billion of debt reduction in fiscal year 2001 and $2.4 trillion over the next 10 years; $2.4 trillion.

It sets aside 100 percent of the Medicare surplus to pay down the debt until we pass legislation that saves Medicare. That is another $32 billion of debt reduction in fiscal year 2001, and another $360 billion over the next 10 years. It sets aside an additional $42 billion of the non-Social Security and non-Medicare surplus for debt reduction. An additional $42 billion of the on-budget surplus would be set aside for debt reduction in a special account in Treasury.

The bill is good for millions of Americans, especially working women who have no pension or have inadequate pension coverage today. As we will hear from other speakers today describe in even more detail, we raise the limit of IRAs from $2,000 to $5,000. As we all know, the IRAs are one of the most popular and successful programs ever conceived. As inflation has caught up with the value of the original amount people can set aside, that is $1,500 in 1974 raised to $2,000 in 1981, it makes sense to allow people to do more to save for retirement.

Our bill similarly updates 401(k) amounts and improves portability so one can take their retirement nest egg with them when they move from job to job, which is even a greater incentive for younger Americans to start planning for their future earlier.

Only half of all private sector workers have any kind of pension and only 20 percent of small business offer retirement plans. So the ability to design an individual program and carry their savings with them is as important as our effort to protect pension plans from the burdens of overtaxation. But do not forget, every single individual in this country stands to benefit from this bill because we will be protecting future generations from debt. We will be making retirement savings grow for workers of all ages, and we will be helping keep hard-earned dollars in the hands of taxpayers rather than sending them to Washington.

When given the choice to put dollars in the hands of Washington or keeping them in the pockets of people living in Florida, I would choose to trust my constituents any day.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, my friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), and he is my friend, has spent a lot of time talking about the merits of these two bills that are before the House on the suspension calendar. Throughout his support, he mentions Republicans a half a dozen times, which  $\dot{I}$  can understand, it is that time of the year and he needs all the help he can get. My problem is, he would have us to believe that these two bills that passed this House overwhelmingly in a bipartisan way is just not enough to move his Republican leaders on the other side of this building. And so if this is so, then we will be using the suspension calendar for everything that we do not like the progress of a piece of legislation to move Republicans that are not in this Chamber, which I think is an abuse of the privilege of the suspension calendar. But that is a political matter.

What I am concerned about, as a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, is that there is a lot of talk about this new bill, H.R. 5203, being the same as the House-passed bill, H.R. 5173. Since the new bill is still warm in my hand as it comes off the press, and we saw it at noontime, there may be a similarity in substance; but there is a heck of a lot of difference in terms of language. There are changes in this bill that may be technical, but there are 135 lines of the new bill that is shorter than what we had in the old bill.

Now, I know that some Republican expert decided which was good and which was bad, and the gentleman has a lot of time left, and I know he will explain why we do have at least in terms of numbers and pages a different bill. But another thing bothers me and that is if we do have a very important piece of legislation and they both concern the Committee on Ways and Means, and we did have an amendment to the bill when it was in the House that would allow lower-income people to have incentives for savings, why would not this bill, if it had to be revisited, why would it bypass the Committee on Ways and Means? Why would we have something that we have not even had our staffs to read, since it has just been out a couple of hours? Why do we have this urgency to get this thing done with such speed, in view of the fact that our committee has no work before it?

We do not get a chance to have a motion to recommit on the suspension calendar. We do not have a chance to see whether we can improve this bill. It is not the identical bill that we passed here before. The staff knows that. I am just saying that when one takes popular ideas and believe that each time they find us supporting something they can call it bipartisan, that it has to keep on getting passed, it is not right.

Democrats have worked with my colleagues on the other side of the aisle on the legislation, and we still think that it can be improved; but since they have given up on tax cuts and have moved swiftly to budget gimmicks, I thought we had really done all that we could the last time this thing came up, where we are now doing by legislation what President Clinton has been doing by making certain the Federal debt is being paid down.

I do not know how far we have to go with this type of procedures on the floor. Democratic support was gotten before. Democratic support has to be gotten now. Since the parliamentarians indicated that this can be brought up as often as the other side wants on the suspension calendar, maybe we will have other bills that we have joined together in passing. I might suggest, though, being in the minority, one of the ways that action might be gotten from the other body is for Republicans here to talk to Republicans there.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to say to my friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), he has known me long enough to know that I am a man of my word; and I can assure him that these bills are exactly what the gentleman has already supported in the committee and that he has already supported on the floor.

I think the gentleman knows that when we get into the closing days, perhaps he knows better than I do, the negotiations that are going on. Two bills as important as these bills are, to merge them together, gives us just another option in which to get these matters before the Senate, to the conference, and to the President's desk for signature.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), the author of the pension portion of this bill.

(Mr. PORTMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), very much for yielding me this time; and I thank him for bringing this bill, H.R. 5203, to the floor today.

It is the Debt Relief and Retirement Security Reconciliation Act of 2000, and it is designed to give reconciliation protection to legislation we have already passed for the purpose of negotiating with the Senate to move this process forward and to get these bills enacted this year.

The first is the debt lockbox legislation that puts 90 percent of this year's budget surplus projected for 2001 into debt relief, and then second of course is the bipartisan retirement security legislation that we have passed in this House by a vote of 401 to 25, which expands and strengthens IRAs, 401(k)s and other pensions.

I would like to focus, if I could, this afternoon on the retirement security package that is before us. This is bipartisan legislation that my friend and colleague, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN), and I have worked on over the last 3 years. It is very important. It is very important we get it enacted and do so this year. We need to do all we can because there is a real retirement security crunch out there. Seventy million Americans, about half the workforce, do not have any kind of a pension at all today, not even a 401(k), nothing. The problem is even worse among small businesses. We are told that less than 20 percent of small businesses, Mr. Speaker, that is with businesses of 25 or fewer employees, offer any kind of pension coverage today.

Now, this is at a time when private savings in this country is dangerously low. In fact, last month we are told that our savings rate in this country was actually negative. This, of course, hurts our economy. It presents a real danger to our economy moving forward, but it also hurts people; it hurts individuals. Experts tell us that older baby-boomers, for instance, have put only 40 percent aside of what they will need for a financially secure retirement. So it is time to take action, and it is time to do it now.

Part of the problem we have had over the years is right here in Congress. Over the last 20 years, Congress has made pensions less generous by lowering the contribution of benefit levels, believe it or not, and while making pension benefits lower they have also made pensions more costly to offer by increasing the number of rules and regulations on employers.

Let me say what kind of impact that has had. Let me give a specific example. From 1982 to 1994, the limits on defined benefit plans were repeatedly reduced by Congress and new restrictions were added, primarily for the purpose of generating Federal revenue, by the way. This was not a policy decision that had to do with pensions. It had to do with at that time addressing the deficit. As these cutback from 1982 to 1994 took effect, the number of traditional defined benefit plans insured by PBGC dropped from 114,000 plans in 1987 to 45,000 plans in 1997. These are the facts. They speak for themselves.

During the past 2 decades, overall pension coverage has remained stagnant, even when the defined contribution side is included. Obviously, it is past time for Congress to reverse these trends, and the bill before us today does just that. It is a comprehensive approach. It has been developed over the last 3 years with careful consultation with small businesses, labor organizations like the building trades department of the AFL-CIO. It has also been worked on by pension law experts in the private sector, academia and the administration. Most importantly, we have looked to and taken the advice of workers themselves, folks who are in pension plans, to see how they could be improved. They have been fully vetted. About 200 Members of this House, almost equally divided between Republicans and Democrats, have cosponsored the bill and more than 85 outside groups have endorsed it. The approach is fiscally responsible, and it is very straightforward.

It falls in basically three categories. First, we allow all workers to set aside more money for their retirement. That means setting aside more money in a 401(k)-type plan, in a union, multiemployer-type plan, a defined benefit plan and all other pensions. It also means setting more money aside in an IRA. In most cases, very importantly, all we are doing is trying to restore those limits to where they were before the Congress reduced them.

For example, moving the IRA contribution levels from $2,000 to $5,000 is about where it would have been had it been indexed to inflation in the 1970s. We also allow special catch-up contributions that help workers over 50 set aside even more for retirement.

These accelerated contributions will allow older workers—especially women returning to the workforce—the opportunity to build up a retirement nest egg more quickly—at a time in their lives when their earnings are relatively high and when they most need to save for retirement.

Second, we're modernizing pension laws to adapt to what we've learned about the realities of an increasingly mobile workforce. So, we make defined contributions plans portable so workers can roll-over their retirement nest egg between various types of qualified plans—including 401(k), 403(b) and 457 plans. And, we require employers to allow workers to become vested in their pension plans more quickly—in 3 years rather than the current-law 5.

Finally, we listened to those in the trenches, and we responded to the surveys that clearly demonstrate that we must reduce the complexities and red tape in current law if we are going to expand pension opportunities for those who work for small businesses. That's why we make it easier for employers—particularly small businesses—to establish and maintain pension plans by reducing costs and lisabilities—including modernizing outdated laws and streamlining complex rules. Yet, we keep in place the important protections that ensure families fairness in our pension system.

Despite the overwhelming and broad-based support for this legislation, there are some in the Administration who call this package a "tax cut for the rich." That's wrong. Why should they tell working Americans—who are struggling to save for retirement—that the $2,000 limit on IRA contributions established in 1981 makes sense today? Why should they tell working Americans that they can save less in a 401(k) plan than they could in the 1980s?

Remember who benefits here—77 percent of American workers currently participating in a pension plan make less than $50,000 per year. By expanding retirement savings options, we'll be helping those workers who need the most help in saving for retirement.

I urge my colleagues to join us today in sending a strong bipartisan message to the Senate—and to the White House—that we are committed to helping all Americans have more peace of mind—and more financial security—in their retirement years. Let's pass this package again.

□ 1430

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDermott), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means and a member of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. McDermott. Mr. Speaker, coming over here today, having been over here yesterday when half of this bill passed the last time, I could not help thinking of what, I think it was Groucho Marx said, that if you are going to go into politics, the first thing you have to learn to do is to act sincere. Because if we are going to come out here with this kind of legislation, we really have to work pretty hard to keep a straight face.

Yesterday we passed the bill on this lockbox on debt repayment, which is a totally useless piece of legislation. It is not necessary; the debt is being paid down without any such process now. But it was a pretty good press release yesterday. So they thought, well, let us do it again tomorrow. Since we are not doing anything worthwhile anyway, we might as well have something to put into our press release machine to fire out at the newspapers all over the country, and that is a good one, and oh, yeah, there is that pension thing, we can pass that too. Why do we not staple those bills together, because it will be different. They cannot say we are bringing out the same bill as we brought out yesterday; we are bringing out the same bill yesterday, plus the same bill from July 19.

Now, you say, why do we pick July 19? Well, we think about it and we say to ourselves, they must be bringing out the July 19 bill because they did it in the middle of the summer and people have forgotten about it, and today we are 49 days from election and we have to be sure and remind the people of the good legislation we passed that the majority in the other body killed, so we do not get blamed for it.

Mr. Speaker, the real irony of this thing is we have the majority party in the House who cannot seem to get the majority party in the other body to pay attention to them. We fire this nonsense over there and they put it in a desk drawer and it never sees the light of day again. This is an intraparty fight inside the majority party. That is why we will probably be out here tomorrow with the debt reduction bill and, let us see, we could marry it up to the estate tax removal. That would be a good one to put out here. Then, on Thursday we can bring out the debt reduction bill and the marriage tax penalty bill. Now, let me think. I will sit down over here and come up with the list for next week. Because we have not passed the appropriation acts, we have not had any conference committees on the budget, so we have to come out here and do these little shows.

Now, I think the American people are smarter than some people in this place give them credit for. They will see this: they are not going to forget that yesterday they read about the debt reduction bill and they are going to think they got the same paper 2 days in a row. Right there on the front pages, Republicans plan to spend 90 percent of the money in the surplus on paying down the debt. They cannot do it, because they already passed enough tax breaks to use up 22 percent; they cannot use 90 percent and 22 percent. If we add 90 and 22, that makes 112 percent of the surplus.

Now, I am not quite sure who teaches math over in the other caucus, but they need a new calculator, because it does not work. But, with a very straight face and acting very sincere, people stand down here and tell us that we can do it. I suppose if one believes that, one could believe in buying the Brooklyn Bridge or a whole lot of other things.

The only things we have passed here in the last few days has been naming new bridges and new courthouses and new highways and this kind of stuff, part of which is legislative nonsense, and the other part is a decent bill. But the people are not going to be fooled by this press release.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to remind the gentleman from Washington that in the other body, it is the other party that has been filibustering the lockbox legislation. Perhaps this will break something loose over there. It is very good bipartisan legislation in this body, but in the other body it has not worked that way.

Mr. Speaker, Ĭ yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HERGER), the author of the lockbox legislation.

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this measure. This bill increases IRA contribution limits from $2,000 to $5,000, making it easier for Americans to save. This measure also includes two provisions I introduced, the Social Security lockbox, which passed the House last year by a 416-to-12 vote, and the Medicare lockbox, which I introduced in March and passed the House this June by a 420-to-2 vote.

Mr. Speaker, for the first time, these lockboxes will protect 100 percent of trust fund surpluses from spending on other unrelated government programs. Ending the raid on the Social Security and Medicare trust funds is the right thing to do. This legislation also creates another lockbox in which $42 billion additional surplus dollars will be held only for debt reduction. All in all, this legislation will use 90 percent, or $240 billion to pay down public debt this year alone. Never in the history of our Nation has a Congress paid down this much public debt in a single year.

Today, we made debt reduction the priority, not the afterthought. This bill is the epitome of sound fiscal policy. For individual Americans, we increase opportunities to save; for the government's part, we protect the Social Security and Medicare trust funds for the first time from raids and still pay down $240 billion in public debt. This bill is a win-win for fiscal responsibility, a win-win for our children, a win-win for our seniors, and a win-win for the best interests of the United States. I urge my colleagues to vote for this measure.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN), a senior member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. LEVIN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, this session is descending into utter confusion, and if it is confusing here, we can imagine what the public thinks.

The Republican majority here in the House has moved from pillar to post. First a $900 billion tax cut, much of it for the very wealthy, eating up a good portion of the nonSocial Security surplus. Well, that did not fly, so now we have a proposal, 90 percent of the surplus for debt retirement. So we go from $900 billion in an unworkable tax proposal to 90 percent of that surplus, that would have been used up in large measure by the tax bill, now for debt retire-

Well, to add to the confusion, we now have this bill tied into another bill, and what could be the reason for it? The gentleman from Ohio talked about how it was necessary for budget reconciliation, he used those terms. Let me just read a statement on this point that we have worked on with the staff and I would like to have someone refute it if it is wrong.

The debt reduction lockbox provisions in H.R. 5203 are in no way, shape or form a reconciliation bill in the Senate. The Senate had no budget reconciliation instructions for debt reduction. Among other things, the debt reduction provisions violate the Byrd Rule in the Senate and section 306 of the Budget Act which protects the jurisdiction of the budget committees. As such, a motion to proceed to consideration of such a bill under budget reconciliation rules could be filibustered in the Senate. What the House is doing is converting the House-passed pension IRA bill into a nonreconciliation bill for the Senate. So this bill is not only confusing, it is counterproductive.

Well, what is the second reason given for combining these bills? It is said it is to get the attention of the Senate. How about e-mail or the telephone, or just walk across the rotunda and sit down with the majority leader in the Senate and we will be glad to join with the White House, and let us get busy and do some work and pass some legislation.

What we are doing here is treading water while the session is sinking. It just does not make any sense, as the gentleman from New York (Mr. RAN-GEL) said. We Democrats are ready to work. We are ready to move on. We are ready to pass legislation and not to add to an already confusing situation.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY).

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, it is not confusing. The Republicans are committed to empowering American families by returning power, money and choices to the people. We do not believe that the Federal budget surplus belongs to the government. It is the people's money, and it should be returned. They earned it.

This is our constant and unchanging goal. That is why we proposed a firm commitment that applies at least 90 percent of next year's Federal budget surplus to paying off our debts. It turns out that a commitment to paying off the debt is a popular position. Last night, we forged a common sense coalition for debt relief. We drew support from both sides of the aisle. We believe that the surplus must be returned to the American people, if not through tax relief, then through debt reduction.

Today, we take another important step. Members have another opportunity to send a very clear message to the White House. The American people demand greater fiscal discipline from their government. An unrestrained wave of new Washington spending is not an acceptable use for their surplus. Our latest initiative addresses this theme of fiscal discipline by both expanding retirement security and paying off the debt. We can again urge the President to join with us, but our expectations are pretty low.

The President has already repeatedly blocked the bipartisan effort to return the surplus to the American people. Just last week he said, whether we can do debt reduction this year or not depends upon what the various spending commitments are. Less than 24 hours ago, this House voted overwhelmingly in favor of our debt reduction plan. Now every Member, Republican and Democrat, who voted for that initiative should support this common sense measure.

Mr. President, we have room for you in our common sense coalition to refund the surplus, but you must first abandon any scheme to spend the surplus on more Washington programs. If you can commit to using at least 90 percent of next year's surplus to debt relief and only debt relief, we would like to have you with us.

Mr. Speaker, members should support this bill. It will return power to the American people and strengthen our Nation.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members are reminded to address their remarks to the Chair.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The majority whip has now confused me. I understood from the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARCHER), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, that we were relegislating this old legislation to send a message to the Republican leaders on the other side. However, now the majority whip wants to send a message to the President of the United States. This is really getting confusing. I mean have we given up all methods of communication completely? I know it is bad, but we do not have to legislate to talk to President Clinton. We can do these things directly. We can sit down today or tomorrow and work out how we can get some legislation passed and signed into law instead of getting out these press releases.

The next speaker on this side is the coauthor of this bipartisan piece of legislation that overwhelmingly passed the House, and he worked closely with gentleman from Ohio PORTMAN). I do not know how many times we are going to drag out the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) here to show that some people do talk with each other on the House side, but I hope my Republican colleagues keep doing it until they get it right, because some of us have to get out of here and get back home.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN).

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) for yielding me this time. Let me assure our colleagues that there is strong bipartisan support for the provisions that are contained in this bill that is before us.

□ 1445

Many of us, including this Member, is confused on the process. I listened also to the distinguished majority whip explain what this bill is intended to do, and I do not believe that is included in the legislation before us. So I am confused on the process that we are using, but I hope it is an effort that will allow us to enact some very important legislation.

I listened to the explanation on the lockbox, and I must tell my colleagues that I am confused on the explanation on the lockbox. As I understand, it is a 1-year bill. And we are going to be judged by our actions on the appropriation bills and on the tax bills, not on the lockbox. Let us be clear about that.

I hope at the end of the day that we can say as Democrats and Republicans that we have put as our first priority retiring our debt, which is exactly what the President of the United States has asked us to do, to make the top priority the reduction of our debt with the surplus funds.

Let me speak for a moment, if I might, about the pension legislation. The gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) is correct, this bill has been worked very carefully on a bipartisan basis. I thank my colleague, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN), for his leadership on this. Democrats and Republicans joined together in crafting this bill and in passing this bill by 401 votes. I would hope that by bringing it up again today it is a message that we intend to send to the President of the United States a bill that deals with pensions and is not loaded up with other issues that would make it impossible for us to get it enacted this year.

As the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN) has pointed out, it is important legislation because it is very comprehensive legislation that will not only increase the limits but will help employers provide employer-sponsored pension plans for their employees, which help lower-wage workers because the employer puts the money on the table, making it easier for low-wage workers to put money away for their own retirement.

We deal with portability and the realization that the current workforce holds people that will work for more than one employer in their work life, so they need to be able to combine their funds. We remove a lot of the obstacles that make it difficult for employers to sponsor pension plans. We make it easier for individuals to put more money away for themselves to address the critical need in this Nation to increase the savings rates.

So I hope at the end of the day that we will be able to come together with a bill that is enacted and sent to the President. And if we can keep it to the pension issues alone, if we do not get confused with some of the other politics around here, I think we can achieve that.

But I would urge my friends on the other side of the aisle to work with us on the process issues. It is somewhat confusing to us to wake up in the morning only to find legislation that we thought already was completed in this body has once again been brought up for initial action rather than being sent to the President for signature.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, encouraging savings and investment and not leaving our kids and our grandkids with a huge mortgage is a reasonable combination in this piece of legislation.

On September 13, the President said, in regard to paying down the debt, and I quote from the New York Times, "Whether we can do it this year or not depends upon what the various spending commitments are." He may have very well said, "I have other plans for this money."

Today, this House makes spending commitments under this bill. We are committed to paying down the debt. Maybe we could do more. I would have liked to have done more. But the problem is that we have to make a commitment to do it, otherwise the propensity to spend by the President and by this Congress is too great.

Let us pass this legislation to help assure we don't simply increase spending. The President sent us the Democrat budget proposal last spring that increased spending $100 billion more than could be paid for with projected revenues. That meant that without increased taxes and increased revenues, it would have used the Social Security and the Medicaid trust fund surpluses.

Let us pass this bill and move ahead. Let us make sure saving and investment is easier for the American people and we do not leave our kids with a bigger mortgage.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Weller), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. WELLËR. Mr. Speaker, this is important legislation that we are voting on today. I strongly support setting aside 90 percent of the projected budget surplus to pay down the national debt. Of course, our goal is not only to build on the $360 billion in debt retirement we have already accomplished in the last 3 years, but to pay off the national debt by the year 2010.

I also want to stand in strong support of this legislation which locks away 100 percent of the Social Security Trust Fund for Social Security and locks away 100 percent of the Medicare Trust Fund for Medicare. That is an important commitment not only for today's seniors but for future generations.

My colleagues, I also stand in strong support of this legislation which makes it easier for America's workers and small businesses to set aside money for their own retirement. Efforts to expand what Americans can contribute to their IRAs and 401(k)s can make a big difference to many millions of working Americans.

I also want to note that this legislation includes two very important provisions: Catch-up provisions that allow individuals to make additional contributions to 401(k)s or IRAs if they are over 50. That helps working moms. And the repeal of 415 limits, which helps 10 million working Americans in the building trades.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

As we close the debate on this issue, quite a number of the majority Members are concerned about the President of the United States getting involved in spending programs. I would just want the RECORD to be clear that the President will not be involved with any spending programs that are not supported by the majority Members in this House and the majority of the Members on the other side.

So if my colleagues do not want to support any of these programs, then get together with the appropriation committees to see what we are going to do, but let us not use the legislative process to send messages to the other side or send messages to the President.

Now, this is a good piece of legislation, but some of us, even though we supported the commitment to the reduction of the national debt, thought that we should have included the President's retirement plan that gave incentives for low-income workers to save. And the last time this bill was on the floor, Members had a chance to participate because it was not on the suspension calendar. The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL) had an amendment that would have improved upon this bill and got over 200 votes, as I recall. Many of the Members who worked on this piece of legislation that once again is before us wish that this could have been a part of the package so that all of us, in a unanimous way, could say that it helps all of the workers in different income categories.

So even though I will not be supporting this in its present form, since we do not have a chance to amend it or to work with the motion to recommit, I do want to congratulate the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN) for showing that in this House we can work together in a bipartisan way.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SCARBOROUGH). The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) has expired. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) has 1½ minutes remaining.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER).

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. It is a busy time of the year, but this past Sunday I was able to spend some time with a new grandson, born July 22. His name is Joshua.

And that is really what this is about up here. Joshua does not understand partisan politics. He does not understand a lot of the games that may go on here. He certainly does not understand why the minority on the other side is blocking some legislation that would give him a bright future and pay down the publicly held debt instead of handing him a mortgage of $20,000. It would allow him, as he is growing up, to save more, or his parents to save more to be able to afford a home in the future. And he certainly does not understand the attitude of some people that believe it is the government's money instead of the people's money.

But one day he will appreciate what we are doing here today, because this is really about Joshua and who Joshua represents: All the children across this Nation. The future. And not only the debt that they have that we have given them, or has been given to them due to 40 years of minority rule when the debt was increased, but also the opportunity to save and to be all that he can be.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Because of what we do here today, if it does pass the other body and the President's desk, little Joshua will owe $240 billion less than he does today on the national debt.

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, this is an interesting bill. It seems to combine an unnecessary bill on debt relief that passed the House yesterday by a vote of 381–3, with a faulty bill on retirement policy that passed the House on July 19 by a vote of 401–25. It is my understanding that our side of the aisle learned about the contents of the bill about 11:00 this morning, so there may be changes that we have not discovered yet.

Since revenue that is not spent goes to deficit reduction automatically, a statement that 90 percent of the surplus should go to deficit reduction next year hardly seems momentous. However, it does no great harm either, so I intend to vote for passage of this bill to indicate my strong support for deficit reduction. In addition, I am pleased that Members on the other side of the aisle have adopted the Democratic position as articulated all year, and have finally made deficit reduction a priority.

On the retirement bill, let me just say that I continue to believe that H.R. 1102 is flawed and is in need of many improvements. I agree with Jane Bryant Quinn when she wrote in the Business Section of the Washington Post this past weekend that this and other bills are "for the upper-middle, investor class. There should be a companion tax incentive bill that helps the workers, too."

Just such a companion bill, I believe, was offered by myself on July 19, but that amendment failed by a vote of 200–216, with all Republicans present and voting opposed, and all Democrats but three present and voting in support. This amendment established a refundable tax credit for contributions to pension plans by low and moderate income workers, and tax credits to small businesses to establish and contribute to pension plans. While not perfect, it at least made an attempt to deal with the problem of access to retirement income for those who can not save due to their low income, or can not save as much as they should. But the House, as I indicated, adopted the narrow approach.

Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I intend to vote for deficit reduction, and to continue my effort to enact a comprehensive retirement bill that helps all Americans save for retirement, not just the "upper-middle, investor class."

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, today the House is taking up a bill which would ensure that 90 percent of next year's budget surplus goes to paying down debt. With this bill, over $600 billion of publicly held debt would be paid down by the end of next year. It would be entirely eliminated by 2013. This means lower interest rates on credit cards and home mortgages for millions of Americans. I can't think of a better gift for our children.

Unfortunately, this debt reduction measure has been attached to H.R. 1102, the Retirement Security Act. In my district, constituents have voiced concern over certain pension provisions included in this bill. Some recent pension conversions have been a grave injustice to American workers, especially mid-career and older employees who have planned for retirement based on the benefits built into their original pension plans. While H.R. 1102 provides some much-needed disclosure requirements, we need to be tougher on those companies who have taken advantage of pension conversions to fatten their bottom lines. I will continue to fight for those tougher provisions.

When H.R. 1102 was being considered, I fought to ensure that all vested employees have the choice to remain in their current defined benefit plans. I brought an amendment to the Rules Committee which would have done just that. Unfortunately, I wasn't allowed to bring it to the House floor for consideration. In the end, I cast a protest vote against H.R. 1102 because it lacked this important provi-

Today, there is no opportunity to amend this bill. I wish that these pension reform provisions had not been attached to debt relief, but it has. The importance of this bill in locking in debt reduction and increasing the ability of Americans to save for their own retirement will carry the day for most Members of this House. I will support this bill because it is critical that we offer our children a debt-free future.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5203.

The question was taken.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. dently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

This is a 15-minute vote on H.R. 5203 and it will be followed by a 5-minute vote on H.R. 3986.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4642.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection. Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my support for H.R. 4642, a bill to improve the effectiveness of the General Accounting Office through improvement to its personnel system. I would like to thank my colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH), chairman of the Subcommittee on Civil Service for his work and efforts on this legislation.

The General Accounting Office sometimes referred to as the "watchdog" of Congress or the "investigative arm" of Congress today faces many of the same personnel problems confronting other Federal agencies. As my colleagues know, the Federal Government is nearing a crisis in its ability to recruit, retain and reward a skilled, trained, and knowledgeable workforce for the 21st century.

Mr. Speaker, like the rest of the government, GAO is fundamentally constrained by personnel issues in its ability to meet future obligations to Congress and the country. It is to ensure that GAO can successfully confront these personnel problems and secure its future that I rise in support of this very important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I think that I can safely speak for all Members on both sides of the aisle in saying that GAO makes many contributions to helping us improve the economy, effectiveness and efficiency of government and in pointing out waste and abuse in government programs. Not a week goes by without a major GAO report about some important aspect of government operations.

From my own perspective and experience, I know that the Committee on Government Reform has a unique relationship with GAO, not only does the committee authorize GAO, but under House rules, it also officially receives every GAO record that is sent to Congress. The Committee on Government Reform also receives more GAO testimony than any other committee in Congress.

The agency is invaluable to the entire congressional community. All Members of Congress, including myself, rely upon GAO for briefings, testimony, oversight, information and review of executive operations.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation for GAO to ensure that our watchdog can continue to effectively do its job for Congress in the future.

As my colleagues know, we have a new Comptroller General at GAO. David M. Walker, who was confirmed about 19 months ago. Mr. Walker is committed to making sure that the agency can successfully meet its mission. Mr. Walker has developed a new strategic plan to keep aligned with our needs on the Hill. He has embarked on a reorganization designed to streamoperations and redundancies and he has determined to meet personnel crises head on.

As Mr. Walker seeks to make constructive changes, continue improvements in GAO, he faces a personnel quandary that has been many years in the making, a series of budget cuts in the last decade forced GAO to undergo a severe downsizing and a hiring freeze which resulted in a 39 percent staff reduction and significant imbalances among the staff remaining.

The impact of these cuts and freezes continues to hamper the agency. GAO also faces one of the government's most significant problems of the next few years. The anticipated retirement of many mid-level and senior-level employees who have been with the government for decades and who represent the greatest source of knowledge and experience in the Federal sector.

For example, nearly 55 percent of GAO's senior executive service are eligible to retire in the next 4 years and 34 percent of the agency's total workforce will be eligible to leave government.

This potential mass exodus has the ability to undermine GAO's effectiveness to an unprecedented loss of institutional memory that could directly impact its products and services to Congress. These executives and personnel have provided such long service to the government and have a storehouse of knowledge and experience that cannot be duplicated or easily replaced.

In the case of GAO, because of the wide variety of issues they handle, this is a loss of expertise across many, many areas of government. The expected loss of so many seasoned executives and supervisors, combined with the massive downsizing experienced during the past decades, when taken together, is at the core of GAO's current and future personnel problems.

Indeed, it is this one-two punch of recent and expected personnel departures that Mr. Walker and the GAO are now trying to confront, in part through the legislation now before us.

In his efforts to more effectively focus GAO on the needs of Congress in the 21st century, the Comptroller General has also recognized that the skills GAO employees have today may not always be suited for the agency's needs in the future. GAO has undertaken a number of initiatives from the new strategic plan to a skills and knowledge database of its employees.

These efforts will help the agency to ascertain both the current skill set and future skills gap of its work force. The legislation will also help to remedy this problem by providing flexibility in filling the gaps.

Mr. Speaker, as I think my comments have proved, GAO urgently needs this important legislation to help it face the future and by doing so help us here in the Congress. This bill will allow GAO to overcome its pressing personnel problems by providing the Comptroller General with the ability to correct workforce skill imbalances to successfully handle current and future issues, and to help achieve a more balanced, productive and focused workforce.

H.R. 4642 provides the agency with a set of tools so that it can better fulfill its mission to support Congress. The bill will help GAO build a workforce for the future to implement its strategic plan and be positioned to serve the varied important needs of the Congress.

The bill has three main provisions, which I will address very briefly. First, the legislation will allow the Comptroller General to hire scientific and technical experts who will have the same pay and benefits as the SES and reclassify senior executives without loss of pay. This creates a new career path for selected technical positions and helps to redress the loss of institutional memory so critical to the agency's work.

Second, the Comptroller General will be able to offer voluntary early retirement and cash buyouts to employees in jobs deemed surplus. This tool which the Comptroller General would use iudiciously can help to realign the agency in ways to improve its focus in critical areas.

The final provision addresses the Comptroller General's ability to run a reduction in force or a RIF. The Comptroller General already has the authority to conduct a RIF; but under existing rules, a RIF would be based largely on a person's length of service but also would rely upon tenure and military preference.

Under this legislation, a RIF would be based on a person's skills, performance, and knowledge, as well as length of service and tenure, while retaining the statutory preference for military veterans, which I strongly support.

This is an important change because, absent this provision, efforts to reshape the agency to better serve Congress in the future could be hampered by continued loss of employees critical to implementing strategic plans, goals, and objectives.

This legislation gives GAO the flexibility it needs to maximize its performance and focus on the future. It helps rebalance the agency's personnel structure after years of budget and personnel cuts, and it continues efforts to sustain an environment in which performance in government matters.

I have been pleased to sponsor this legislation with my good friend, the gentleman from Florida (Chairman SCARBOROUGH) of the Subcommittee on Civil Service; and we have been supported by the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) in the legislation that has been discussed in several hearings in which the Comptroller General outlined the importance of the bill and the reasons why it was necessary to take this action.

Mr. Speaker, as a result of this bill's progress in Congress, there is considerable Member support and recognition of the need for this important legislation. The legislation is also supported by Mr. Walker's two predecessors in office, Comptrollers General, Elmer Staats and Charles Browser, who together represent 30 years of GAO leadership supported it.

I would further note that the administration does not oppose this bill as it only affects the agency of the legislative branch. It is important to highlight that the provisions of this bill will not have an impact on executive branch agencies or their employees.

I know that several of my colleagues initially objected to this bill because they believed it might have an impact on some of their constituents. Let me reiterate that this legislation will only affect the GAO and does not have any application to the executive branch of the Federal Government.

Furthermore, I hope that my colleagues recognize that the legislation before them now includes several changes from the original bill which are designed to ensure that the provisions, if they are implemented, are done so in an equitable and responsible manner.

This includes a requirement that GAO must issue regulations on RIF selection criteria after a public comment period. GAO must also report back to the Congress on how it implemented the law.

I believe these and other safeguards will help to satisfy any concerns of the local delegation.

In summary, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this bill so that GAO can achieve its goal of being a model Federal agency of sustaining a strong and effective workforce and of meeting its mission to Congress and to the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD a legislative history of GAO's personnel legislation.

LEGISLATION AUTHORIZING GAO TO TAKE CERTAIN PERSONNEL ACTIONS

I. PURPOSE

The General Accounting Office (GAO) has requested these personnel authorities to enable the agency to effectively address human capital challenges in order to more effectively fulfill its mission. GAO explained that it recently completed a thorough evaluation of its workforce needs and resources and found that they do not match up. This arose in part because of the severe downsizing and hiring freezes from 1992-1997 Also the kinds of skills, knowledge, and performance needed by GAO in its workforce are changing with impact of information technology, globalization, and other trends in the broader society. Finally, these kinds of imbalances threaten to become worse, because the retirement of many employees possessing necessary expertise are or are close to being eligible for retirement.

GAO has said that it is doing what it can administratively to correct these imbalances, e.g., by enhanced entry-level recruitment, active management of promotion decisions, and compilation of an inventory of the agency's human capital needs and resources. The agency is also being restructured to have less hierarchy and fewer field offices. GAO explained, however, that its current law "downsizing," designed for "rightsizing," and prevents GAO from taking needed management steps.

GAO has thus explained why this new legislative authority is necessary to enable GAO to effectively address the agency's human capital requirements. This legislation is appropriate for GAO considering its role and responsibilities in the legislative branch and its unique relationship to the Congress, and also taking account of the specific, fact-based demonstration that GAO has made explaining why the requested authority is needed and appropriate.

II. SUMMARY OF PROVISIONS

The legislation provides narrowly tailored authority, preserving due process protections, in four specific areas: (1) to offer early retirement (early-outs) on a voluntary basis to a limited number of qualified employees in each fiscal year; (2) to offer separation pay (buyouts) on a voluntary basis to a limited number of qualified employees in each fiscal year for a five-year period after enactment of the legislation; (3) to release officers and employees in a reduction in force (RIF) or an adjustment in force carried out downsizing, realigning, or correcting skill imbalances; and (4) to establish senior-level positions to meet critical scientific, technical or professional needs and to extend to those positions the rights and benefits of Senior Executive Service employees. Regulations governing the RIF provision must give effect to tenure, military preference, veterans preference, performance, length of service, and other factors such as skills and knowledge

In addition, the legislation requires that the Comptroller General report annually to the Congress on the use and effectiveness of the legislation, and provide the Congress with a report in three years summarizing the use and effectiveness of the legislation and recommending whether it should be continued or changed.

III. EMPLOYEE RIGHTS AND PROTECTIONS UNDER THE NEW AUTHORITIES

First, as a general matter, it is essential that the Comptroller General consult with employees concerning plans for implementation of the legislation in advance of issuing proposed orders or regulations for comment. GAO has described the efforts taken by the Comptroller General to foster two-way communication between the Office of the Comptroller General and all agency officers and employees, including extensive discussions regarding the need for and development of this legislation. Broad consultation with officers and employees should be continued at each stage of the legislation's implementation. In addition, in developing implementing regulations, GAO is obligated under existing law to afford notice and opportunity for comment, and GAO has said it will follow the best practices of regulatory agencies in regards to summarizing and responding on the public record to significant comments received

The legislation itself contains a number of provisions and preserves rights and protections under existing laws to assure that employees will not be subject to arbitrary and illegal action. Notably, this legislation in no way affects existing laws that prohibit discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, and disability, that forbid prohibited personnel practices, or that require compliance with merit principles. GAO's implementation of the authorities granted by this legislation must continue to be in conformity with those existing laws.

This legislation requires that, to implement the provisions authorizing early retirement, separation pay, and reductions in force, the agency must issue regulations that provide criteria for, in effect, two levels of decision-making: the decision to use the authorities and the decision regarding which officers or employees shall be subject to actions under the authorities.

GAO has stated that these regulations must set forth clearly defined criteria and require consistent and well documented application of those criteria. Any decisions based upon individual data, such as skills/ knowledge and performance, will be based on identification and measurement systems Ratings from the agency's performance appraisal systems will be the basis for measuring individual performance, and GAO has stated that an individual's ratings for three years will be used. Similarly, skills and knowledge must be ascertained in a well-documented skills inventory. GAO has explained that its staff will fill out such a skills inventory, subject to supervisory review, which will be used in conjunction with the agency's strategic plan to identify any "gaps" in workforce skills and knowloverages edge. If GAO finds it necessary to use the RIF authority before a skills inventory is completed, the agency would use existing organizational groups and units.

In giving effect to military preference, GAO must comply with the requirements of its own Personnel Act, section 732(b)(5) of title 31, which requires GAO to provide a preference to veterans in a way and to an extent consistent with the system in the executive branch. In the executive branch under section 3502(b) of title 5, a preference eligible with a compensable service connected disability of at least 30% and whose performance has not been rated unacceptable is retained in preference to other preference eligibles. Section 3502(c) of title 5 requires that all other preference eligibles whose performance has not been rated unacceptable be retained in preference to all other competing employees. Therefore, these provisions would bind GAO, and preference eligibles would be the last to be terminated in their applicable unit/job or skill group under a reduction in force.

The legislation allows the provisions authorizing early retirement, separation pay, and reductions in force to be exercised only for workforce realignment and other purposes as specified in the legislation. Addressing individual employee performance is not among these specified purposes, and it is only for the specified purposes that the Comptroller General may consider individual performance data among the criteria for offering early retirement or separation pay or for carrying out a reduction in force. For example, GAO may not use these authorities for the purpose of replacing lower-performing employees with higher-performing employees or to address problems in individual employees' performance. To address performance problems, GAO must continue to use its performance management system under existing law, which affords affected employees particular procedural and substantive rights. Under this legislation as under existing law, individuals are not subject to being "targeted," i.e., reductions in force may not be carried out for the purpose of removing a particular individual or individuals.

The legislation requires that GAO regulations governing RIFs be consistent with Office of Personnel Management regulations. The use of the term "consistent with" recognizes that because of the form of GAO's personnel system, GAO's organizational structure, and the authorities granted under this and other legislation applicable to GAO, the implementing GAO regulations may vary from the approach taken by OPM. Nevertheless, the GAO regulations should follow the OPM approach where such considerations do not apply.

GAO's Personnel Appeals Board (PAB) will serve as an independent body to review and decide any cases arising out of a reduction in force where individuals feel they have not been treated in accordance with law or regulations. GAO has stated that this review authority of the PAB is established under existing statute and under provisions of GAO's existing regulations that GAO will retain. If an action under the RIF authority was unlawful, the individual employee shall be restored to the grade or rate of pay to which the employee is entitled, retroactively effective to the date of the improper action.

As to the senior level positions established under the legislation, employees appointed to those positions will generally enjoy the same rights and privileges as members of GAO's Senior Executive Service. Furthermore, except as otherwise specified in the legislation, the employees appointed to the new senior level positions will enjoy the rights and protections that apply generally to professional employees at GAO. Any employees transferred under this provision from GAO's SES to a non-executive senior level position will retain their current pay and will have an equivalent pay system to what they had in the SES.

The new early-out authority will be in addition to, and will not detract from, any rights to early retirement established under existing law.

Finally, the legislation requires GAO to report on the implementation of the new authorities both annually and in a 3-year assessment, and GAO has said that these reports will include information about any impact upon employee attitudes and opinions, as measured by employee feedback survey responses. The 3-year assessment will include not only recommendations of the Comptroller General for continuation or change of the authorities granted by this legislation, but also any assessments or recommendations of the GAO Personnel Appeals Board and of any interested GAO employee

I encourage all Members to support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, Members of Congress are well acquainted with the General Accounting Office. It is Congress' and the Nation's primary watchdog agency responsible for providing credible, objective and nonpartisan reports and evaluations of the programs and management of the executive branch.

The GAO has for years provided Congress with invaluable assistance, now it is asking us for assistance by providing GAO with needed human capital authorities, and we should meet this request.

Mr. Speaker, from 1992 to 1997, GAO's budget was cut by one-third. In order to achieve these reductions, the GAO was forced to reduce its staff by almost 40 percent and close many field offices. Since then, it has had to impose hiring freezes, cut training and suspend incentive programs. During the same period, GAO has faced a problem common to much of the Federal Government, an aging workforce.

By the end of fiscal year 2004, over one-third of the GAO's employees would be eligible for retirement. As a result of these pressures, GAO's workforce is out of shape. There are too many senior- and middle-level employees and too few at the lower levels. These imbalances have been well documented in a human capital profile completed by the Comptroller General.

In addition, the types of skills, knowledge and performance needed by GAO have changed over time as the world has been radically altered by the information age technology. Major policy issues have also become increasingly complex, requiring greater technical skill and sophistication to support the needs of Congress.

Mr. Speaker, all of these trends have led to a human capital profile at the General Accounting Office which does not currently operate in the most efficient or effective manner. More seriously, it puts the GAO at risk of being unable to meet the demands and needs

The legislation before us would provide GAO with authority to address these concerns. For example, the bill would authorize the Comptroller General to offer early retirement opportunities and separation pay to a limited number of qualified personnel each of

of the Congress in the future.

Under the legislation, the Comptroller could also establish senior-level positions to meet critical scientific or technical needs. Finally, the bill requires the Comptroller to report annually to the Congress on the effect of this legislation and to submit a 3-year assessment of the implementation and effectiveness of this act.

These and other flexibilities in the bill will bring the GAO closer to the personnel policies of our legislative branch organizations such as the Committees of Congress and the Congressional Budget Office. However, this legislation should not be viewed as a precedent for changes in executive branch personnel policy.

Mr. Speaker, we have an outstanding Comptroller General in Mr. Walker. He is putting all of his efforts into making the GAO the kind of agency that we will all be proud of.

□ 1545

This legislation before us today is a result of an enormous amount of effort that he has put into giving us recommendations to make GAO a better organization. I think that we ought to join together in a bipartisan move today in supporting this legislation and making sure that the GAO will be there to serve the needs of the Congress and the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 3679, the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, it is particularly fitting that this legislation comes before the House at this time, for the Summer Olympic Games in Sydney have captured our attention. Those games began only 4 days ago and are in full swing as we speak.

In less than 18 months, in February of 2002, our attention will be focused on Salt Lake City, where the Winter Olympic Games will commence. Anyone who has watched the Olympic competition is thrilled with the tremendous athletic accomplishments of all the young people involved; not only our young people but those throughout the world

Anyone who buys a silver $1 coin or a $5 gold coin authorized by the legislation under consideration will have the satisfaction of knowing that the surcharge they pay on this coin will go to support our American athletes as they train for the upcoming 2002 Winter Olympics.

The legislation under consideration is sponsored by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK). The legislation has widespread support. It is cosponsored by 290 of his colleagues. A similar bill has been introduced in the Senate. It has the requisite 67 cosponsors and, in fact, has been marked up by the Senate Banking Committee.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. Cook), the sponsor of the legislation.

Mr. COOK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, first of all, I would like to thank the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS) for his efforts in bringing H.R. 3679, the 2002 Winter Olympic Commemorative Coin Act, to the floor today. A commemorative coin program has been a part of every U.S. Olympics Games since 1952.

In fact, the Olympic coin has become an important Olympic tradition in the United States and internationally as well. It is especially timely that this bill should come to the House floor now as the world watches the Summer Olympics in Sydney, Australia. I am sure many of us have been glued to the television watching our young swimmers, like Jenny Thompson, Megan Quann and Tom Dolan, break records and bring home the gold. As America and my home State of Utah look forward to hosting the Olympic Winter Games in 2002, passing this coin bill is a big step toward preparing for that monumental international event in our own country and preparing our athletes to compete.

Throughout the world, coin programs serve as national symbols of both morale and financial support for the games. The surcharges generated by this coin program will provide an important source of revenue for the training and support of U.S. athletes, as well as for hosting the Olympic Games.

Some of my colleagues may remember some of the problems connected with the Atlanta Olympic Games coin program. I want to assure my colleagues that H.R. 3679 has been thoughtfully and carefully crafted to overcome and prevent those problems from occurring once again.

This coin program has been developed in conjunction with the U.S. Mint and the Citizens Commemorative Coin Advisory Committee, which represents the Nation's coin collectors, the main purchasers of commemorative coins. With only 400,000 $1 silver coins and 80,000 $5 gold coins authorized, the program is expected to sell out and raise over $4 million for our Olympic athletes at no cost to the taxpayers.

Finally, I would like to thank the 290 Members of this Congress who joined me in celebrating the Olympic spirit by cosponsoring H.R. 3679. Helping our Olympic athletes achieve their dreams is something I think we can all be proud to support.
Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, I reserve

the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this bill. This bill provides for the minting of commemorative coins to support the 2002 Salt Lake Olympic Winter Games and the programs of the United States Olympic Committee. As we witness the joy of watching the Summer Olympics in Sydney, and the pride that our American athletes bring to our country, I am pleased to support a commemorative coin for the Winter Games of 2002, which will be coming back to the United States.

An act of Congress to issue this coin is consistent with the long tradition of issuing commemorative coins for the important events that shape our Nation's history, as well as for our national heroes.

We have in the past issued commemorative coins for other Olympics games held in the U.S., as well as for other 1994 soccer world cups also held in 12 cities across the United States. As laid out in the legislation, the design of the commemorative coin shall be emblematic of the participation of American athletes in the 2002 Olympic Winter Games. Each coin must have a designation of the value of the coin, an inscription of the year 2002, and, following U.S. tradition, inscriptions of the words: In God We Trust, United States of America, and E Pluribus

Half of the coin proceeds will go to the Salt Lake Organizing Committee for use in the staging and promotion of the games and the other half to the U.S. Olympic Committee. I certainly urge adoption of this bill.

I have one comment that I would like to add. I think the Olympic Games are extremely important. Not only does it give us the opportunity to compete with other very, very fine athletes from all around the world, it is really a geography lesson that is learned as we watch the competition in various parts of the world; and I would like for the aborigines in Sydney to know that we are learning about them as we watch the games in Sydney and that their plight is not unnoticed.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to reinforce what the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK) earlier said, and that this legislation is a far cry from that which created the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games Coin program. That program had multiple coins. It was overly ambitious. According to the General Accounting Office, it lost several million dollars.

This legislation profited from those mistakes. The gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE), who was then chairman of the Subcommittee on Domestic and International Monetary Policy, made several reforms on the commemorative coin program. Those reforms are incorporated in this bill. One important reform is that no surcharges from a commemorative program may be paid to a beneficiary organization until the taxpayer has been made whole for the cost of designing and producing the coin. That is done in this series.

The sponsor of this legislation, the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK), the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON), and the Salt Lake Committee, all worked with the U.S. Olympic Committee and with the Senate and House Committee on Banking and Financial Services, recognizing this recent history and this legislation contains several changes from that previous commemorative coin legislation aimed at increasing the integrity of the program.

most important change, one which has been praised by the coin collectors, is reduction in the standard maximum mintage level, which should make these coins retain its value for collectors, which traditionally buy about 90 percent of these coins. The Olympic committees have also worked closely with the Mint, with the Citizens Commemorative Coin Advisory Committee to devise this program. I would like to commend both the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK) and the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON) for their efforts, along with the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) for their efforts.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON).

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I would like to thank the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS), for his efforts to bring this bill to the floor, and also my colleague from Utah (Mr. COOK), for his hard work in moving this issue forward. As many of the Members know, it takes 290 cosponsors on a bill to move a commemorative coin bill forward, and that takes a lot of effort.

So I would also like to thank all of my colleagues who have worked with us to cosponsor this bill and bring it to this stage.

We are going to have the Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City in February of 2002, and while in Utah we like to think of these as our Olympics. In fact they are America's Olympics, and it has been wonderful to work with our colleagues to help support that idea that this is the American Olympics.

I am personally proud of the Olympics because about 80 percent of the venues are going to be in my district, and frankly I know there are a lot of Congressmen who believe they have beautiful districts, but none are nearly so beautiful as mine. And so we invite everyone to come to the Olympics and to see another one of these areas in my district like Moab, where we have the Great Red Rock country where people go down and bike.

This commemorative coin is really about athletes; and now that we have the Summer Olympics going on in Sydney, it is good to consider just for a moment the benefits that they will get. We expect that this commemorative coin will raise about $6 million, which will be split evenly between the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Salt Lake Olympic Committee, and the proceeds of that money will all go to training athletes. So this is a great way to perpetuate the American tradition of winning the Olympics, as we are currently doing.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is a good commemorative coin program. I commend it to the Members. It honors a great tradition, the Olympics. It honors and supports our great U.S. Olympic team, those athletes.

Mr. Speaker, I simply join the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON) and the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK) in urging all Members to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I have no other requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3679, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FEDERAL PRISONER HEALTH CARE COPAYMENT ACT OF 2000

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the bill now under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Crime of the Committee on the Judiciary, was unavoidably detained and has worked a great deal with the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Salmon) on this bill, and the gentleman from Florida has asked that I include for the Record his remarks on this bill, which I now do.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 1349, the Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act of 1999, was introduced by the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. SALMON). It adds a new provision to title 18 to require the Bureau of Prisons to assess and collect a fee from inmates for health care services provided to the inmate. The Subcommittee on Crime and the full Committee on the Judiciary reported this bill favorably by voice vote. It is similar to S. 704, a bill that passed the other body by unanimous consent.

Currently, inmates in the Federal Prison System receive free medical care from BOP employees, Public Health Services personnel, and private health care providers working under contract with the BOP. The purpose of the bill is to impose a type of copayment fee of a nominal amount on inmates, similar to the copayment fee paid by most Americans when they visit a health care provider under a managed health care plan.

Under this bill, the fee would be collected from all inmates who request to see a health care provider. Under the bill as introduced, the director of the BOP would establish a sliding scale for the fee, dependent on an inmate's ability to pay, but in no event would the fee be less than $1 per visit.

The fees to be collected under this bill will help insure that inmates do not abuse the free health care they receive while in prison. Economists tell us that any time someone is given something for nothing, they will use too much of it. Health care copayment fees are a way to ensure that people use an efficient amount of health care, whether they be ordinary citizens or inmates. Also, the Bureau of Prisons has testified before the subcommittee that it believes some inmates often sign up for sick call as a way of getting out of other responsibilities. This fee will also help deter inmates from abusing the system in that manner.

The fee to be collected under the bill is limited in appropriate ways. For example, the fee will not be assessed for health care services that the BOP requires all inmates receive, nor would it be charged for return visits required by BOP doctors after the inmate's first voluntary visit. Inmates will also not pay the fee for diagnosis or treatment of chronic infectious diseases, mental health care, or substance abuse treatment. The bill also provides that if one inmate is injured by another inmate, the other inmate would be assessed the fee for the injured inmate's treatment. And, the bill states that inmates may not be refused treatment because they are insolvent or otherwise unable to pay the fee to be assessed under the

The fees collected from inmates who have been ordered to pay restitution on their victims are to be used for that purpose. Three-quarters of the remaining fees are to be paid into the Federal Crime Victims Fund, and one-quarter is to be used by the Attorney General for administrative expenses in carrying out the requirements of the bill.

The bill also allows State and local governments which are housing Federal inmates under a contract with the Federal Government to also assess such a fee, provided that the fee is authorized under the law of the State where the Federal inmate is housed and that State prisoners are charged no greater a fee.

Mr. Speaker, I support this bill, the administration supports this bill, and I urge all of my colleagues to support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, this ends the statement of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum).

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 1349, the Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act. The bill authorizes the director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons to collect a fee of at least $1 from an account of a prisoner for each health care visit made by that prisoner. While we were successful through the amendment process to get certain health care services excepted from that fee, such as emergency visits and prenatal care, a prisoner must still pay a fee in most instances and for conditions as serious as infectious diseases.

The gentleman from Indiana suggested that chronic infectious diseases would not be assessed a fee, but other prisoners with other infectious diseases will be discouraged from seeking care with the fee. Discouraging prisoners from getting necessary health care services by charging a copay violates the government's constitutional obligation to provide such services. It will not reduce prisoner abuse of the health care system, and it will end up costing the taxpayers money.

Mr. Speaker, the Supreme Court has recognized the government's obligation to provide health care to prisoners. In 1976, in Estelle v. Gamble, the Supreme Court enunciated the principle that the government has an obligation to provide medical care to prisoners and this has been upheld in subsequent cases. For example, in 1989 in the DeShaney v. Winnebago County Department of Social Services the court stated, "When the States, by affirmative exercise of its power, so restrains an individual's liberty that it renders him unable to care for himself and, at the same time, fails to provide for his basic human needs; e.g., food, shelter, clothing, medical care and reasonable safety, it transgresses the substantive limits on State actions set by the eighth amendment and the due process clause.

Given the limited amounts of money on hand in Federal prisoner accounts at any given time, a health care copayment requirement will impede their access to needed health care, particularly at the early treatment and intervention stage. The Bureau of Prisons reports that the majority of inmates make less than 17 cents per hour, and more than half of all inmates have no more than $60 in their account at any time, including the day immediately after their monthly pay period. Thus, even a minor copay would constitute a significant burden.

Establishing such a prerequisite to health care treatment not only undermines the government's constitutional obligation to provide medical care to inmates, but it also constitutes bad public policy. An inmate's failure to get timely treatment could result in a minor problem becoming a major problem, such as complications due to delayed detection of cancer or danger to others, resulting from untreated infectious diseases.

Further, the proponents' argument that the copay will deter inmate abuse of health care services simply lacks merit. Obviously, inmates with substantial amounts of money will not be deterred by a dollar or so copay from seeking unnecessary health care, and further, those inmates who are actually seeking appropriate care will still have to pay the copay, and so it discourages those who are seeking appropriate health care as well as those seeking inappropriate health care.

Therefore, a more likely effect of H.R. 1349 is their ability to pay will be the determining factor of whether an inmate seeks care and not whether the prisoner truly needs medical attention. Thus, it is not surprising when the Bureau of Prisons witnesses acknowledged at a hearing on H.R. 1349 that there is no way to know how many truly sick inmates will be deterred by the copay as opposed to those abusing the system.

Further, since even those who are determined to be truly sick must pay, it appears that the real purpose of the bill is simply to deter inmates from seeking health care whether they need it or not. Consistent with that purpose, the majority opposed amendments in committee which would have required a copay only if the inmate is found to have no reasonable basis for seeking health care services.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, there is a significant question as to whether the cost of administering the program will actually be greater than any savings projected. Proponents of the legislation point to States which have instituted inmate health care copayments to suggest that copays really work to discourage unnecessary health care and save the State money without jeopardizing the health care of inmates.

However, the only study on this issue has been a study by the California State auditor which found that the California Department of Corrections' annual copay program, the annual cost of that program of $3.2 million amounted to almost five times the annual collections, wasting $2.5 million. Certainly, it is not surprising that these audit results prompted the California State auditor to recommend that the program be terminated.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, this bill violates the government's obligation to provide health care services. It constitutes bad public policy by discouraging the truly sick from seeking health care, and it will end up costing the taxpayers money. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to vote no on H.R. 1349.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. SALMON), the author of the legislation.

(Mr. Salmon asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SALMON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to, first of all, thank the committee chairman, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) for working so tirelessly on getting this piece of legislation to the floor. I would also like to thank the subcommittee chairman, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) for all of his hard work and his commitment.

As we can see from the poster board here, grandma pays a copayment when she seeks health care, but the criminals pictured here, John Gotti, Timothy McVeigh, Ramzi Yousef, and Aldrich Ames do not. Most law-abiding citizens like grandma pay a small fee every time they seek elective care. But the most despicable criminal element, terrorists, murderers and drug dealers face no such burden.

Why should Federal prisoners be any different? The free health care currently enjoyed by Federal prisoners is an offense to every law-abiding, hardworking American taxpayer who struggles to make ends meet. It is time to end the free ride for Federal prisoners by requiring them to contribute to the costs of their own care.

The Federal prisoner health care copayment act puts an end to the unfair policy that permits convicts totally free access to unlimited health care. Also, under the act, every time a convict pays to heal himself, he will pay to heal a victim. Most of the copayments collected will be deposited in the Crime Victims Fund.

The support for this bill is bipartisan and bicameral. The Senate version passed earlier last year with the support of everyone from JESSE HELMS to TOM DASCHLE. The Federal Bureau of Prisons and the Department of Justice have endorsed the bill. At least 38 States have enacted prisoner health care copayment plans. The bill reflects many of the features of the successful State copayment laws.

The Federal Prisoner Health Copayment Act simply requires the Federal Bureau of Prisons to collect a copayment of at least $1 for elected health care visits covered by the bill. The legislation applies to both inmates in the Federal Bureau of Prisons and those in the Federal system housed in non-Federal facilities such as county jails. It is expected that the Bureau of Prisons will adopt a sliding scale of fees to reflect the financial status of the inmates. Indigent prisoners would not be denied care. The fee would not be assessed for preventive health care services or emergency services, prenatal care, diagnosis or treatment for chronic infectious diseases, mental health care, or substance abuse treatment.

The fee does not take effect until inmates are given prior notice. As mentioned above, every time a prisoner pays to heal himself, he will help to pay a victim.

Mr. Speaker, 75 percent of the funds collected go to the Crime Victims Fund, and the remainder covers administrative costs. If the experience of 38 States that have copayment programs up and running is any indicator, the Federal measure will accomplish several important objectives. Most importantly, frivolous visits will be reduced, perhaps dramatically. The Federal prisoner health care system is being overutilized, if not abused. The legislation will ensure that every prisoner receives the care they need without forcing the taxpayers to pay for red carpet treatment not available to most lawabiding Americans.

Consider some of the examples of how well this program has worked on the Statewide level. This is a list of all of the States in our country, 38, that have passed a copayment piece of legislation like I am introducing here today. Arizona estimates a 40 to 60 percent reduction in medical utilization. Florida experienced a 16 to 29 percent reduction in health care visits. New Jersey inmates visits declined 60 percent. Kansas saw a 30 to 50 percent reduction. Nevada, a 50 percent reduction, and Maryland, a 40 percent drop.

Mr. Speaker, CBO estimates that enactment of the Federal Health Prisoner Copayment Care Act would result in a reduction of medical visits that could be as low as 16 percent and as high as 50 percent. That is 50 percent, and that is significant.

These reductions translate into a real cost savings. The bill would generate annual revenues of $500,000 through collection of a copayment fee, most of which would benefit crime victims. Additionally, $1 million to $2 million in cost savings in reduced health care visits would be realized and could be upwards of $5 million in subsequent years.

According to CBO, the costs of administering this program would only cost about $170,000 annually. There is absolutely no doubt that enactment of the Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act will save taxpayers money and provide victims of crime with a modest boost in funding.

The bill will also improve prison safety and discipline, promote responsibility, and increase the resources available to truly sick inmates.

□ 1615

In addition to reducing unnecessary visits to these facilities operated by the Bureau of Prisons, the bill would accomplish the same result for Federal inmates under the supervision of the U.S. Marshals Service. The U.S. Marshals Service supports the bill for three other reasons:

Number one, equity. If those in a State criminal justice system must pay a copayment, so should the Federal inmates housed in the institution. Two, liability. With no Federal law on this matter governing, some Federal inmates have sued local facilities that have perhaps improperly charged them a copayment. Number three, friction. The exempt status of Federal inmates foster resentment amongst State inmates. As I mentioned, 38 States have passed this. Will it take 50 States before we finally get on board and follow the leaders?

As a bonus that will interest local facilities that house Federal inmates, the bill will generate hundreds of thousands of dollars. The attacks on this bill have one element in common: They are all misplaced. Any constitutional concerns do not even pass the most liberal laugh test. Thirty-eight States have enacted the copayment laws. These States have survived court challenges in at least seven States, one being the State of Virginia. The bill does not deprive inmates of health care, rather it requires them, when they have sufficient funds in their accounts, to pay a modest copayment when seeking elective care.

While it may be true that a majority of Federal inmates do not have an exorbitant amount of money in their prison accounts, what expenses do they use their discretionary funds for? Their meals are taken care of, their exercise is taken care of, their studies are taken care of. Prisoners are not paying for room and board. They are not paying for television or recreational services. So where do they spend their money? In the commissary on such items as cigarettes. The average cost of a pack of smokes is double that of the minimum in the Prisoner Copayment Act. If prisoners are left with less money to purchase products such as cigarettes, I think we could argue they might be better off.

Those concerned that the copayment would hit poorer inmates harder than the richer ones, should be happy to know that the bill permits the director of the Bureau of Prisons to assess higher fees for more affluent inmates. We have been hearing so much about how terrible the rich are in this country, so we can stick it to the rich inmates. This is a good provision in this bill.

As for cost effectiveness, a few members of the minority cite a California report on its copayment program. This report indicates that copayment fees collected may be less than the amount spent administering the program. Even if this is the case, the final figure as to the cost effectiveness of the California program, which I have read the report, it is dubious at best, because they have no kind of tracking mechanism to establish exactly where the money has gone or the money is collected or any of the cost-benefit analysis, but they are leaving out one critical factor: The dollar value of the frivolous visits eliminated by the copayment program. With this added to the equation, the California program would be a cost saver. But they have not had any tracking mechanism instituted to determine any real data on that. In any event, CBO has reviewed the legislation before us today and concluded that it could save up to $5 million a year in health care costs.

Some argue this will endanger prisoner guards. That obviously is not the case, given the strong support of the Federal Bureau of Prisons. In fact, just the opposite is the case. Guards may be exposed to additional danger when they accompany prisoners en route to a health care visit.

The final argument is the bill would lead to a decline in health care services for inmates. Wrong again. What the bill would do is to eliminate a significant percentage of frivolous visits. This should leave additional funds and resources for the generally infirm inmates.

The vote today on the Federal Prison Health Care Copayment Act will place each Member on one of two sides: The side of convicts or the side of victims. I encourage my colleagues to side with the victims.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, can you advise how much time remains on both sides?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) has 14 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE) has 7½ minutes remaining.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott).

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes just to say that, first, I could not quite tell on the pictures that were presented whether or not Members of Congress were over there pictured with the convicts, because we do not pay a copay.

I would also want to point out that according to the California State auditor, when they did their study on their program they made projections, and when they looked at what they collected, they only collected about one-third of what they had anticipated. So all of these projections ought to be taken in that light.

But it seems to me when we have a program that the State auditor of California calculated that they wasted $2.5 million trying to implement because the cost of implementation was more than the collections, that seems a strange reaction to a situation where we have a grandmother that someone is trying to give relief to. It seems to me we could take some of that $2.5 million and buy a whole lot of health insurance.

We talk about reduction in costs. We also have to add back the cost of the fact that the infectious diseases may not be caught and other people may be infected. Other situations like cancer may not be detected earlier when it is easier to treat. These kinds of expenses will go up because of this copay.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. Myrick).

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this bill because it is another step toward just plain old common sense in our Federal Government Thirty-eight States, as has been mentioned, including my own State of North Carolina, have successfully implemented this copayment program to help cover the cost of prisoners health care. And there is good reason for that. In North Carolina, the average total cost per inmate per day is $63. Of that, food costs about $5, but health care costs over $8.50.

With those numbers in mind, 3 years ago my State decided to implement a $3 copayment for medical services. This bill would bring that same common sense idea to our Federal prisons. If private citizens must pay every time they go to a doctor, then certainly those who have broken the law should have to pay when they choose to go to a doctor.

Yes, this bill will save Federal taxpayers money. CBO says about $5 million a year. However, it is the crime victims who will reap the most benefit from H.R. 1349. Seventy-five percent of the copayments will be directed to the Federal crime victims fund. And these copayments mean that with each elective visit to the infirmary, prisoners will take another small step to paying for their crimes.

It cannot be stated enough that under no circumstances will emergency services, prenatal care, treatment for infectious diseases, mental health care or substance abuse treatment be prevented under this bill. That will not happen. All of those services will be provided regardless of the prisoner's ability to pay. But by requiring nominal copayments of our prisoners for elective medical treatments, this Congress will enact another common sense reform and, at the same time, give some help to the victims of these criminals.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume just to point out that the crime victims who may get money, if we look at the cost in administering this program, a $1 copay would cost 33 cents just to mail the $1 to the victim. Before we have accounted for it in collecting, in accounting, and all that kind of stuff, the idea that the crime victims may get a benefit, it would be a lot easier and cheaper just to appropriate more money directly to crime victims, to the crime victims fund.

This is a total waste of the taxpayers' money. Anybody that knows anything about accounting knows that trying to account for these $1 copays will be much more than any benefit that could be derived.

Again, Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I would say the bill violates the government's obligation under the Constitution to provide health services. It constitutes bad public policy by discouraging the truly sick from seeking health care; it hits those who are sick from accessing appropriate services, as well as those that are not; and I think it is unconscionable to suggest we want to discourage people from accessing appropriate health care.

In the end, this program will cost the taxpayers money, more money than they can ever collect from this program. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and rather than reiterate the statement of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum), which has now been entered in the record, let me just mention one point that was made during the debate, and that is the assertion that Members of Congress do not copay for their health care.

While there are a variety of options available, and I am not familiar with all of the plans, I know that this Member, and others that I have spoken to sitting right here, do copay on our health care plans.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask for support of the House on the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PEASE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1349, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from the further consideration of the Senate bill (S. 704) to amend title 18, United States Code, to combat the overutilization of prison health care services and control rising prisoner health care costs, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

Mr. PEASE. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. PEASE moves to strike out all after the enacting clause of the Senate bill, S. 704, and insert in lieu thereof the text of H.R. 1349, as passed the House.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

A similar House bill (H.R. 1349) was laid on the table.

OMNIBUS CRIME CONTROL AND SAFE STREETS ACT AMENDMENTS

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill (S. 1638) to amend the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 to extend the retroactive eligibility dates for financial assistance for higher education for spouses and dependent children of Federal, State, and local law enforcement officers who are killed in the line of duty.

S 1638

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. EXTENSION OF RETROACTIVE ELIGI-BILITY DATES FOR FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE FOR HIGHER EDUCATION FOR SPOUSES AND CHILDREN OF LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS KILLED IN THE LINE OF DUTY.

- (1) by striking "May 1, 1992", and inserting "January 1, 1978,"; and
  (2) by striking "October 1, 1997," and inserting "January 1, 1978,".
- EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall take effect October 1, 1999.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on S.1638, the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

There was no objection.

Mr. HUTCHINŠON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I rise in support of Senate bill 1638, a bill which will amend the Federal Law Enforcement Dependents Act of 1996. That act provides educational assistance to the dependents of Federal law enforcement officers and State and local public safety officers killed in the line of duty.

The Senate bill passed the Senate in May by unanimous consent. The identical House version of the bill, H.R. 2059, was introduced by the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING) on June 8 of 1999, and it was reported by voice vote from the Committee on the Judiciary on July 11 of this year. The bill has wide bipartisan support. And in the interest of ensuring that this important legislation is enacted into law at this late hour in the legislative session, we have taken up the Senate bill.

The Senate bill would amend the Federal Law Enforcement Dependents Assistance Act to extend the retroactive eligibility dates for financial assistance for higher education to the spouses and dependent children of Federal law enforcement officers and State and local public safety officers that were killed in the line of duty.

Current law provides that the dependents of Federal law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty on or after May 1, 1992, are eligible for this assistance. Dependents of State and local public safety officers killed in the line of duty on or after October 1, 1997 are also eligible. Unfortunately, the somewhat arbitrary choice for these dates has excluded some deserving dependents from participating in the program. This legislation will move the eligibility dates farther back in time in order to make them eligible. For Federal law enforcement officers and for State and local public safety officers, the new date will be January 1, 1978.

This important legislation is endorsed by the Department of Justice, the Fraternal Order of Police, and the Federal Law Enforcement Officers Association. Considering the sacrifices these brave officers make to protect us all, I think that the least we can do is to help their families get the kind of education that they might not otherwise be able to afford.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all my colleagues to support this very important piece of legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 1630

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S. 1638. The bill is identical to the Judiciary-passed version of H.R. 2059. The bill amends the Federal Law Enforcement Dependents Assistance Act of 1996 to extend eligibility for financial assistance for higher education to spouses and dependent children to Federal, State, and local law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty.

Current law provides that the dependents of Federal law enforcement officers killed in the line of duty after May 1, 1992, are eligible for this assistance. Dependents of State and local police officers killed in the line of duty after October 1, 1997, are also eligible.

This legislation would change the date to January 1, 1978, for Federal law enforcement officers and State and local public safety officers. This is an appropriate and cost-effective change in the law, given the modest cost projections of the program.

For example, less than $50,000 was spent under the program last year; and projections even under the longer eligibility periods remain modest, totaling about 24 million over the next 10 years.

Mr. Speaker, I am aware of no opposition to the bill and consider it to be a reasonable and worthy way to honor the memory and contributions of slain law enforcement officials and other public safety officers and to assist their families. I, therefore, urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING), who has been the author of the House version of this legislation.

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Arkansas for yielding me the time. I certainly thank him for his cooperation and support in expediting the passage of this bill.

I also want to, Mr. Speaker, give a special debt of thanks to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK), himself a former police officer, for the veoman's job that he has done in making this a truly bipartisan effort and for giving up so much of his time and effort. And also words of thanks are due to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY), who actually was very instrumental in the passage of the initial legislation 2 years ago which this bill today is amending. She certainly deserves credit.

I also want to thank the Committee on the Judiciary for acting in such a bipartisan way. Also, I want to commend Kevin Horan of my staff for the great job that he has done in moving this bill along.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott) have detailed exactly what this bill is about. I just think it is absolutely essential that we pass this legislation.

My father was a former New York City police officer for more than 30 years. I have known many police officers. I also, unfortunately, have known police officers and families of police officers who have been killed in the line of duty, who have been permanently disabled. And while there is nothing we can do to make those families whole, there is nothing we can do to take away their grief and suffering, the fact is that this is a step in the right direction. It ameliorates some of that suf-

It also, probably just as importantly, shows that our country as a whole wants to acknowledge the debt that we owe to these men and women for the sacrifice and suffering that they have gone through. It is a way of we, as a Nation, telling what we are really all about and acknowledging the men and women who are on the front lines, who are protecting us day in and day out, who are putting their lives and limbs on the line for us so that we can enjoy a safe and prosperous life in this coun-

So this is a bill which is very instrumental in, I believe, acknowledging the debt we owe to these people. It is also very important in showing where we as a country stand. It also shows that we, in a bipartisan fashion, can acknowledge the work that has been done by the police officers of this country and also give a little bit of respite, a little bit of solace, and a little bit of peace to the families of those who have suffered so much

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK), a former law enforcement official, who is a strong supporter of law enforcement.

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the

Mr. Speaker, it is great to see legislation come to the floor like this in a bipartisan manner. I remember when I came here in 1993, there was no law enforcement caucus. We founded a law enforcement caucus. We have been able to set up a bipartisan team that is constantly working on legislation to improve the lives for law enforcement and their families throughout this Nation.

We began in 1996 by making the bill available so that if Federal law enforcement officers were killed in the line of duty, the educational benefits for their spouses and their children would be taken care of.

Then again in 1998 we added State and local law enforcement. And now here we are in the year 2000 to really correct some inequities that have been found in all the laws that we have put together. But none of this could happen unless we all work together.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. KING) and I introduced this bill back in June of 1999. It was H.R. 2059. The Senate has moved quickly, so we are glad to substitute our bill for their bill just so we can get this passed in the waning days here of the 106th Congress.

The gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY), the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott), the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING), the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON), we are all part of the law enforcement caucus. There are about 69 or 70 Members who work together to try to not only take care of personal needs like this, whether it is buying bulletproof vests or trying to make sure that the voices of law enforcement are heard here in the United States Congress.

As it has been said, the necessity for this legislation is because we have different eligibility dates for both Federal and State officers. And so what we are doing is really making the legislation actually move the eligibility dates back further in time to make more dependents eligible for this benefit. It will now go to January 1, 1978. And also, at the same time, Federal, State, and local public safety officers are included in this legislation. And we will take a look at the costs.

One of the big concerns in 1996 when we started the program was what would the cost be to the Federal Treasury. We have seen in 1999 just based upon educational benefits to officers' survivors who were killed in the line of duty was only around some $44,000. And as the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT) says, even in the next 10 years. at most if everyone took advantage of it, it would be about $24 million.

So as a law enforcement officer and as a Member of this body, I thank evervone who has helped in this legislation, who has helped us through the years to make the law enforcement caucus a success. We have to be there for the families that every day they love and support the men and women who serve as law enforcement officers of this country. These families deserve our support when the unthinkable happens and their loved one is struck down. We have to look out for them just as their husbands, their wives. their mothers, their fathers look out for us each and every day, risking their commitments to their family for the greater commitment that they have made to this great Nation.

With that I thank all of my colleagues for moving this legislation forward. I thank them for their cooperation that we have enjoyed in the last few years and look forward to continuing to work with them on measures affecting law enforcement.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY), who has been an extraordinary fighter for this legislation even prior to this Congress.

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong support for this bill.

Mr. Speaker, in the 105th Congress I proposed legislation which sought to provide educational assistance for the families of all fallen officers.

Though we were not able to fully achieve this objective, with the help of my colleagues on the Committee on the Judiciary, we took an important first step by enacting legislation which provided assistance to some of these families who have lost their loved ones in the line of duty.

This bill covers not only our police officers but fire people and corrections officers, as well our public safety officers who make our Nation safe.

Today we take action on a proposal to widen the circle of families who are eligible for this assistance. Approval of this bill will mark another significant step in fully recognizing the debt owed to those officers who have given their lives for the sake of all of us.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in support of this measure. This is something we simply ought to do and we need to do.

I want to thank my colleagues, the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING) in particular, the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON), the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott), and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK), for their efforts on behalf of this important issue.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this piece of legislation.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fossella).

(Mr. FOSSELLA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FOSSELLA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to commend the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCH-INSON) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK), as well as the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY) and especially the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING), for being such a strong advocate of this legislation but also for being such a strong advocate for law enforcement in general.

This legislation rights a minor wrong, and that is it acknowledges those families that were left out of the original legislation. Despite the good intentions, that first draft clearly left some families out across the country.

I am very proud to represent the folks in Staten Island and Brooklyn and probably represent the most police officers, active and retired, I would bet, in any congressional district in the country. They are my friends. They are my neighbors. But more importantly, they protect us every single day.

It feels like every year I am going to another funeral for a police officer who was killed in the line of duty. And, yeah, it affects the New York City Police Department. It goes to the heart of society. It goes to the heart of these men and women who are willing to risk their lives to protect us. But it also destroys, in part, their families.

I have seen the young boys who lost their fathers to gunshot wounds to the head trying to protect a local community. I have seen mothers who were pregnant expecting their baby when they are burying their father. I have seen families who have four or five or six police officers between two families devastated when a young husband, a young father is killed from some career criminal.

So those are all the things that sometimes we forget that police officers are willing to do for us.

But one thing we do not forget today, with the help of the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING) and everyone else here today, is to tell those families that may have been left out, the Congress of the United States appreciates what they went through; and if they need help to help their child, we are there for them.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would just conclude by saying that when police officers give their lives to protect the rest of us, there is really no limit to what we ought to be willing to give back to that family.

This is a really symbolic gesture. The education of the children means that the next generation has a future. We know what education will do. And this is just one symbolic gesture of our respect and admiration for the courage of police officers and for those that have given the ultimate sacrifice on behalf of the rest of us.

I certainly know of no opposition to the bill and hope it can be passed unanimously.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill, S. 1638.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the Senate bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4999.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

There was no objection.

Mr. HUTCHINŚON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the Local Government Law Enforcement Act of 2000 represents an important step by this Congress to assist local governments throughout the country as they confront crime. In stark contrast to the 1994 Crime Act, it does so without prescribing the specific programs localities must implement in order to receive funding.

This bill provides resources to localities to respond to their unique crime problems with their own unique solutions.

The text of H.R. 4999 is nearly identical to the reauthorization passed by the House of Representatives in February of 1995. There are two differences between this bill and the previous reauthorization.

First of all, the previous reauthorization as passed sought to repeal the COPS program. This bill does not do that.

□ 1645

It authorizes the block grants without in any way affecting the COPS. That is one difference. The second difference is that under the previous reauthorization and this bill, both include a 10 percent local match requirement, whereby the Federal share may not exceed 90 percent of the cost of a program proposed funding under the act. However, only H.R. 4999 includes a waiver exception in cases of financial hardship. Therefore, a unit can have its matching requirement waived upon a showing of financial hardship.

We should make no mistake that this bill will provide money for our law enforcement fighting efforts with greater flexibility to the vast majority of localities throughout America. Those who argue that this money will be wasted are completely wrong. This is not a grant program for police chiefs like the old Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. This is a grant program that assists communities in addressing their crime problems. It does so through a highly visible process involving all the major law enforcement, judicial and private sector voices in the community. There is a role for the Federal Government to assist the States in the fight against crime, but such assistance must appreciate that the problems vary from State to State and community to community. We must avoid a one-size-fits-all approach, even as we reject micromanagement support from Washington that comes at the expense of flexibility.

The act leaves to local governments the decisions regarding what their funding priorities should be. It neither requires that funds be spent on police officers nor on prevention programs. It leaves that decision to local governments who understand their crime problems far better than we do. Under this bill, localities can fund police on the beat or prevention activities or anything in between. The act simply requires that those funds be used to reduce crime and improve public safety.

I will not go through all the different sections of the bill, Mr. Speaker; but I believe that the Local Government Law Enforcement Act is an important way for the Federal Government to assist localities in dealing with crime without getting in their way. It is a rejection of the "Washington knows best" mind-set and it provides more resources for the counties, cities, and towns of America to develop homegrown solutions to their unique crime problems.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise not only to express my support for H.R. 4999 but also to express my disappointment that the bill under consideration on the floor today is being considered without committee consideration. Among the constructive purposes authorized in the bill are the hiring, training, and equipping of police and other law enforcement personnel and the establishment of crime prevention, early intervention, and drug court programs. The bill specifically contains prohibitions on buying things like tanks, airplanes, yachts, and limousines which could have been purchased under some of the former programs that the gentleman from Arkansas referenced.

While I support the reauthorization contained in the bill, I had hoped that we would be looking at a program at the committee level along with other important law enforcement programs such as the Community Oriented Policing Services program, better known as the COPS program. The COPS program has been very successful and considered to be a vital contributor to the success of local communities in bringing down the crime rate all across the country.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. WEINER), a member of the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime introduced an authorization bill for the COPS program which had the support of the administration and a significant number of other Members of the House. I know that the law enforcement community which strongly supports the Weiner bill would have preferred to see both of these matters taken up in committee with both coming to the floor for an authorization based on a full assessment of their value to the local communities. Unfortunately, that did not happen and here we are with just this part of the bill.

But before closing, Mr. Speaker, I would want to thank the gentleman from Arkansas for accommodating the concerns of the gentleman from Guam (Mr. UNDERWOOD) involving the formula for the appropriation. Inadvertently, the bill that we were to bring to the floor had an outdated allocation for Guam, but the bill before us now includes the updated allocation. Thanks to the alertness and effectiveness of the gentleman from Guam, we were able to correct this oversight.

Mr. Speaker, although the bill does not contain the COPS program, I support the bill because it includes authorization for valuable, effective crime prevention initiatives which will be developed on the local level. I urge my colleagues to vote aye on the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume

I just wanted to thank the gentleman from Virginia for his comments in support of this legislation. I also just wanted to remark that the gentleman from Virginia has certainly been an ardent worker in the issues of crime, both in his work on the subcommittee but also I have attended numerous hearings across the country with him and he has certainly devoted himself to this issue. The gentleman raised the issue of the COPS program, Community Oriented Policing Services program. We have held hearings in committee. It is true that we have not moved forward the bill to reauthorize his program, but as the gentleman knows, there has been some concern expressed about the effectiveness of the program. It was originally planned as a program with a fixed end to it. And so I think it is appropriate, just expressing my view, that at this juncture we wait until the next administration, wherever that might take us, to see exactly where we are going to go on that particular issue.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER), who has done an extraordinary job in pushing this legislation. Without his leadership on this issue, I do not think we would be here today talking about this.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) for yielding me this time, and I certainly thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Scott) for his support of this. I also want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) for all the work that he has done on this and the Subcommittee on Crime and the staff there that has done a lot of work on this.

As it stands right now, we have had a program similar to this instituted; it has been through the appropriations. We have never had it fully authorized. We passed a bill similar to this or it was passed in Congress before I was here, at least on the House but never on the Senate side. So we are hoping very much that we can get this bill fully authorized, fully passed to authorize this program with the appropriate changes that have been made here.

First of all, it allocates $2 billion a year for the fiscal years 2001 through 2005. We also understand as far as the improvements, they have already been mentioned, these as far as providing block grants back to local law enforcement agencies, it ensures that those communities, those poor communities that are not able to meet that match requirement previously will not be precluded from getting these block grants because of a waiver that we have instituted. I know this is going to be particularly helpful for our State of Kentucky. We have several communities that may need certain items for safety or police officers or other crime prevention programs, and yet they may not be able to meet that 10 percent match sometimes. So in those hardship cases, they are able to receive this grant which previously was unavailable to them. We are glad that that change was able to be instituted.

Why have we had so much emphasis on crime? I am glad to say that over the last 8 years we have seen a decrease in crime in this country, but if we look back as early as 1960, from 1960 or 1964 up to 1991, 1992, we had a 600 percent increase in crime in this country, a tremendous increase in crime. Seventy to 80 percent of all families were affected by crime, many types of crimes. Certainly it has affected our region.

I reference an article we had recently in Lexington, Kentucky, where we have particular needs. I think it points out the diversity of communities and the diverse needs communities have where it says the crime in Lexington increased in 1999 and that probably happened in other communities around the country. We can see from the diversity of problems that we have across the Nation that a plan that implements just a one-size-fits-all is not best for particular communities.

I think, clearly, the Federal Government certainly has a role; but the best crime prevention needs to come locally where they understand the particular problems that they have. That is what makes this program so effective and really so popular among law enforcement agencies and other institutions that work to prevent and reduce crime.

In Kentucky, we have already received $4.2 million in grants from this program. Almost $1 million has gone to our State police in Kentucky. Over half a million has gone to my district alone. In these we have used funds to hire police and to pay overtime. We have used the funds to purchase other law enforcement equipment and increased the technology that allows them to more effectively prevent and detect crimes. And we have used it to establish crime prevention programs that otherwise would not be able to be afforded or be available for the communities. So it is very important.

I am certainly pleased that we have a tremendous amount of bipartisan support on this bill, the approach to reduce crime by ensuring that we provide flexibility to local law enforcement agencies and organizations and that we understand that we can bring certainly the priority of crime prevention from the Federal level but many of the decisions need to be made at the local level to ensure that we do effectively fight crime, reduce crime in this country, and make this a safer Nation for all people. I encourage everyone to vote for this bill.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4999, as amended.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PERIODIC REPORT ON TELE-COMMUNICATIONS PAYMENTS MADE TO CUBA PURSUANT TO TREASURY DEPARTMENT SPECIFIC LICENSES—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 4577, DEPARTMENTS OF LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, AND EDUCATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIA-TIONS ACT, 2001

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct conferees on the bill (H.R. 4577) making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2001, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Coburn moves that the managers on the part of the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill, H.R. 4577, be instructed to recede to Section 517 of the Senate Amendment to the House bill, prohibiting the use of funds to distribute postcoital emergency contraception (the morning-after pill) to minors on the premises or in the facilities of any elementary or secondary school.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN).

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the Chair, who has the right to close on this debate?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Oklahoma has the right to close.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this motion to instruct is to bring the House in line with the Senate's vote on this very issue, and we are going to hear a broad debate this evening about the pros and cons of postcontraception, but that is not what I think this debate is. I think the debate is whether or not parents ought to be made or allowed to be involved in significant decisions of their children, and what we are doing now in 180 schools in this country is excepting out parents from a decision that they need to know about, excepting out parents and the child's physician from a medical decision that is being made for that individual.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I ask, as we await some other Members who are a little better informed on this than I, I did have some questions for the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN). As I read the instruction, and I am not totally familiar with the Senate language, he said this was to protect the rights of parents. As written, the instruction would say that that was a prohibition, even if the parents consented. Is that the gentleman's intent that even if the parents consented this would not be allowed?

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRAŇK of Massachusetts. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. ČOBURN. Mr. Speaker, I would not have any problem; that is their individual choice. I have a problem in destroying the life of an unborn baby; that is a different topic. But if, in fact, a parent is involved, but under the auspices of the HCSC planning guidelines and under the auspices of title 10, there is no obligation to inform the parents whatsoever.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for that, but the point is, as I read the instruction, if that is an accurate repeat of the language in the Senate bill, it does not allow for an exception where the parents want to. So it goes from saying the parents are not involved at all on both sides.

I would say one other thing, and I see the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER) is coming, and I am prepared to yield the time to him, but I am struck, when we discuss the question of abortion and those who make it illegal talk about an unborn child, I think we ought to be clear when we are talking now about a morning after bill, because we are often told there is a heartbeat, there are feet, there are various representations of that unborn child.

We are clearly here talking about a situation where there is no physical manifestation of the unborn child of the sort we have seen, there are no feet, there is no heartbeat. This is a philosophical objection. This is an effort to make illegal something which is philosophically expressed opposition to a form of birth control. It is very different than the kinds of representations we get.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield the remainder of the time that was allocated to me to the gentleman from Wisconsin, the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations, for purposes of control.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) will control the remaining time allotted to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

There was no objection.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, could I inquire, how much time is remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Wisconsin has 28 minutes remaining.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that 14 minutes of my time be allocated to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER) for purposes of control.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER) will control 14 minutes of the 28 minutes allotted to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

There was no objection.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I frankly am of a split mind on this issue. I am fairly old fashioned, and I come from a part of the country where these kinds of subjects are not discussed much in public, and I frankly get uneasy when I walk into a lot of places and see condoms and other devices being made available on a wholesale basis. I am very uncomfortable about that. But I think it is also a complicated question.

I have concerns about the motion of the gentleman from Oklahoma and actually there are a number of reasons. First of all, because I am not necessarily convinced that the best approach in my city, my hometown would be the best approach in New York or San Francisco or Lexington, Kentucky or other communities or vice versa. And I think one of the problems with the Coburn motion is that it gets in the way of local people being able to decide how they want to handle a very sensitive problem.

Secondly, I think you do have conflicting views about which approach actually saves the most lives and prevents the most abortions. And I suspect that what the answer is to that question again depends on the community morals and practices and culture. And so while I understand those who say that they find issues like this distasteful and sometimes they get, in fact, angry.

Mr. Speaker, I really wonder whether it is wise for the Congress to tell local school districts that one approach is better than another.

The other thing I would simply say is that we are trying to close up this session, and that means we are trying to resolve differences; that means we are trying to keep as much language off appropriation bills as possible, and it seems to me that to the extent that these riders are attached, which are legislative in nature, they get in the way of our ability to finish our work before the end of the fiscal year, and that causes all kinds of turmoil.

And also, frankly, if we are going to start making motions to instruct on this bill, then a number of us are going to have motions to instruct to try to accomplish policy ends that we think are important also. So if we are about to get into that business, then I guess we are going to have to get into it all the way.

Mr. Špeaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I just say in response to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), there are 4,000 clinics, outside of school clinics, where you can get this done with Federal funds, what we are saying is, is this should not be happening in a middle school. There is plenty of places that if you want this service, you can get it, but it should not be occurring in the seventh and eighth grades in this country without a parent involved.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the motion of the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) is certainly a proper motion and appropriate, but it is a very unfortunate motion for us.

It contravenes instructions given to us by our own leadership, it attempts to circumvent the House rules and procedures, and it makes the completion of our conference more difficult at a time when we are trying to finish our work. In meetings in mid-July, I should tell the gentleman from Oklahoma, the bicameral majority party leadership decided that we should drop all controversial riders to the Labor, HHS and Education bill. The senior senator from Pennsylvania, the chairman of the Senate subcommittee. Mr. SPECTER, and I were instructed to do exactly that to move this process forward.

Mr. Speaker, based on these instructions, the Senate receded from its position on this amendment; and all other similar riders were dropped in the conference.

Mr. Speaker, the motion if offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma as an amendment to the bill would not be in order in the House. Thus the import of this action is to attempt to do by motion what the rules would have prevented him from doing by amendment on the House floor.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, this motion will only serve to sharpen differences within this bill and delay the completion of the final conference report.

Mr. Speaker, of the funds made available in the bill, Elementary and Secondary Education Act funds are prohibited, by law, from being used for health clinics of any sort. Only Public Health Service funds provide a substantial source for the activities that the gentleman is alluding to.

I note that the gentleman is a member, and a valued member, of the Committee on Commerce; he is, in fact, vice chair of the Subcommittee on Health. I also note that recently coming across my desk he wrote with others a dear colleague relating to the Ryan White AIDS program.

Now, we support very strongly the Ryan White AIDS program; and we, in fact, have very substantially increased it over the President's budget request. I certainly applaud the bipartisanship on that matter. While amending the Public Health Services Act to reauthorize Ryan White, why could not the provisions included in the motion be included there? Why did not the gentleman simply add the provisions that he is attempting now to attach to an appropriation bill, where it is not appropriate, to the authorizing bill that he had before him at that time?

Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman if he would respond to that. It seems to me that the Commerce Committee is where it ought to be taken up. Over and over, authorizers tell appropriators to stay off of their turf, to not do what they are authorized to do in their jurisdiction. I agree with that. We include no authorizing provisions in the House bill without the express approval of the authorizers. But the gentleman from Oklahoma telling let us get into their jurisdiction and put this Provision on the appropriations bill.

It does not belong in this bill. It should not be discussed here. The motion simply attempts to put legislative language into an appropriation bill, we do not want to do that. We wanted the authorizers to do their work.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, number one, I would thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER), I wished the gentleman would have given me the idea 2 months ago or 3 months ago, and I would have been happy to put that in the bill.

Number two, I find it somewhat ironic. I want to stay on the issue. I find it somewhat ironic that we cannot use direction in terms of spending with the motion to commit, but yet we are funding hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars of programs that never have been authorized by any of the authorizing committees.

What I would ask the gentleman is, does he believe it is right that a 12-year old should get a morning after pill in a school clinic and a parent never know anything about it. I mean, that is what this issue is about. Whether or not we are going to give a prescription drug to a young adolescent female without her parents ever knowing in school; that is what the objection is. That is why this rider is there.

The Senate passed this 54-41. This is not a pro-life, pro-abortion debate. This is a debate about parents being involved. As we look at the young people in our country today, the one problem we are seeing and we are trying to solve in many of the programs that the gentleman has graciously funded through his appropriation to re-empower parents.

□ 1715

This bill tears them down. This bill separates by not having this. So the Senate did want this. They voted it. All we are asking is for the committee, should the House accept this motion to instruct, to follow that and give parents back some of their power.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY).

(Mrs. LOWEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this motion to instruct. The Helms amendment, which my colleague urges the Labor-HHS conferees to accept, was, in fact, voted on and rejected during the conference meetings in late July.

Our colleagues who opposed it understood that supporting this motion would interfere in locally made decisions

There are roughly 1,200 school-based health clinics serving young people across the country, a partnership between local schools and community health providers. Three of four middle-and high school-based clinics do not offer contraceptive services at all.

Of the 25 percent that provide these services, the decision to do so has been made collectively by the schools, the parents, community organizations and the young people themselves.

The community works together to decide what is best for their young people and Congress should respect these local decisions. For those communities that choose to offer contraceptive services, access to contraception, including emergency contraception, just a double dose of a regular oral contraceptive, is crucial to helping teens avoid unintended pregnancies.

I am the co-chair of the Congressional Advisory Panel to the National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy, along with my colleague, the gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE). We have worked very hard in a bipartisan way to find community-based solutions to the epidemic of teen pregnancies that we have experienced in the 1990s. The good news is that the teen pregnancy rate has fallen for 7 straight years. The bad news is that American teenagers still experience 1 million pregnancies each year.

In fact, teen pregnancy rates in this country are higher than in all other industrialized countries, twice as high as in England or Canada, nine times as high as in the Netherlands or Japan. Sadly, the risk of unintended pregnancy is only part of the problem facing our young people. There is also an epidemic of sexually transmitted disease among young Americans, but they do not even know it. Kids think it cannot happen to them, but it can and it

Kids are getting STDs like chlamydia, which years later can rob them of their fertility; HPV, which can lead to cervical and penile cancers; and HIV for which tragically there is still no cure.

Young people may visit a school-based clinic for information about pregnancy prevention, but leave with facts about STDs that can save their lives.

I believe that if we continue to deliver strong and consistent messages about the importance of abstaining from sex, the risk of STDs, accurate information about contraception, we can continue to make continued progress in the fight against teen pregnancy and STDs; but since we know from recent data that three-quarters of the decline in the United States teen pregnancy rate is attributable to improved contraceptive use among teenagers, denying teens access to contraception will only jeopardize this progress.

It does not make sense. That is why we should leave decisions about providing contraception and other important health services to local communities and schools. School-based clinics have an enormous job to do, and they are doing a world of good.

Let us continue to support our communities, as they work to protect the health and safety of their kids. I urge my colleagues to defeat this terribly misguided motion.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to respond. The awareness of the sexually transmitted disease epidemic is one of the things that I think that I have brought to this body. It was denied, obscured and covered up over the last 6 years. The fact is, as a postcoital morningafter pill, administration does nothing to prevent sexually transmitted diseases. The other thing is the gentle-woman who just talked has been against informing people of the fact that a condom does not prevent someone from getting the largest incurable, sexually transmitted disease that we have, that will infect 6 million people this year. So if we want to talk accurately about the medical facts. I will: but this issue is when a child at school cannot get an aspirin without a parent being involved, but we can give them a prescription pill that will have a longterm impact on them. I think we need to have a full and fair discussion on

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. Myrick).

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I support this motion. As a mother and a grandmother, I would be furious, literally furious, if my child were given this pill because I as a mother have to be notified if my child is given an aspirin. So it really upsets me that this decision is made by other people and not by the parents.

There is very little risk involved in taking a simple aspirin, but the morning-after pill does have several possible side effects. While I do not support this as a means of emergency contraception, it is a legal choice, and those who choose to do it should do it under the supervision of a doctor.

Currently, any school that does receive Federal funds for family planning is authorized to distribute the morning-after pill, and right now 180 school clinics offer it. The most disturbing fact is that the Federal laws and regulations overrule State parental consent and notification laws so school nurses can distribute this pill without the parents ever being involved.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this motion and vote to make sure that parents have more rights over their children than the Federal Government.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

(Ms. WOOLSEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to the Coburn motion to instruct. It is no secret that many who support this motion would not only take contraception from schools but would also remove the option from all health clinics. So to say that school health services are not needed is just another anti-choice action.

We know that numbers of teenagers across the country rely on school-based health clinics for their health services and for health care information. Local decision-makers and community representatives, those who know their teenagers' health needs, not the Federal Government, should have the right to decide the services their school health clinics will offer. These individuals are elected by the local constituencies. These schools will tell their school districts what they want. Local decision-makers are the ones who know the needs of their teenagers. They deserve the right to address those needs.

Allowing access to emergency contraceptive care gives teens the ability to act responsibly; act before they become pregnant so that they do not become pregnant. Let us help teens prevent unintended pregnancies. Let us give our local schools and local health clinics the right to decide for their communities.

I urge my colleagues to oppose the Coburn motion to instruct.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PITTS).

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Coburn motion to instruct conferees. Frankly, I do not know how any Member could disagree with this motion that simply prohibits the distribution of the morning-after pill at schools. This is a pill that can cause an early abortion. So our kids can go to school, be given an abortion pill without their parents' consent. Well, unbeknownst to most parents, this is happening in at least 180 schools across America.

Why is this so surprising to parents? Because parents are required to sign a note or permission slip for everything. If their daughter needs an aspirin, the parent writes a note; if she needs an allergy shot, another note; cold medicine, a note from home; insulin, parental permission; penicillin, more permission; Ritalin even more permission; Ritalin even daughters should not be given something as potentially harmful as the morning-after pill at school.

This is a pill that can have side effects such as risks of developing blood clots, heart attacks, strokes, cardiovascular disease. Obviously, one should not just be able to go to a school nurse to get it. The Coburn motion is a logical protection for our daughters and for the right, as parents, to help make important health decisions for them.

Some will argue that our daughters need the morning-after pill in schools if they have been raped or abused. If something as tragic as rape or abuse has violated a young girl, schools are required by law to report this to the authorities. Then proper care can be given to them in a hospital, not at their school.

I urge my colleagues to support this motion.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield  $1\frac{1}{2}$  minutes to the gentlewoman from Colorado (Ms. DEGETTE).

Ms. DEGETTE. Mr. Speaker, what we are talking about here is not abortion and it is not RU-486. It is a high dose of oral contraceptives. We are talking about contraceptives here. Schoolbased clinics provide health care professionals an ideal opportunity to counsel teens about the importance of delaying sexual activity and the risks of unprotected sex.

I would hope, we would all hope, that all girls would consult their parents if there has been a terrible mistake made; but unfortunately that communication does not happen in every family. Would we not want then to prevent an unwanted pregnancy and to prevent perhaps even an unwanted abortion? Certainly many State and local governments want to give their school-based professionals that option.

I always thought that this Congress was for local control. It seems to me we are for local control if it is our views but not the other guy's views. I do not think that is right. Let our local governments decide whether they want their school-based professionals to counsel girls and to be able to give them these contraceptives. Vote no on this motion to instruct.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, there are 4,000 other places in the United States that they can get these pills if they want them. We do not need it in the school. It amazes me that our whole goal is to help somebody keep a lie in our school-based clinics when we use a morning-after pill. The fact is there is a lot of freedom when young women go to their parents after having made a mistake, and are encouraged to do that.

Know what? If we cannot do this in the school, that is what will happen is the school nurse will encourage the young woman to talk with her mother and if she has a father and say we need to talk with them and get their permission to do this.

There are 4,000 other places funded by the Federal Government where this can happen. What we are saying is this should not happen in schools. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH).

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN), for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge Members to support the Coburn motion to instruct conferees, to accept the Senate-passed amendment to protect young girls from being given powerful abortion drugs at school.

I say again, we are talking about a school setting, and that is no place. It is bad enough that this kind of action takes place in abortion mills. To think that we would sanction in any way or shape or form the prescribing of this kind of death to an unborn child at school is outrageous.

It should be noted that these abortion drugs not only destroy a newly created life, but they do indeed carry significant risks for the young student.

□ 1730

As the gentleman from Pennsylvania said a moment ago, with Preven, if we look at the conditions, what the manufacturer itself says, and I quote, "These conditions can cause serious disability or even death." We are talking about this being given out in a high school or junior high or elementary school setting. Our elementary and secondary schools should be the last place, Mr. Speaker, the last place where legitimate parental rights are trampled and usurped, especially when the health or the life of their daughter is at risk. Our elementary and secondary schools should be the place where life is affirmed and respect for life is affirmed; again, the last place where abortion drugs are used.

Years ago, many of us warned that school-based clinics would be misused to facilitate abortions for minors, especially by way of referrals to abortion mills. We know that is going on. Planned Parenthood alone does over 200,000 abortions in its own clinics each and every year, many of them by referrals from schools. But now we know that at least 180 schools across the country offer abortion drugs at their school-based clinics. That is outrageous for parents and for their daughters.

Mr. Speaker, we need to speak up loud and clear. Support the gentleman's very, very smart and wise motion.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CAMP).

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I think that schools are an inappropriate place to dispense morning-after pills, so I rise in support of the Coburn motion to instruct. I think more importantly, not only current law allows this to be done without parent's consent, this is done without parent's knowledge. I think to have in place a law that says, all parents are bad parents. If parents know that their daughter is expecting a child, that would be bad for their daughter. I think we definitely need to make this change, and I think that is probably why a majority of the Senators supported this change when this issue came up in the Senate.

Mr. Speaker, I think that the motion to instruct is a start, because parents should be the first to know if their daughter is pregnant, not the last. There are so many things parents should and would want to do, and I do not think we can have in Federal law a situation where we just assume the worst about every parent in this country. That is why I strongly support this motion to instruct, and I urge everyone to vote for it.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, it has been said over and over again here that this is a question of parental consent. I do not see any of that in this. This simply prohibits the distribution of these contraceptives on school promises. It does not say that if the parent consents, you can do it. It says, you cannot do it under any circumstances. So the whole issue of parental consent is not contained in this motion to instruct; it has nothing to do with this motion to instruct whatsoever.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON).

(Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I rise in opposition to the Coburn motion to instruct conferees.

Mr. Speaker, school-based health centers are partnerships. They are partnerships within a community, and they are organizations in which school personnel, parents, community leaders, health professionals set policy governing what health care is available and under what circumstances. Mr. Speaker, 94 percent of school-based health centers require parental consent forms before a student can be seen. Two out of every three allow parents to choose which services their child cannot receive.

Those centers in which children have most access on their own are located in those communities where teen pregnancies are the highest, and they are the communities where supervision of these children, support for these children, community options for these children, public education for these children is frankly the worst. There are children in our communities who never see their parents for days, and who are basically on their own. There are also lots of young women in high schools who are really actually the victims of what we would now call date rape. But nobody has talked to them about how to say no. Nobody has educated them about how to prevent pregnancy. So we are saying that they should have, through their high school clinics, if the community board has determined that this is appropriate, they should have access to a morning after pill or emergency contraception. This kind of contraception is only a high dosage of birth control pills, the same kind of pills that millions of Americans take every day. This is not RU486. This is just a high dosage of normal contraceptive pills.

If a woman is already pregnant, the emergency pill has no effect on her pregnancy. But if a young person takes this within 72 hours of unprotected sex, date rape, rape, which is sometimes the case and more often than we actually like to acknowledge, or is the victim of incest, she can actually prevent herself from being pregnant.

Mr. Speaker, I do not understand why my colleagues who oppose abortion, although I do understand why they oppose abortion, but I do not understand why they are so opposed to preventing pregnancy, particularly for young girls who are not going to be able to support this child economically and are almost by definition unready to support this child emotionally.

My concern for the children of America is that they be born into stable, loving families that can give them the emotional and economic support and guidance over decades that children need. I can understand the difference of opinion in our Nation about how to manage abortion or what role abortion should play. But this, frankly, has nothing to do with abortion at all. It has everything to do with preventing pregnancy; it has everything to do with communities, health professionals, parents, educators, merely giving young and the power to prevent pregnancy. Now, is it wise for young women to be intimate sexually when they are in high school? I would tell them no, because on a peer development basis, you are transferring power to this young man that frankly women should not transfer because they get more into the web. I mean, I could go on and on. I tell high school kids this. I tell kids all the reasons why being sexually intimate prematurely is not a good idea, how it disempowers them, how it limits their ability to develop and gain control over their abilities, their future, their hopes and their dreams.

However, by the same token, I want those young women who nobody told that to, I want those young women who had nobody advising them and helping them to at least know and understand what their choices are for responsible action. Frankly, I think it is more responsible for a young woman who has either been the victim of date rape, been the victim of rape, how many of these young people are the victims of incest, we do not know, but we are cavalier, cavalier about denying them access to a contraceptive that simply prevents implantation. It prevents pregnancy. That is a good thing. If you cannot economically and emotionally support a child, frankly, it is wise and responsible not to have one.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to oppose the gentleman's motion, because this House has no business passing this provision.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. As somebody who has delivered 3,500 babies and who has cared for every complication of pregnancy, I want to clear up the medical facts. A pregnancy, regardless of when Planned Parenthood says it occurs, occurs when a sperm and an egg unite. Because of where it is located, they have arbitrarily picked to say that is not a pregnancy is the biggest misstatement that I have heard.

Number two is we are talking about high dose oral contraceptives. We are not talking about a small dose. The reason that we have many dosages of pills today is because the risks associated with the high doses were so great that they caused major complications for women. Now, to do morning after pills, we are reverting back to levels of hormones that we have not seen in 20 years in this country in single doses. That raises significant complications for these young women.

The final thing that I would say is if this fails to work, which 25 percent of the time it fails to prevent the pregnancy, there is a concept known as limb reduction deficits, and if we look that up, what we find is babies born without hands, without fingers, without ears, without toes, and without their limbs. That is one of the causative factors from high-dose oral contraceptives at the formative stage of an early fetus. So medically, what was just stated is inaccurate.

Mr. Speaker, I yield  $3\frac{1}{2}$  minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. DEMINT).

Mr. DEMINT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this motion to instruct conferees offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN), my friend.

Mr. Speaker, public schools should not use our taxpayer dollars to distribute the morning after pill to the children of this Nation. This is serious business. We are talking about whether or not the schools of America hand out emergency contraceptives to the children of America. There are many factors in play here, but I fundamentally believe that it gets back to what schools are supposed to be about.

Mr. Speaker, the last time I checked, schools are supposed to be about education. This is their stated purpose, and I think we should all agree that schools have a lot of work to do in that area just to get our children educated.

It is unimaginable to me what I just heard on this House floor, that it has been suggested that a girl who is date raped or suffered from incest should go to school the next morning to get a pill to make sure she is not pregnant, instead of being with her parents in a hospital with police and counselors that could help her. That is where this type of idea leads when we operate in secrecy from parents. Some would say that schools cannot teach if kids are worrying about life's outside pressure. Well, that may be true, but I believe that if schools were really focused on education and teaching, some of life's worries and outside pressures might fade away.

Studies have shown that high educational expectations and goals keep kids focused on their future and their education, and they are not so easily sidetracked. Like it or not, when schools pass out emergency contraceptives, it sends a signal to kids. It says, there is no need to talk to your parents or involve them in decisions which are of immense importance to your physical and emotional well-being. It also says that schools will help students bypass their parents and help make lifechanging decisions for them. I am sorry, Mr. Speaker, but this is not what our schools are supposed to be about. I think kids, parents and folks all across this Nation know it. Schools are supposed to be about reading, writing, arithmetic and educational experience, not social projects funded with taxpayer funds which bypass parents and harm children.

It seems to me that it is not okay for a child to even sneeze in class without a parent's permission, and rightly so, you need parental permission to go on field trips and for a variety of other reasons. You often need parental permission just to take an aspirin. Yet, providing emergency contraception is of more serious medical consequences and parents are specifically not involved.

The Congressional Research Service looked into the prevalence of providing emergency contraceptives in schoolbased clinics and they found at least 180 schools across the country already are handing out emergency morning after pills in their clinics. This is just part of their sample.

Again, Mr. Speaker, schools should be about education, teaching, and learning. Let us keep the focus there. I urge my colleagues to support this motion to instruct conferees.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

□ 17/15

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. BARTLETT).

(Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, in a former life, I had a Ph.D. I guess I still have it. Coming here does not remove that. I taught medical school. I taught nursing students. I have about 100 papers in the scientific literature. So I know something about the process that we are talking about today.

We also have 10 children in our family and 11 grandchildren and one great grandchild. And I will tell my colleagues from the perspective of a professor, a teacher, a parent, a grandparent and a great grandparent, that I think this policy of using taxpayer money to fund the morning after pill without parental consent is obscene and insane.

My colleagues should just stop to think about this. A child in school cannot get an aspirin without parental consent, and yet this legislation, this legislation that we are talking about, that we hope to somehow modify with this amendment, would permit the school, without the parents' knowledge, without parents' consent, with taxpayer money, to give a serious medication to a student which will terminate a life.

I say again: As a professor, as a father, as a grandfather, as a concerned citizen of this country, this is obscene and insane. Support, please, the Coburn amendment

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY).

(Mrs. MALONEY of New York asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Here we go again. Although this session is about to wrap up, the attacks on reproductive health care keep coming. Today, we have a motion that strips away local control over schoolbased health clinics.

My dear friends and colleagues on the other side of the aisle constantly talk about the importance of local control. These clinics are currently run by communities, and they are not asking for interference by the Federal Government. But this motion steps in and prohibits school-based health clinics from dispensing emergency contraception.

What we are talking about is not an abortion pill. What we are talking about is a contraception pill that a young woman can take the morning after an evening where she may have had an emergency situation, such as rape or incest. Why should Congress make this decision for every single community and every single school and every single child?

If my colleagues believe in local control, vote "no," and for many other reasons.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The Chair would ask Members to heed the gavel.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers on my side. I would be happy to yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) 2 minutes for him to use on his side if he would like.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Illinois (Ms. SCHAKOWSKY).

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, emergency contraception has been portrayed as equal to abortion on this floor. Let us set the record straight. Emergency contraception is oral contraceptive used at higher doses.

This is oral contraception, taken once a day, prescribed by a health professional. And this is emergency contraception, taken within 72 hours of unprotected intercourse. Emergency contraception is not abortion. Same drug, same formulation, higher dose, one time. Passes through the system in a couple of hours.

Both oral contraceptives and emergency contraception work the same way: They prevent pregnancy. If a woman is pregnant, neither oral contraceptives nor emergency contraception will disrupt that pregnancy. Let me repeat: If a woman is pregnant, neither oral contraceptives nor emergency contraception will disrupt that pregnancy.

I urge a "no" vote on the Coburn motion.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO).

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, this issue of health care in school-based clinics was already dealt with by the conference and it was rejected. This motion would deny Federal funding to any school-based clinic that provides emergency contraception.

Emergency contraception is not abortion. It cannot terminate a pregnancy. It prevents pregnancy in critical hours after unprotected sex. Emergency contraceptive in a school-based clinic is prescribed only by a doctor to young people seeking to act responsibly to prevent unintended pregnancy.

School-based health clinics are different across this country. They have been set up with the input of local officials, school personnel, parents and students. All of these interested parties participate in the decisions about what services they believe are appropriate and how the clinics will be run. Let us leave these decisions to the communities and to the local officials who are involved.

As I said, this conference has already agreed to reject this proposal. It is wrongheaded and I urge my colleagues in the full House to reject this motion.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, how much time do I have remaining?
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gen-

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTER) has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 1½ minutes.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, across the river about 10 years ago, when I was mayor, we set up a schoolbased health clinic. It was very controversial and difficult to do. But now that it has been set up, it has saved countless lives. It has helped teenagers to act more responsibly.

Ultimately, the community concluded that while it would be wonderful if we could convince teenagers never to have sex, if we could eliminate unintended pregnancies, unwed pregnancies, the reality is that we have to deal with human nature. We have to improve the lives of people. We decided that as a community, which is the way that these issues should be decided, where people can accept the accountability for decisions that they make for the people they serve directly.

I do not think we are particularly successful in trying to mandate morals. We have an opportunity now for professional people, school health nurses, generally, to be able to prescribe a way in which an abortion is not affected; whereas we can prevent pregnancy by providing pills that ensure that women can take control of their lives.

Through our schools and other community institutions, we can help them become more responsible over their future, and we will not see as many children being aborted or being born into unwed situations where they suffer. We do not; they do. Let us not make them suffer; let us defeat this instruction.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair reminds the House again that he requested that Members honor the gavel.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER).

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I want to quote from a letter from the National Assembly on School-Based Health Care.

'School-based health care centers represent a partnership between community health care organizations, such as local hospitals, health centers and public health departments, school systems and parents. The programs are designed by the community. The scope of service, including reproductive health, is determined by what health care providers, school officials, parents, and other community members feel is necessary to combat health-compromising behaviors and inadequate unaffordable access to competent and caring physical and mental health services for school-aged children. The ability to provide these services with public family planning and primary care resources is vital to these few programs. Their ability to offer adolescents needed reproductive health care should not be constrained by Congress. This decision should remain one of local control and oversight.'

And that letter is signed by John Schlitt, Executive Director of the National Assembly on School-Based Health Care, someone certainly to whom we should listen before we take away the right of the parents and the health providers in a community to set up such a clinic.

Mr. Speaker, I am providing the full letter for the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY ON SCHOOL-BASED HEALTH CARE,
September 18, 2000.

Hon. NITA M. LOWEY,

U.S. House of Representatives, 2421 Rayburn HOB, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE LOWEY: I understand the Helms amendment to the Labor/ HHS appropriations bill, which was defeated in conference last month, is resurfacing through a motion by Congressman Coburn to instruct the conferees. I urge you to reject the motion and speak in its opposition.

The National Assembly on School-Based Health Care, which represents the nearly 1200 school health centers across the country, opposes the Helms amendment to the Labor-HHS appropriations bill (S. 6094). The amendment would prohibit the use of federal funds from Section 330 and Title X of the Public Health Services Act, as well as Titles V and XIX of the Social Security Act, to support the distribution of, or prescription for, the emergency contraceptive pill on the premises of elementary and secondary schools.

School-based health centers represent a partnership between community health care organizations (such as local hospitals, health centers and public health departments), school systems, and parents. These programs are designed by the community. The scope of services, including reproductive health, is determined by what health providers, school officials, parents, and other community members feel is necessary to combat health compromising behaviors and inadequate and unaffordable access to competent and caring physical and mental health services for school-aged children and adolescents.

Three in four school-based health centers are prohibited by state and/or local policy from prescribing and dispensing birth control on site. In a very small number of communities, school boards and school health advisory groups, which include parents, have made the decision to offer birth control on site because of troubling teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted disease rates.

The ability to provide these services with public family planning and primary care resources is vital to these few programs. Their ability to offer adolescents needed reproductive health care should not be constrained by Congress. The decision should remain one of local control and oversight.

Thank you for supporting community decision-making.

Sincerely,

JOHN SCHLITT, Executive Director.

(From the National Assembly on School-Based Health Care—Sept. 2000)

SCHOOL-BASED HEALTH CENTERS AND FAMILY PLANNING

WHAT IS A SCHOOL-BASED HEALTH CENTER, AND HOW IS IT DIFFERENT FROM A SCHOOL NURSE?

School-based health centers are partnerships between community health care organizations, typically a health department, primary care center or hospital, and a school. The services provided in the health center are similar to that which is delivered in standard medical clinics: assessment and screenings, immunizations, diagnostic and treatment services laboratory, well child health supervision, etc. There are an estimated 1200 of these unique health centers in schools across the country.

IS FAMILY PLANNING INCLUDED IN THE SCOPE OF SERVICES?

While the majority of health centers located in middle and high schools provide services such as pregnancy testing (85%), HIV counseling (77%), and STD testing and treatment (73%), services related to birth control are most often contained to counseling. Three in four school-based health centers are prohibited by state law or school policy from dispensing contraception on site.

DO PARENTS PROVIDE CONSENT FOR ACCESS TO SCHOOL-BASED HEALTH CENTERS?

Nearly all (94%) school-based health centers require signed parental consent forms before a student can be seen. Two-thirds of school-based health centers allow parents the option of selecting specific services that their child cannot receive.

DO SCHOOL-BASED HEALTH CENTERS PRACTICE WITHIN ACCORDANCE OF STATE LAWS REGARDING MINORS' ACCESS TO SENSITIVE SERVICES?

One-third of health centers reported to the National Assembly on School-Based Health Care that adolescents may be seen for family planning related services (except contraceptive services where prohibited) without parental consent. This policy is often communicated to the parent through the consent process so that the right of adolescents to confidential services is understood.

DO SCHOOL-BASED HEALTH CENTERS DISPENSE THE MORNING AFTER PILL?

In a survey of school-based health centers, 16% of centers serving adolescents reported that emergency contraception is available on site. This represents approximately 130 school-based health centers, or one-fifth of one percent of schools in this nation.

DO FEDERAL DOLLARS SUPPORT SCHOOL-BASED HEALTH CENTERS?

Federal financial support for school-based health centers comes through Medicaid reimbursement, public health grants through Title V of the Social Security Act, and grants made by the Bureau of Primary Health Care under its Healthy Schools, Healthy Communities initiative.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, how much time do I have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has 3 minutes remaining, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER) has no time remaining, and the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) has 11 minutes remaining.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Pelosi).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the very troubling motion to instruct of the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN), which would direct, as my colleagues know, the Labor-HHS conferees to revive the already-rejected ban on emergency contraception in school-based health clinics

In July, the House-Senate conference rejected this harmful proposal because it endangers teenagers' health and undermines the national effort to reduce unintended teen pregnancies. This ban confuses emergency contraception with abortion. And its attempt to ban abortion pills would instead ban emergency contraception.

I think it is important for our colleagues to understand the difference. ECPs, emergency contraception pills, which are FDA approved ordinary birth control pills, do not cause abortion. They inhibit ovulation, fertilization, or implantation before pregnancy occurs.

School-based health centers provide a private, safe place for teens to access health care services, including contraception and related services. Certainly we would hope that children would engage in abstinence, but they do not always, and that is why I join the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists in opposing the Coburn motion.

□ 1800

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of the time.

Mr. Speaker, this motion is going to pass by a large vote. I understand that. When the vote comes, I personally am going to vote "present."

As some Members have noticed from time to time, I on numerous occasions have voted "present" as a matter of protest in order to suggest that the House is dealing with an issue which I believe ought to be dealt with on another level of government. Often that has been the District of Columbia with respect to its own affairs, and on occasion it has been other local units of government. This is another such occasion.

I simply do not think that the same rules apply in a district which is very largely composed of white, middle-class, fairly prosperous, well-knit families and then, in contrast to other districts where you have huge amounts of poverty, childhood neglect, loosely knit families, areas such as the gentle-woman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHN-SON) described where children literally often do not see their parents for days at a time.

And so I think that this matter is best left to local school officials because they are the people on the frontlines trying to weigh the conflicting equities that they so often face not just in schools but in police work and in a number of other areas, as well. NOTICE OF INTENTION TO OFFER MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFERES ON H.R. 4577, DEPARTMENTS OF LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, AND EDUCATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

Mr. OBEY. If this motion passes, I want to note, Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 7(c) of House rule XXII, I hereby notify the House of my intention tomorrow to offer the following Motion to Instruct House conferees on H.R. 4577, a bill making appropriations for fiscal year 2001 for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education:

I move that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill, H.R. 4577, be instructed to insist on the highest funding level possible for the Department of Education; and to insist on disagreeing with provisions in the Senate amendment which denies the press the President's request for dedicated resources to reduce class sizes in the early grades and for local school construction and, instead, broadly expands the Title VI Education Block Grant with limited accountability in the use of funds.

If we are going to start providing motions to instruct at this late date in the session, then I am going to have a number of motions which I think are germane to the operations of the committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The notice of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) will appear in the RECORD.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in spite of what the Members of this body might think, the intention of this motion to instruct was not to create havoc in the process as we attempt to go home.

I want to describe my medical practice to all of my colleagues for a minute so they have a perspective. I just heard the "white, middle-class" statement; and I think it is very important. Most of my patients are minorities. Most of them only have one parent. And let me tell my colleagues, every one of those parents want to know what is going on with their kids in school. And the assumption, the racial implication that if they happen to be a single mom and they have a child that gets in trouble that they do not want to know as much as everybody else is absurd and wrong and implies an absolute lack of knowledge about what is going on in this country with that valuable segment of our population. So I want to set that aside.

The other thing is I want to tell my colleagues a story, one of the reasons I offered this amendment. I was in a town hall meeting in the southeast portion of my district. A 38-year-old father came in, and I have never seen anybody so mad in my life. I was the object of his rage, because his 12-yearold daughter had just shown him what she had been given at a clinic, 12 years old, no knowledge. She was given Preven. In case she needed it at some future time, she was given a bag of condoms. She was given noxonol nine. And she was given oral contraceptives. No exam, no instruction sheet on how to use them, but she was given them.

Mr. Speaker, what the father was mad about is that somebody would dare be able to invade on the rights of his child and her health care without him knowing about it. And in front of 50 people, he stood there balling, to say what has happened to our country that parents are last? We heard about local control. What about parent control? What about putting the parents back in charge?

We cannot take an aspirin at a school without a permission slip. If their child has an antibiotic, they have to have permission to give that child his antibiotic at the school. We are so wrongheaded and so out of sync in terms of the priorities for our children in this country it is not a wonder that we are having difficulty with these issues.

The third point I want to make: we have had title X clinics for 25 years in this country. We have been teaching safe sex for 25 years. We are the highest nation in the world in sexually transmitted diseases. Nobody comes close to us. We will have 15 million new cases of sexually transmitted disease this year of which 9 million are incurable, 9 million in which the methods that we teach at our title X safe-sex clinics will not protect our children from. But we are going to dig our heads in the sand, and we are going to ignore it.

The number one cause of cervical cancer is one of them. We now know that one of those is involved with prostate cancer, the number two cancer with men. But we are going to ignore that. We are going to keep doing the same thing. We are going to dumb down to the level of the lowest possible explanation and rationalize that that is the way to treat our children.

It is not good enough. No wonder our kids are failing. We are not expecting enough of them. We are looking the wrong direction.

There is no reason for a parent never to be involved unless incest is involved. And then, in every State in this country, it is a law that they have to notify the authorities. Otherwise they go to jail if they do not notify the authorities.

This has nothing to do with schoolbased clinics. This has everything to do with parents, re-empowering parents.

The final point that I would make that my colleagues consider is that every one of us has told a lie; and when we finally get past that lie and tell the truth, every one of us feels good about it. When we confess that lie, there is a great feeling. It is liberating. We have told the truth, that burden we are carrying.

When we enable our children to be deceptive, we lessen their potential for the future. We should not be involved in that. We should be enabling them to reconcile with their parents, not become deceptive partners in alienating the children from their parents.

For goodness sakes, let us really think about children.

I know we are going to have the debate on abortion and pro-life; but as we solve this problem, let us empower parents to do the right thing, let us encourage the positive and discourage the negative, let us go for reconciliation between children and parents.

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express to my colleagues my great concern with this motion to instruct conferees.

First, it should be clear that this motion is about contraception, not abortion. Like other contraceptives, emergency contraception can prevent—but not terminate—a pregnancy. Access to contraception can be a vital part of local efforts to reduce unintended pregnancy and reduce the number of abortions—a goal shared by members on both sides of the aisle.

Second, this motion restricts the decision of local leaders. School-based clinics vary greatly across the country, and the services that they provide reflect community standards, reflected by local advisory boards made up of parents, young adults, community representatives and youth family organizations.

Emergency contraception may not be an appropriate or advisable option for many schoolbased clinics. It may be, however, both necessary and appropriate for some clinics and some communities. For many low-income, uninsured students, school-based health clinics provide their only access to necessary health care. Restricting contraceptive options only for these low-income students is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I am ashamed to say that our country has more unintended teen pregnancies than any other industrialized country in the world. I challenge my colleagues to reject election-year politics and work with me toward policies that prevent unintended pregnancies before the morning after.

As for me, I will redouble my efforts to help our kids and their parents get the information they need about the consequences and costs of unintended pregnancy and the benefits of abstinence, good reproductive health and smart choices.

Mrs. CHENOWETH-HAGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this motion to instruct conferees. It is not the business of the federal government to provide any form of birth control to minors. Furthermore, to do this without parental consent and involvement is especially egregious.

When Senator HELMS asked the Congressional Research Service to investigate whether "Morning-After" pills were distributed to minors at school clinics, CRS found that 180 schools did precisely this.

Mr. Speaker, this is unacceptable, violative of parental rights, and immoral.

It is always instructive to closely examine the rhetoric of the pro-abortion movement. And make no mistake, the pro-abortion movement supports providing the "Morning-After" pill to minors through school based clinics.

So, lets examine their rhetoric. The "Morning-After" pill often can result in causing an abortion of a human child in its earliest stages. Yet, the pro-abortion side will consistently arque that this is not an abortion. They will claim that this is just normal birth control. What hogwash.

Anyone can tell you that "birth control" occurs before a baby is conceived. Otherwise we would happily call abortion "birth control." It's not. It never has been. And, it never will

Mr. Speaker, our Founders saw fit to say that government exists to secure "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" for its citizens. Let us not execute the smallest of our citizens by providing these misnamed abortifacient pills to our minors.

Vote "yes" on the motion to instruct conferees

Mr. COBURN. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WILSON). Without objection, the previous question is ordered.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. COBURN. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

CHINESE GOVERNMENT IMPRIS-ONS 80-YEAR-OLD CATHOLIC BISHOP

(Mr. WOLF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks and include extraneous mate-

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today after reading today's editorial from the Washington Post titled "Catholic 'Criminals' in China,'' that describes how the Chinese Government has rearrested an 81-year-old Roman Catholic bishop, Bishop Zeng. Here is a picture of Bishop Zeng in prison garb. And the Senate today is ready to grant MFN to China.

The bishop has spent most of his life in a Chinese prison, imprisoned through labor camps. He was imprisoned in 1958, was let out of jail for 1 month, then rearrested and imprisoned until 1991. In 1996, in his late 70s, he was rearrested again and put in a forced labor camp. Imagine being in a forced labor camp at 70 and 80 years of age.

A Chinese leader affiliated with the Chinese Government's recent public relations blitz said, "American voters should get to know us." Indeed, American people, this Congress, the Clinton administration and the next administration must know the true character of the Chinese Government is one that throws 80-year-old Catholic bishops into forced labor camps.

Does anyone in the Clinton administration care? Does the Congress care?

Does anyone care?

[From the Washington Post, Sept. 9, 2000] CATHOLIC 'CRIMINALS' IN CHINA

The Communist regime in China has identified and rooted out another enemy of the state: 81-year-old Catholic Bishop Zeng Jingmu. The Cardinal Kung Foundation, a U.S.-based advocate for the Roman Catholic Church and its estimated 10 million followers in China, reports that Bishop Zeng was nabbed last Thursday. An embassy spokesman here said he couldn't comment. This wouldn't be a first for this apparently dangerous cleric. He was imprisoned for a quarter-century beginning in 1958. In 1983, the Communists let him out-for one month. Then they jailed him for another eight years, until 1991. In 1996—at the age of 76—he was sentenced to three years of forced labor and reeducation. When he was released with six months still to run on that sentence, in 1998, the Clinton administration trumpeted the news as "further evidence that the president's policy of engagement works." The fatuousness of that statement must be especially clear to the bishop from his current jail čell.

Bishop Zeng has been guilty of a single crime all along: He is a Catholic believer. He refuses to submit to Communist atheism or to the control of the Catholic Patriotic Association, an alternative "church" created by the regime that does not recognize the primacy of the pope. China's government is willing to tolerate some religious expression as long as it is dictated by the government. Anyone who will not submit—whether spiritual movements such as Falun Gong, evangelical Protestant churches, Tibetan monasteries or the real Catholic Church—is subject to "repression and abuse," the State Department said in its recent report on international religious freedom. The admirably straightforward report noted that respect for religious freedom "deteriorated markedly in China during the past year. "Some places of worship were destroyed," it said. "Leaders of unauthorized groups are often the targets of harassment, interrogations, detention and physical abuse.

Bishop Zeng is a man of uncommon courage, but his fate in China is sadly common. Three days before his arrest, Father Ye Gong Feng, 82, was arrested and "tortured to unconsciousness," the Cardinal Kung Foundation reports. It took 70 policemen to perform that operation. Father Lin Rengui of Fujian province "was beaten so savagely that he vomited blood." Thousands of Falun Gong practitioners have been arrested during the past year; the State Department cites "credible reports" that at least 24 have died while in police custody.

Last month the Chinese government launched a public relations mission to the United States, dispatching exhibits, performers and lecturers—on the subject of religious freedom, among others-on a threeweek charm offensive. "American voters should get to know us," said the Chinese functionary in charge. The U.S. ambassador to China, Joseph Prueher, appeared at a joint new conference announcing the mission, and a number of U.S. business executives—from Boeing, Time Warner and elsewhere-happily sponsored it. We have nothing against goodwill cultural exchanges, but Chinese and American officials should not delude themselves that U.S. suspicions are caused chiefly by prejudice or lack of understanding. On the contrary, Americans understand just fine what kind of government throws 81-year-old clerics into jail.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WILSON). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the House. the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. McCollum) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. McCOLLUM addressed House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BROWN addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. NORTON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

CHINESE GOVERNMENT JAILED ZENG JINGMU

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BONIOR. Madam Speaker, last week, as the other body was beginning its final dash toward passage of the China trade deal, the Chinese Government jailed yet another dangerous agitator, his name is Zeng Jingmu. He is 81 years of age. He is a Catholic bishop, and it is not the first time Bishop Zeng has been jailed.

He was first imprisoned 42 years ago. In 1983, he was set free for about 30 days. Then they sent him to prison for 8 more years. In 1996, he was imprisoned once again, and he was sentenced to 3 years of forced labor.

At the time, Bishop Zeng was 76 years of age.

Why does the Chinese Government feel such bitter enmity toward the bishop? What crime did this 81-year-old man commit? Teaching the gospel.

Madam Speaker, none of this should come as a surprise to us. A special commission appointed by the White House and this Congress found that religious persecution is business as usual in today's China.

Over the course of this year's trade debate, advocates of normalizing trade with China repeatedly claimed it would strengthen the cause for human rights. But the jailing of Bishop Zeng tells us that if expanding trade improves human rights, someone forgot to tell the Chinese Government.

In this Capitol, the citadel of liberty, we talk a lot about the rule of law, and we talk a lot about freedom, Madam Speaker. Yet when the topic turns to China, it seems the only law that matters is the law of supply and demand, and the only freedom that counts is the freedom to make a quick buck.

Today an 81-year-old priest sits in a Chinese prison cell, and I know that God will hear his prayers, I only ask why this government cannot.

REDUCING NATIONAL DEBT AND ANNUAL INTEREST RATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. METCALF) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. METCALF. Madam Speaker, this Nation can reduce our national debt by $600 billion and reduce our annual interest payments by $30 billion with no harm to anyone nor to any program. That sounds too good to be true, but it is true.

Most people have little knowledge of how money systems work and are not aware that an honest money system would result in great savings for the people. We really can cut the national debt by $600 billion and reduce our Federal interest payments by $30 billion a year. How? By merely issuing our own United States Treasury currency.

It is an undisputable fact that the Federal Reserve notes, that is, our circulating currency today, are issued by the Federal Reserve in response to interest-bearing debt instruments. Thus we indirectly pay interest on our paper money in circulation. Actually, we pay interest on the bonds that "back" our paper money, the Federal Reserve notes. This unnecessary cost is about $100 per person per year in our country.

Why are our citizens paying $100 per person each year to rent the Federal Reserve's paper money when the United States Treasury could issue the paper money exactly as it issues our coins? The coins are minted by the Treasury and essentially sent into circulation at face value. The Treasury will make a profit of $880 million this year from the issue of 1 billion new gold-colored dollar coins.

If we use the same method of issue for our paper money as we do for our coins, the Treasury would realize a profit on the bills sufficient to reduce the national debt by $600 billion and reduce annual interest payments by $30 billion. Federal Reserve notes are officially liabilities of the Federal Reserve, and over $600 billion in U.S. bonds is held by the Federal Reserve as backing for these notes.

The Federal Reserve collects interest on these bonds from the U.S. Government and then returns most of it to the U.S. Treasury. So it is a tax on our money that goes to the United States Treasury, a tax on our money in circulation.

There is a simple and inexpensive way to convert this costly, illogical, convoluted system to a logical system, which pays no interest directly or indirectly on our money in circulation. Congress simply needs to pass a law requiring the Nation's Treasury to print and issue United States currency in the same denominations and in the same amounts as the present Federal Reserve notes. Because the new U.S. currency would be issued into circulation through the banks to replace or in exchange for the Federal Reserve notes, there would be no change in the money supply.

The plan would remove the liability of the Federal Reserve by returning to the Fed, the Federal Reserve notes in exchange for the $600 billion in interest-bearing bonds now held by the Fed, thus reducing the national debt by $600 billion.

The Nation would thus have a circulating currency, the United States Treasury currency, or U.S. notes, bearing neither debt nor interest.

The national debt would be reduced by $600 billion and annual interest payments reduced by over $30 billion. The easiest way we can save our taxpayers $30 billion each year is to issue our own U.S. Treasury money.

HONORING THE MEMORY OF BILL ASKEW

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BLUNT. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory and the life of Reverend William F. Askew, a man whose life touched so many in southwest Missouri and around the world because of his dedication to serving others

In World War II, the Marine Corps taught him that duty, honor, country was more than a motto. It was a commitment to the ideas that he instilled in others as a drill sergeant and a commitment that followed him all his days.

Coming back from the war and beginning a career in civilian commercial radio, he accepted Christ; and his faith became the driving center of his life. Service to others was natural for Bill Askew. He was a founding pastor of the Arlington Heights Baptist Church in Jacksonville, Florida; but he also found time to serve as the chaplain of the Duval County Fire Department. He sought opportunities to serve the spiritual and emotional needs of firemen from around Florida and the victims of the fires they fought.

Service to others was his focus when he moved his wife, Doris, and seven of their nine children to Springfield, Missouri, in 1968, to help found the area's first Christian radio station. He served as general manager of KWFC serving portions of four States until his death last week.

Despite the responsibilities he faced in running a radio station, he also committed to serving residents of northern Greene County as the pastor of the Noble Hill Baptist Church, often traveling back roads to meet the needs of a large rural area as well as those of the surrounding communities.

Service was the keynote of his life, whether he was helping form the North Springfield Betterment Association or teaching classes at Baptist Bible College. Bill, or "Mr. A" as many of his friends called him, was dedicated to making a difference in the lives of those he served. Some of those now serve as missionaries, as business leaders, government officials; and they reflect his inspiration for their lives. He was a confidant, a mentor, an advisor, a friend to so many; and he often did it with so little fanfare.

Bill Askew was a family man. Even though he gave much to others, he was happiest when surrounded by his children, his grandchildren and his great grandchildren. He shared their joys and comforted their pain.

Madam Speaker, with his passing, southwest Missouri has lost a great spiritual and civic leader, a friend and a guiding force for many in our community. I ask that God bless him and his family as we share in their loss.

THE VETERANS ORAL HISTORY PROJECT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KIND. Madam Speaker, Abraham Lincoln, during his address at Gettysburg, stated that the world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. Inspired by those words, as well as the words from countless number of veterans back in my own congressional district and across the country, I was motivated to draft and also introduce today, with my friend and colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. HOUGHTON), the Veterans Oral History Project, which will direct the Library of Congress to establish a national archives for the collection and preservation of our veterans' oral history through videotape testimony.

Now that we have the technological means to do so, I think this is a worth-while investment for this country to make. It would be a gift from our veterans which will keep on giving not only today but tomorrow, and God willing, for generations and centuries to come.

There is a sense of urgency in introducing this bill which has, I am pleased to report, received wide bipartisan support, with a majority of the Members in the House of Representatives willing to be original sponsors of this legislation. Senator MAX CLELAND will be introducing the bill in the United States Senate this week as well.

There is a sense of urgency, given the fact that we have roughly 19 million veterans still living in this country today, of which 3,400 are from the First World War, roughly 6 million are still living from the Second World War and they are passing away by a rate of roughly 1,500 a day.

If we are to truly honor our veterans, then I think this Nation needs to make every conceivable effort to try to preserve their memory.

I am struck by the number of people who I have encountered who have regrets today because they did not take out the family video camera and videotape their grandmother or grandparent or father or mother and talk to them about their years of serving our country and some of the great conflicts that we went through as a Nation during the course of the 20th century.

I envision now, with this project, with the cooperation of a lot of people across the country, including family members, friends, neighbors, the VFW and American Legion halls, school students, class projects, who could go out and interview these veterans on videotape, I envision that a child in the 21st or 22nd century will be able to call up on the Internet the testimony of their great, great, great, grandfather or grandmother and in their own words listen to their experience during the Second World War or Korea or Vietnam or the Gulf War, for instance.

This is something that we can do with relative ease. The Library of Congress is already involved in a similar type of project with the American Folk Life Center where they are videotaping community leaders around the country as to how they would like their communities to be remembered 100 or 200 years from now. They are also engaged on a comprehensive project to digitize the information that they are collecting; and what this project would call for is for the Library of Congress and the talent and expertise that they have there to index the videotape and digitize that and make it available to families and to anyone who wants access to this very important piece of our Nation's history.

When I have been working on this project, I have had a chance to think of many of the veterans who I have encountered back home, people like Glenn Averbeck, from my congressional district who served in Korea and was part of the occupation force in Japan after the Second World War. I think of Don Bruns, a former POW during the Second World War. One story Don likes to tell is when he bailed out of a shrapnel-ridden B17 over the skies of Germany and he landed in a patch of kohlrabi. Ťo this day, he cannot stand the sight or smell of that vegetable; but there is more to Don's story as he tells of the days of hunger in the stalag, days of boredom, days of anxiety and days when his captured comrades drifted towards insanity waiting for the day when they would be liberated or the day when they would escape.

These are the stories that we need to capture, in Don's words, and preserve for history's sake.

When I talk about the Veterans Oral History Project, I think of William Ehernman, a World War II vet shot down in the Pacific. William tells of flying cover for PT boats in the Pacific, including flying cover for one young commander, a Naval officer by the name of John F. Kennedy. I also think of Golden Barritt, a World War I veteran from my district who died just last summer. It is a shame that we did not get Golden's oral history from the Great War. He almost reached his 100 birthday, and just last year he received a medal from the government of France for his participation in the First World War.

I also think of my father, who I did get a chance to videotape who served in the Army; my uncle who served during the Second World War; and also my younger brother who recently served during the Gulf War.

So I am encouraged by the bipartisan support that many of my colleagues have given for this legislation, and I would encourage this House to move the legislation quickly since time is of the essence.

THE HIGH PRICE OF GASOLINE DUE TO TAXATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. DUNCAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DUNCAN. Madam Speaker, the top headline in the Washington Post late last week said: "Oil Prices Hit Ten Year High." Yet, as I drove into work this morning, the CBS Radio National News reported that oil prices had gone up another 90 cents a barrel.

In last Friday's Washington Times, a column in the editorial commentary pages carried the headline, "Gassed and Coing Let"

and Going Up.'

This column, written by two economists, said taxes take 43 cents of every gallon and that Federal regulations add great additional costs and have prevented any new refinery from being built for 25 years. They wrote, quote, "The economy will suffer if the price of oil remains high. Our analysis shows that high oil prices will cost the average family of four more than $1,300; decrease consumer spending by nearly $80 billion and cost almost 500,000 jobs," unquote.

Last Friday night on the CNN Moneyline program, one leading stock analyst said higher oil prices are leading us into a recession and much lower stock prices. The stock market fell 278 points Friday and Monday, mainly due to fears about higher oil prices.

One of the things I do in the House is chair the Subcommittee on Aviation. A few months ago, the Air Transport Association told me that each one penny increase in jet fuel costs the airlines $200 million.

Last week, the Christian Science Monitor newspaper had a front page story about protests and some near riots in Britain and throughout Europe over high gas prices.

Sometimes we are told that we are lucky because we are paying much less for gas than the Europeans. Well, the reason is that our socialism is not as far along as theirs is. In Europe, taxes make up as much as 80 percent of the cost of gas. They pay the same world oil price as we do. They simply have more big government than we do, and we have too much.

Other segments of our economy will be hurt badly besides aviation if these oil prices go up even more, as is being predicted. Truckers are already feeling the pinch and are leading the protests in Europe. Agriculture and tourism and those who heat their homes with home heating oil will be greatly affected.

Who do we have to thank for this situation? Well, in this country those who like higher gas prices should write the White House and thank the President. The President vetoed legislation in 1995 which would have allowed production of oil in one tiny 2.000 to 3.000-acre part of the coastal plain of Alaska. The U.S. Geologic Survey has said there is approximately 16 to 19 billion barrels of oil there, equal to 30 years of Saudi oil. The President also signed an executive order placing 80 percent of the U.S. outercontinental shelf off-limits for oil production, and this is billions more barrels.

I heard on the radio last week that oil is the most plentiful liquid in the world after saltwater. Even with increased usage, we have hundreds of years worth of oil available. Yet because this administration is controlled by wealthy environmental extremists, we cannot produce more oil in this country. The environmentalists even want gas to go much higher so everyone but them will have to drive less.

They do not seem to care that the people they hurt the most are lower-income and working families. Most environmental extremists seem to come from wealthy families who are not hurt when prices go up and jobs are destroyed. Then, too, some of these environmental groups probably receive big contributions from the oil companies, the shipping companies, the OPEC countries and others who get rich if we do not produce more U.S. oil.

Due to EPA and other Federal regulations, I am told that 36 U.S. oil refineries have closed just since 1980. Because this administration is held captive by environmental extremists, our present oil policy consists of nothing more than to beg the OPEC countries.

Well, we need to do more than beg. We endanger not only our own economy but also our national security by being too dependent on foreign oil. The price of oil could be reduced dramatically if the President would tell OPEC that we are going to produce more oil domestically and really mean it. He needs also to tell the OPEC countries that their foreign aid will be ended if they continue to gouge us on oil prices. I have co-sponsored the bill of the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON) to cut off IMF loans to OPEC countries which raise their oil prices, but the liberals in Congress will probably not let us pass this bill.

Begging OPEC will get us nowhere. We need strong leadership, Madam Speaker, from the White House; but we will not get it. We also need to wake up and realize that the Sierra Club and some of these other environmental groups have now gone so far to the left that they make even socialists look conservative.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. MILLENDER-McDONALD addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

HOW MUCH IS ENOUGH?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUT-KNECHT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Madam Speaker, how much is enough? The buzz in Washington is that the President is spoiling for one last fight with Congress over the budget. In fact, White House aides have practically encouraged suspicion that they would like a government shutdown to embarrass Republicans and boost Democratic prospects in the upcoming elections. Rumors of a government shutdown are exaggerated. Congressional leaders are working in good faith to ensure principled compromise with the President on a budget that serves the national interest.

Under our proposal, over $600 billion of publicly held debt would be paid down by the end of next year. It would be eliminated by the year 2013. Of course, reduced debt means lower interest rates on credit cards and home mortgages for millions of American families.

The GOP debt reduction plan would also save an average of $4,064 for every American household in lower interest rates over the next 10 years. Since early last year, Congress has made its spending priorities very clear. As a member of the House Committee on the Budget, I helped craft a budget for next year in which Federal spending would grow at a rate slower than the average family budget. This budget passed the House and Senate. It serves as the blueprint for congressional spending bills this year.

The President, on the other hand, will not say just how many billions of dollars he wants to spend. He submitted one plan in January, which was soundly rejected even by members of his own party. Speaking for congressional Democrats during the debate on the President's proposal earlier this year, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY), a Democratic, confessed on the House floor, and I quote, "We did not propose the President's budget. We do not want any part of the President's budget," closed quote.

□ 1900

Indeed. The House Democrats offered four substitute budget plans this year. Not one of them was the President's budget plan. It never even got a vote.

Since that time, the President's spending plans have been a moving target. He is currently asking for between $20 billion and $30 billion more than he asked for in January, though he cannot say how much or exactly what he needs it for. If we cannot move forward on lowering and simplifying taxes, let us at least not go backwards on spending. A balanced budget with the surplus devoted largely to paying down debt would make perfect sense under these circumstances.

Last week, in an effort to reach agreement on total spending, congressional leaders went to the White House to propose reserving 90 percent of next year's surplus for reducing the national debt. This compromise would provide some limited room for additional spending, while paying down billions more dollars of the Federal debt and keeping a lid on Federal spending.

This should have been an attractive idea to the President. He claimed in the last few weeks that fidelity to the national debt caused him to veto the bills eliminating the marriage tax penalty and the death tax which Congress sent to the White House. But, the President seems decidedly cool toward the 90 percent debt reduction plan. Quote: "Whether we can do it," that is, use 90 percent of the surplus to pay down debt "depends on what the various spending commitments are," the President said earlier to the New York Times.

So let us be clear. When presented with a choice of more spending or paying down the national debt, the President chose more spending.

Ultimately, the budget debate comes down to a very simple question: how much is enough? I believe that $1.68 trillion should be more than enough to fund the legitimate needs of the Federal Government. Unfortunately, it is still not clear how much more the President thinks is necessary. Congress is committed to working in good faith with the President to reach a reasonable budget compromise. The question is, is he?

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR LAUTENBERG

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WILSON). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOLT. Madam Speaker, it is an honor to rise today to join the New Jersey congressional delegation and my colleagues in paying tribute to Senator Frank Lautenberg. This legislation which we passed earlier in the day to name the post office and courthouse at Federal Square in Newark after the Senator is just one small way to honor a man who has done so much for New Jersey and the Nation. I will be delighted to support it and I am pleased to see the House take it up.

Frank Lautenberg, born into an immigrant family residing in Paterson, New Jersey, Frank and his family dealt with numerous obstacles and struggles that were common experiences for many Americans during the 1920s. After moving from city to city, the Lautenbergs and Lautenberg's father found work at the renowned silk mills in Paterson. His father was soon able to eke out a living to support his family. Sadly, just as Frank was on the brink of manhood, he lost his father to cancer.

Upon his graduation from Nutley High School, FRANK LAUTENBERG enlisted and served in the Army's Signal Corps in Europe during World War II. After serving his country, he attended the prestigious Columbia University on the GI Bill where he studied economics.

With his eyes set on the innovations of the future, LAUTENBERG, accompanied by two childhood friends, founded Automatic Data Processing, a payroll services company. ADP quickly rose up the ladder of business and emerged as one of the world's largest computing service companies with over 33,000 people on its payroll.

Since his election to the Senate in 1982, FRANK LAUTENBERG has given back to the State of New Jersey and our Nation throughout his senatorial career. By writing laws that established age 21 as the national drinking age, by banning smoking on airplanes and forbidding domestic violence abusers from owning guns, LAUTENBERG insured the health and security of our families.

As a strong environmental leader, FRANK LAUTENBERG sought to protect all aspects of our beautiful environment, mainly through the Superfund program to clean up toxic waste sites, the clean air and safe drinking water acts, and the Pets on Planes acts. With the best interests of New Jersey and New Jersey's beaches in mind, FRANK LAUTENBERG wrote legislation that would ban ocean dumping of sewage, rid our beaches of garbage, control medical waste, and stop oil drilling off our famed Jersey shore.

Standing as an example of an American success story, Frank Lautenberg has dedicated 18 years of his career to public service here in the United States Capitol and in New Jersey. And, despite his retirement, Senator Lautenberg will always be remembered for his many contributions made to better the lives of millions of Americans. I am sure he will continue to dedicate himself to improving lives, to healing the world.

On a more personal note, no one has done more to help me as a new member of the New Jersey congressional delegation than Senator Frank Lautenberg. His advice, guidance and assistance are things that I will always remember with gratitude.

FXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4919) to amend the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and the Arms Export Control Act to make improvements to certain defense and security assistance provisions under those Acts, to authorize the transfer of naval vessels to certain foreign countries, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

SECURITY ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2000

The conferees note that, during the past 10 years, the pool of money available for security assistance to United States allies and partners has decreased dramatically. At the same time, the number of countries with which the United States needs to engage, whether to combat proliferation or terrorism or to bolster regional security, has steadily increased. For instance, three countries of the former Warsaw Pact are now NATO members and receive both Foreign Military Financing and International Military Education and Training from the United States. Other countries which were once part of the Soviet Union itself are now free and independent, and enjoy important security relationships with the United States. An even larger number of countries, now free from the Soviet orbit, are also free to pursue closer military relationships with the United States. Thus, for instance, this bill makes Mongolia eligible for Department of Defense expenditures relating to excess defense articles for the first time in history

The conferees are concerned that a steadily increasing number of countries are pursuing a relationship with the United States which is funded by a steadily decreasing amount of money. Additionally, 98 percent of the Foreign Military Financing (FMF) account is currently committed to just three countries as a result of various peace accord commitments. Even if the President's budget request is fully funded, only $18,200,000 in FMF would actually be available for the United States to build security ties to the rest of the world. This legislation seeks to arrest and reverse this decline. Section 101 authorizes an increase in FY 2001 of $12,000,000 in grant Foreign Military Financing over the President's budget request, and in FY 2002, with an increase of $89,000,000, will bring the total amount of truly "discre-FMF spending to $272,200,000. Even tionarv' so, this will not return security assistance to 1990 spending levels.

Similarly, Section 201 fully funds the President's request for the International Military Education and Training program by authorizing $55,000,000 in FY 2001 and provides a $10.000.000 increase for FY 2002.

Section 301, which establishes a new chapter in the Foreign Assistance Act, consolidates all nonproliferation funding, except for assistance to the International Atomic Energy Agency, under a single funding line. In so doing, it will protect nonproliferation assistance from numerous foreign aid restrictions that govern the current appropriations process.

This legislation fully funds the President's request and authorizes funding for one additional Congressionally-mandated proliferation and export control initiative in Malta. It also funds the International Science and Technology Centers (ISTC) program at maximum capacity. Moreover, this legislation will strengthen the hand of the newly-created Nonproliferation Bureau of the Department of State in shaping a coherent U.S.nonproliferation and export control policy. Likewise. the President's antiterrorism funding request is fully authorized, and the conferees have applied additional resources to ensure that the fledgling Terrorist Interdiction Program is funded in fiscal year 2001 at the same level as in fiscal year 2000.

In total, this bill authorizes $38,806,000,000 in security assistance funding for fiscal year 2001. This is an increase of $30,800,000 over the President's budget request for fiscal year 2001. It further authorizes $3,907,000,000 for fiscal year 2002.

TITLE I—MILITARY AND RELATED ASSISTANCE Subtitle A—Foreign Military Sales and Financing Authority

AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

Section 101 of the conference agreement, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, authorizes $3,550,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $3,627,000,000 for fiscal year 2002, for the Foreign Military Financing (FMF) Program. The administration request for fiscal year 2001 for FMF (grants and loans) is $3,538,200,000. The actual level of FMF funding for fiscal year 2000 is $3,420,000,000.

REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO COUNTRY EXEMPTIONS FOR LICENSING OF DEFENSE ITEMS FOR EXPORT TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Section 102 of the conference agreement, which has been modified from the House proposal, codifies in statute requirements relating to country exemptions for licensing of defense items for export to foreign countries.

On May 24, 2000, the Administration unveiled a major initiative—the Defense Trade Security Initiative—to improve transatlantic cooperation in the area of defense trade. The initiative was a package of seventeen separate proposals geared toward promoting U.S. defense exports of NATO countries, Japan and Australia. The Committees on Foreign Relations and International Relations, which were not consulted in a timely fashion on the Defense Trade Security Initiative, nevertheless welcome most of the proposed changes to the International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR).

The overall objective of DTSI is to improve transatlantic cooperation in defense trade, particularly as that may aid us in strengthening NATO, supporting the Defense Capabilities Initiative (DCI), improving the interoperability of our forces and contributing to the health and productivity of defense industries on both sides of the Atlantic.

Most of the seventeen separate proposals deal with reforming the U.S. defense export control licensing process. They are non-controversial. They include proposals to establish new procedures for U.S. industry to secure export license for arms sales to NATO countries and other friendly countries and the establishment of a robust common database. Indeed, several of the initiatives mirror recommendations made by the two committees at various times.

Under Article 1, Section 8, of the United States Constitution, the Congress possesses sole constitutional authority to Commerce with foreign Nations." The President may only engage in such an exercise to the extent he has been authorized to do so by the Congress. Most of the seventeen DTSI measures, which clearly relate to the regulation of commerce, have been implicitly authorized in advance by Congress. The Arms Export Control Act (AECA) requires the President to administer export controls for certain commodities and also contains a measure of flexibility, allowing the President to alter export control requirements through regulatory changes. Indeed, numerous regulatory modifications have been made using this authority. Thus the constitutionality of a regulatory change to implement many of the proposed initiatives is well established

The conferees remain concerned, however, with certain other of the proposals. The most important—and controversial—initiative is entitled 'Extension of International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR) Exemption to Qualified Countries'. Pursuant to this initiative, the Administration is prepared to establish new ITAR licensing exemptions for unclassified defense items to qualified companies in foreign countries with whom the United States signs a bilateral agreement and that adopt and demonstrate export controls that are comparable in effectiveness to those of the United States.

those of the United States.
For several years, the United States has, under Section 38(b)(2) of the AECA, permitted unlicensed trade in defense articles and defense services with Canada. This practice, popularly called the "Canada exemphas been supported by Congress in tion light of the unique defense trade relationship between the United States and Canada. In a June 28, 2000, letter to Chairman Helms, the Secretary of Defense stated his intent "to negotiate a Canada-style exemption to the ITAR with the U[nited] K[ingdom] and Australia." On March 16, 2000, in a letter to the Secretary of State, the Chairmen of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the House Committee on International Relations—the two Congressional Committees with sole jurisdiction over the AECA and regulation of defense trade-expressed concern about expanding the Canadian exemption. The Canada exemption is a unique one, based on an intertwined defense industrial base, a close law enforcement relationship, and geographical considerations. These same considerations do not apply to either the United Kingdom or Australia (to say nothing of other countries), despite the close military, intelligence, and law enforcement relationships that the U.S. government has with the governments in London and Canberra. For instance, defense commodities being shipped between the United States and Canada are far less susceptible to diversion than items shipped longer distances on cargo vessels which must make multiple port calls before arriving in the final port of destination. Moreover, unlike the case in Canada, many major U.K. defense companies are now jointly partnered with other European firms.

For these reasons and others, the Secretary of State and the Attorney General raised serious questions about how a Canadalike exemption would affect U.S. export controls and law enforcement efforts. Their concerns turned, in short, on the fact that elimination of a licensing requirement for various weapons and defense commodities would remove an important law enforcement capability for the United States, placing heightened reliance upon the United Kingdom and Australia to stop diversions of U.S. equipment and to provide the type of evidence needed to prosecute violations of the AECA.

In his June 28, 2000 letter, the Secretary of Defense assured the Committee on Foreign Relations that the licensing exemption for certain countries would need to be accomplished through "legally binding agreements to ensure their export control and technology security regimes are congruent to our own. In exchange for these ironclad arrangements, we are prepared to offer an exemption to the ITAR similar to that long-provided to Canada."

The conferees are pleased to note this emphasis on extending a broad ITAR exemption in a legally-binding agreement and, accordingly, are equally pleased to codify the requirement in statute. As the Department of State noted in connection with the START Treaty: "An undertaking or commitment that is understood to be legally binding carries with it both the obligation to comply with the undertaking and the right of each Party to enforce the obligation under international law." This right of enforcement is of singular importance in this case, because noncompliance with the undertaking presumably could result in the diversion of United States weaponry or technology.

Essential to the initiative to provide license-free trade to various countries is the operation of domestic export control laws in such countries. Accordingly, the underlying rationale governing Section 102 is that the United States should not provide the benefit of an exemption from licensing of U.S. defense exports unless a foreign country agrees to apply, in a legally-binding fashion and in accordance with a bilateral agreement with the United States, the full range of United States export control and laws, regulations, and policies appropriate to the sensitivity of defense items exported to a foreign country under the exemption.

In that regard, the section requires that in order to provide an exemption from licensing of defense exports to a foreign country, the United States must negotiate a legally binding bilateral agreement including specific requirements. The President must then certify that the bilateral agreement meets those specific requirements and, importantly, that the foreign country has promulgated or enacted all necessary modifications to its laws and regulations to comply with its obligations under the bilateral agreement before implementing the exemption.

The specific requirements include but are not limited to securing end-use and retransfer commitments from all end-users, controls on reexports to foreign countries including a requirement for prior written U.S. government approval for such reexports, and the establishment of a list of controlled defense items that will include those items covered by the exemption, which are required to be notified to the Congress under subsection (b) of this section.

The conferees expect to exercise close oversight of any agreements reached with foreign nations that provide for unlicensed trade in defense articles and defense services. The conferees reserve judgment on whether any agreements contemplated with the United Kingdom or Australia in this area should be undertaken in executive agreements, or as treaties, subject to advice and consent of the Senate. The conferees expect, as stated in subsection (d), that the Secretary of State will consult with the two Committees as to whether the DTSI licensing exemption for various countries should be codified as a treaty. Were the Secretary of State to conclude bilateral treaties with the United Kingdom and Australia to achieve the objectives set forth under the DTSI initiative, the Senate conferees would support the earliest possible consideration of such important measures. Alternatively, the Congress has the option of amending Section 38(b)(2) of the AECA to limit the President's flexibility to approve unlicensed trade—with Canada or any other nation.

Finally, the conferees address in subsection (c) the issue of exports of commercial communication satellites. Without prejudice to the outcome of a review, the conferees believe that both Congress and the Executive Branch should re-evaluate the issue of the correct and appropriate commodity jurisdiction for export control of U.S. commercial communication satellites.

Subtitle B—Stockpiling of Defense Articles for Foreign Countries

ADDITIONS TO UNITED STATES WAR RESERVE STOCKPILES FOR ALLIES

Section 111 was proposed by the House. Pursuant to Section 514 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, the Department of Defense can make additions to the War Reserve Stockpiles for Allies stockpiles only as periodically provided for in legislation. For fiscal year 2000, the President requested authority to make additions to stockpiles in South Korea ($40,000,000) and Thailand ($20,000,000). The conferees provided this authority under Section 1231 of the "Admiral James W. Nance and Meg Donovan Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 2000 and 2001" (P.L. 106-113). For fiscal year 2001 the Department of Defense has asked for an additional $50,000,000 authorization for the Korean program. Section 111 provides this authority for fiscal year 2001.

TRANSFER OF CERTAIN OBSOLETE OR SURPLUS DEFENSE ARTICLES IN THE WAR RESERVE STOCKPILES FOR ALLIES TO ISRAEL

Section 112 has been modified from the House proposal. Periodically the Department of Defense requests authorization to transfer defense articles out of War Reserve Stockpiles to the host country in question. The defense articles are to be sold to the host nation, or to be transferred in exchange for other non-monetary concessions. The Committee provided similar authority to make such transfers to South Korea and Thailand pursuant to Section 1232 of the "Admiral James W. Nance and Meg Donovan Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 2000 and 2001" (P.L. 106-113).

Subtitle C—Other Assistance

DEFENSE DRAWDOWN SPECIAL AUTHORITIES

Section 121, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, increases the special drawdown authorities of defense articles and services from defense stocks, and for military education and training, to assist foreign countries from $150 million to $200 million.

Current law grants the President the authority to draw down from existing stocks within the Department of Defense to assist in emergencies or when he determines it is in the national interest. This section expands the authority by making nonproliferation and antiterrorism activities eligible for the special drawdown authorities relating to defense articles and services, and to military education and training, to assist foreign countries. The increase in financial authority is meant to allow for incorporation of nonproliferation and antiterrorism objectives without sacrificing the President's flexibility to respond to unforeseen emergencies and foreign policy objectives relating to combating international narcotics, international disaster assistance, and migration and refugee assistance.

INCREASED AUTHORITY FOR THE TRANSPORT OF EXCESS DEFENSE ARTICLES

Section 122, proposed by the Senate, raises the space available weight limitation that is imposed on the transportation of excess defense articles (EDA) from 25,000 pounds to 50,000 pounds. Currently, a variety of limitations are imposed on the use of Department of Defense funds to transfer excess defense articles to foreign nations and international organizations. Moreover, even when such an expenditure is authorized, free transportation of EDA may only be provided on a space available basis if it is in the U.S. national interest to do so, the recipient nation is a developing nation which receives less than $10,000,000 in FMF and IMET, and the weight of the items to be transferred does not exceed 25,000 pounds.

not exceed 25,000 pounds. In limiting the weight of defense articles  ${\cal L}$ to no more than 25,000 pounds, current law will preclude the transportation of a large number of United States Coast Guard "selfrighting" patrol craft which have recently been declared excess but which weigh approximately 33,000 pounds. Over the next four years, more than 50 of these vessels will be eligible for transfer to foreign nations under the EDA program. However, the current weight limitation will preclude shipment of the vessels on a space available basis to foreign countries. This, in turn, will increase the cost of transfer of the defense article to would-be recipients, and likely would cause many nations to decline U.S. offers of these vessels. As a result, the Untied States Coast Guard could incur unnecessary expenses due to delays in finding foreign recipients of the craft, and possibly be forced to demilitarize vessels for whom a foreign customer could not be secured. Raising the weight limit to 50,000 pounds will obviate this problem.

TITLE II—INTERNATIONAL MILITARY EDUCATION AND TRAINING

AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

Section 201, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, authorizes $55,000,000 for fiscal year 2001 and $65,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 to carry out international military education and training (IMET) of military and related civilian personnel of foreign countries. The administration request for fiscal year 2001 for IMET is $55,000,000. The actual level of IMET funding for fiscal year 2000 is $50,000,000. IMET is provided on a grant basis to students from allied and friendly nations, and is designed to expose foreign students to the U.S. professional military establishment and the American way of life, including the U.S. regard for democratic values, respect for individual and human rights and belief in the rule of law. Section 201 authorizes funding of the IMET program in 2002 at its maximum capacity. Funding beyond this level cannot be absorbed due to limitations in number of courses and classes.

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS RELATING TO INTERNATIONAL MILITARY EDUCATION AND TRAINING

Section 202, proposed by the Senate, amends Chapter 5 of part II of the Foreign  $\,$ Assistance Act of 1961, relating to International Military Education and Training (IMET), by adding two new requirements. First, selection of foreign personnel for the IMET program will be done in consultation with United States defense attaches, who are uniquely positioned to recommend candidates. The conferees are concerned to note that defense attaches are, on occasion, excluded from this process. By mandating consultation, the conferees intend to secure the complete involvement of defense attaches in nominating individuals for the IMET program. Naturally, selection of foreign personnel, and overall management of the IMET program remain the responsibility of the Department of State.

Section 202 also requires that the Secretary of Defense develop and maintain a database containing records on each foreign military or defense ministry civilian participant in education and training activities conducted under this chapter after December 31, 2000. This record shall include the type of instruction received, the dates of such instruction, whether it was completed successfully, and, to the extent practicable, a record of the person's subsequent military or defense ministry career and current position and location. The conferees expect that the record of a person's subsequent career will include positions held, reports of exceptional successes or failures in those positions, and any credible reports of involvement in criminal activity or human rights abuses. The conferees believe that such a database will improve the effectiveness of foreign military education and training activities by enabling the Department of Defense to better determine: what follow up training may be most appropriate for previously trained personnel; which courses are most effective in improving the performance of foreign military personnel; and where personnel are located in foreign defense establishments who, by virtue of their prior training, are most likely to understand U.S. modes of operation and share U.S. standards of military professionalism. This section does not require, however, that the Department of Defense institute dramatic new collection programs to gather information for the database.

TITLE III—Nonproliferation and Export Control Assistance

NONPROLIFERATION AND EXPORT CONTROL ASSISTANCE

Section 301 has been modified from the Senate proposal. Every major category of U.S. foreign assistance, except for nonproliferation and export control assistance, is governed under multiple sections, or entire chapters, of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (FAA). The FAA contains chapters authorizing international narcotics control, military assistance, peacekeeping operations, antiterrorism assistance, IMET, development assistance, and funding for international organizations, to name a few. Although the President has declared a state of national emergency to combat the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and associated delivery systems, the FAA does not contain a specific chapter to authorize and direct such a clearly important form of U.S. foreign aid. Funding for the nonproliferation and export control activities of the Department of State derives from a variety of disparate authorizations passed at various times. As a result, this category of funding does not enjoy the same status as other types of foreign assistance.

Appropriation of funds for nonproliferation and export control activities is cobbled together annually by the Appropriations Committee under a catch-all account that also includes demining and contributions to certain international organizations. Thus the Department of State is invariably forced to make "trade-offs" between nonproliferation and export control funding and funding for other activities. Finally, other nonproliferation and export control funding is contained within the amounts appropriated for the "newly independent" states of the former Soviet Union, and is thus subject to restrictions if the President cannot certify that Russia is not proliferating technology to Iran (which he has, to date, been unable to do).

By adding a new chapter to Part II of the FAA, the conferees intend U.S. nonproliferation and export control assistance to be given equal stature with other authorized activities. The conferees expect the Department of State in the future to consolidate all of its nonproliferation funding, except for funding for the International Atomic Energy Agency (which is governed by a separate authorization under the FAA), into a single, integrated request to be authorized under Chapter 9 of the FAA. The conferees further expect that the Nonproliferation Bureau of the Department of State will be given authority over the use of funds authorized by this chapter.

The new chapter to the FAA incorporates existing authorities under Sections 503 and 504 of the FREEDOM Support Act (which are the principal extant authorities for nonproliferation and export control activities). The new sections 581 and 582 carry forward those authorities, but also emphasize the need for programs to bolster the indigenous capabilities of foreign countries to monitor and interdict proliferation shipments. Section 583 directs the President to ensure that sufficient funds are allocated to the transit interdiction effort. To this end, the section contains authority for the Secretary of State to establish a list of countries that should be given priority in U.S. transit interdiction funding. The conferees suggest that the initial designation of the transit country list include those countries mentioned in the fiscal year 1999 Congressional presentation document as "key global transit points" the countries of Central Asia and the Caucasus, the Baltics, Central and Eastern Europe, Singapore, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Cyprus, Malta, Jordan, and the UAE).

Section 584, which will be part of the new chapter of the FAA, makes clear that two of the same limitations which apply to antiterrorism assistance also apply to nonproliferation and export control assistance. Section 584 permits the use of unrelated accounts to furnish services and commodities consistent with, and in furtherance of, Chapter 9 of the FAA. However, it requires that the foreign nation receiving such services or commodities pay in advance for the item or service, and that the reimbursement be credited to the account from which the service or commodity is furnished or subsidized. Foreign Military Financing may not be used to make such payments. Section 584 also makes clear that Chapter 9 does not apply to information exchange activities conducted under other authorities of law.

Section 585 authorizes $129,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $142,000,000 for fiscal year 2002, for activities conducted pursuant to Chapter 9 of the FAA. This amount captures several activities currently appropriated within the Nonproliferation, Anti-Terrorism, Deminining, and Related Programs Account, and the FREEDOM Support Act Assistance for the New Independent States (NIS) of the Former Soviet Union. The covered programs, at the administration's requested levels of funding for FY2001, are: $15,000,000 for the Nonproliferation and Disarmament Fund; $14,000,000 for Export Control Assistance; $45,000,000 for the Science Centers; and $36,000,000 in NIS export control and border assistance funding. The administration request for fiscal year 2001 thus totals $110,000,000 for all Chapter 9 authorized activities. The increase of $19,000,000 above the administration's requested levels is intended to support two initiatives contained in sections 303 and 304. Specifically, this increase supports funding of the International Science and Technology Centers at maximum capacity (which requires an additional $14,000,000) and establishment of a static cargo x-ray facility in Malta as the first of the transit interdiction programs to be managed under the new authorities of the FAA (a $5,000,000 program).

NONPROLIFERATION AND EXPORT CONTROL TRAINING IN THE UNITED STATES

Section 302, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, authorizes the expenditure of $2,000,000 during both fiscal years 2001 and 2002 in nonproliferation and export control funding for the training and education of personnel from friendly countries in the United States. The Department of State already engages in a vigorous training program, and funds numerous activities which are implemented by Department of Commerce personnel. However, much of this training is conducted overseas. The conferees urge the Department of State to place emphasis on bringing a select group of officials from friendly governments back to the United States to engage in an intensive training program which draws upon the expertise of all relevant U.S. government agencies. This training should focus on those nonproliferation and export control activities which would most benefit from being conducted in the United States. Finally, the conferees are concerned with declining travel and training budgets of U.S. government agencies tasked with combating proliferation. The conferees hope this trend will be arrested, but urge the Department of State, in the interim, to seek to offset the effects of this decline using the funds authorized under this section.

SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY CENTERS

Section 303, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, authorizes $59,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $65,000,000 in fiscal year 2002, in nonproliferation and export control funding for the Department of State's international science and technology centers. The administration request for fiscal year 2001 is $45,000,000. The actual level of funding for fiscal year 2000 is $59,000,000. The conferees expect that this not only will fully fund all ongoing activities at these centers, but will allow a significant expansion in the number of research grants offered to Russian scientists formerly employed in the development of missiles and chemical and biological warfare programs.

Section 303 also expresses the view of the conferees that frequent audits should be conducted of entities receiving ISTC funds. This will be necessary in light of the administration's interest in expanding the role of the ISTC to provide funds to redirect the expertise associated with the Soviet Union's biological warfare program. U.S. obligations under the Chemical and Biological Weapons Conventions, as well as under domestic law (e.g., P.L. 106-113), prohibit the furnishing of assistance to offensive biological warfare programs. It thus is essential that the United States audit entities that receive assistance to ensure that the United States is not contributing, albeit unknowingly, to an offensive biological warfare program (or to entities that are proliferating technology to rogue states). Moreover, the obligation to conduct audits should be spread equitably throughout the United States Government.

TRIAL TRANSIT PROGRAM

Section 304, proposed by the Senate, authorizes $5,000,000 in nonproliferation and export control funding to establish a static cargo x-ray facility in Malta, provided that the Government of Malta first gives satisfactory assurances that Maltese customs officials will engage in random cargo inspections of container traffic passing through the Malta Freeport, and will utilize the x-ray facility to examine random shipping containers.

Malta is the ideal location for a trial transit interdiction program. The country's location, along one of the busiest trade routes in the world, has made it a crucial shipping center. The Malta Freeport is ideally situated as a redistribution point, linking trade between Europe, Africa, the Middle East, and Asia. For instance, direct shipments from the Black Sea to Malta take less than 15 days. From various ports in Europe, Russia, and Asia, large cargo vessels offload their containers into the Freeport. The containers are then stored temporarily and are reloaded onto smaller "feeder" vessels which service ports in North Africa, including Libya. The Freeport went into operation in April 1990. According to Maltese Freeport documents, that year alone, 231 vessels offloaded 94,500 containers. Since that time, the volume of activity at the port has steadily increased. In 1996, the number of ships calling at the Freeport reached 1,383. Nearly 600,000 containers transited the facility that year. For 1999, according to a January 10, 2000 article in a Maltese daily newspaper, 1,464 container ships utilized the Freeport. At this time, estimates of container traffic are not available, but presumably the number will exceed half a million.

The steadily rising level of container traffic in the Freeport is noteworthy. The vol-ume can be expected to increase if plans to further expand the port's services are implemented, thereby making one of the world's largest deepwater ports all the more robust. The Malta Freeport Act, which establishes the Freeport as a legally separate entity from Malta proper, creates specific proliferation concerns. Currently the Freeport has its own Minister, and customs functions have been conferred upon the Freeport Authority which he oversees. Maltese Customs does not receive information on transshipments, and may not operate in the Freeport without permission. While the Freeport has never refused such a request, the fundamental lack of transparency, and the inability of Maltese customs to conduct random inspections. means that effective export enforcement is impossible at this time

The conferees are concerned with this situation since Malta is undeniably being used as a transit point by various entities engaged in weapons proliferation. For example, in one instance of excellent cooperation between the Freeport and Maltese Customs officials, a shipment of chemical warfare precursor chemicals was seized. Similarly, the United Kingdom recently uncovered a massive shipment of missile parts slated for air delivery to Libya via Malta. While this latter incident did not involve the Freeport, it nevertheless is further evidence that various countries are seeking to use Malta as a transit point for deliveries of dangerous commodities to North Africa.

The conferees note that Maltese-U.S. relations have steadily improved over the past several years. The Government of Malta has demonstrated a genuine commitment to non-proliferation and bolstering its export control capability. Therefore the conferees favor initiation of a trial transit program with Malta, provided that the Maltese Government takes the necessary steps to render this program viable (namely, by opening the Freeport to periodic, random inspections by Maltese Customs officials). The conferees hope that this program, if successful, might serve as a model for programs in other designated transit countries.

EXCEPTION TO AUTHORITY TO CONDUCT INSPECTIONS UNDER THE CHEMICAL WEAPONS CONVENTION IMPLEMENTATION ACT OF 1998

Section 305 was proposed by the Senate. The Chemical Weapons Convention, which was approved by the Senate in 1997, has an extensive inspection regime which allows potentially intrusive inspections of chemical companies in the United States. The Senate was concerned about the threat posed to business proprietary information during the course of an inspection. As a result, the Chemical Weapons Convention Implementation Act of 1998 imposes a requirement that a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) accompany every inspection conducted in the United States.

However, there is minimal benefit to the FBI's monitoring of inspections at chemical destruction sites. Such inspections pose litle risk to national security or trade secrets and—because of their lengthy duration—a constant FBI presence would be expensive to maintain. This section gives the FBI an exemption from the requirement to be present at inspections of U.S. chemical destruction facilities.

TITLE IV—ANTITERRORISM ASSISTANCE AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

Section 401, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, authorizes $72,000,000 for fiscal year 2001 and $73,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 in antiterrorism assistance. The administration request for anti-terrorism assistance for fiscal year 2001 is $72,000,000 (including the request for the Terrorist Interdiction Program (TIP)). The actual level of funding for fiscal year 2000, including the TIP, is $38,000,0000.

TITLE V—INTEGRATED SECURITY ASSISTANCE PLANNING

Subtitle A—Establishment of a National Security Assistance Strategy

NATIONAL SECURITY ASSISTANCE STRATEGY

Section 501, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, strongly urges the annual preparation of a National Security Assistance Strategy (NSAS) to be submitted in connection with the annual foreign operations budget request. The purpose of the NSAS is to establish a clear and coherent. multi-vear plan, on a country by country basis, regarding U.S. security assistance programs. The current process utilized by the United States Government is entirely insufficient and is run, on an ad hoc basis. Seldom is a thoroughly researched, thoroughly justified proposal for security assistance put forward to Congress. This, in turn, has encouraged parallel Congressional initiatives and earmarks which often are put forward with a comparable level of foresight and planning. As a result, it seems that the Political-Military Affairs Bureau of the Department of State does not currently possess sufficient control over the allocation of security assistance funds, despite its clear mandate to manage these programs (except for nonproliferation assistance).

Currently there is no clearly articulated organizing principle for U.S. military assistance. Nor is there a coherent set of benchmarks, or measurements, against which the success of individual programs with various countries can be measured. As a result, military assistance funding proposals are often vague and seemingly unjustified. For instance, the most recent Congressional presentation documents justify the provision of FMF for Southeast Europe as "contributing to regional stability in Southeast Europe by promoting military reform." No further elaboration is given. It is hardly surprising, in light of this sort of justification, that the administration's security assistance requests seldom are fully funded by Congress.

The conferees urge the Department of State to transform fundamentally the way that the United States conceptualizes security assistance. Utilizing a model more akin to the Department of Defense's planning process, the Department of State is encouraged to pull together a comprehensive multiyear plan, which will evolve on an annual basis, setting forth a specific programmatic objective for each country and explaining how the requested funds will accomplish that objective. Additional, secondary objectives should be added as necessary. The conferees believe that the plan for each country should be developed at the U.S. mission level, and should be coordinated by the Department of State with all relevant U.S. government agencies with a role in U.S. security assistance programs. The bottom-up document that results is then to be coordinated with the top-down policy guidance set forth in the National Security Strategy of the United States, and by the Secretary of State (in coordination with the Secretary of Defense and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. and in consultation with other relevant agencies, including the intelligence commu-

The conferees expect the resultant document to be a comprehensive National Security Assistance Strategy which provides a robust, detailed justification for security assistance funding that is requested. Rather than the current process, which yields unclear and unmeasurable objectives for U.S. security assistance programs, it is expected that the NSAS process will ensure that the type and amount of assistance given a counis determined programmatically. Progress can thus be measured by the administration and the Congress. In turn, the conferees anticipate that such an initiative, led by the Political-Military Affairs Bureau of the Department of State, will substantially improve Congressional understanding of the administration's initiatives and bolster Congressional support for the President's military assistance request.

SUBTITLE B—ALLOCATIONS FOR CERTAIN COUNTRIES

SECURITY ASSISTANCE FOR NEW NATO MEMBERS

Section 511, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, authorizes $30,300,000 for fiscal year 2001 and $35,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 in grant Foreign Military Financing for the Czech Republic, Hungary, and Poland. Section 511 also authorizes $5,100,000 for fiscal year 2001 and $7,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 in IMET funding for these three new NATO members. The administration request for fiscal year 2001 for these three countries is $30,300,000 in grant FMF and $5,100,000 in The actual level of grant IMET funding. FMF funding for the three for fiscal year 2000 is $22,000,000. The actual level for IMET funding for fiscal year 2000 is $4,570,000.

Section 511 also directs the President to give priority to supporting the objectives set forth by the Senate in its resolution of ratification for the protocols adding the three new NATO members. Specifically, the conferees expect the administration to ensure that FMF and IMET funding is used to support the ability of Poland, Hungary, and the Czech Republic to fulfill their collective defense requirements under Article V of the Washington Treaty. The conferees also expect the administration to use the additional funds provided to expand U.S. efforts to improve the ability of these countries to protect themselves from hostile foreign intelligence services.

INCREASED TRAINING ASSISTANCE FOR GREECE AND TURKEY

Section 512, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, authorizes $1,000,000 in IMET funding for Greece and $2,500,000 in IMET funding for Turkey for each of the fiscal years 2001 and 2002. The administration request for IMET for fiscal year 2001 is $25,000 for Greece and $1,600,000 for Turkey. The actual level of IMET funding for Greece for fiscal year 2000 is $25,000. For Turkey, the actual level of IMET funding for fiscal year 2000 is $1,500,000.

The conferees are encouraged by numerous indications of a warming in Greek-Turkish relations. This improvement has manifested itself in several ways, ranging from Greek agreement to Turkish candidacy for membership in the European Union to the large number of bilateral agreements that have recently been signed during reciprocal visits of foreign ministers (including agreements on transportation, tourism, cultural heritage, and customs issues). In the interest of bolstering this process the conferees authorize a substantial increase in funds for International Military Education and Training (IMET). It is the conferees' expectation that the administration will use these additional funds to support the process of rapprochement between Greece and Turkey. Specifically, the conferees urge the administration to ensure that $1,000,000 of the additional resources, evenly divided between the two countries, is used for joint professional military education of Greek and Turkish officers. The conferees note that this type of training will build personal relationships between the militaries of these two important NATO allies, and will reinforce the process that is already underway.

ASSISTANCE FOR ISRAEL

Section 513 which has been modified from the Senate proposal, sets into place the formula for a phase-out of annual U.S. Economic Support Funds to Israel. Operating from a baseline of $1.2 billion ESF per annum, beginning in FY 1999, the United States and Israel agreed to a plan whereby Israel's annual economic assistance would be reduced in equal increments of 10 percent (equivalent to $120,000,000 per annum), resulting in the ultimate elimination of ESF for Israel. In order to ensure Israel's continued security in the face of the loss of annual economic support, Israel requested-and the United States agreed to—an annual increase in Foreign Military Finance equal to half the reduced ESF amount (or $60,000,000). Section 513 authorizes this process for both fiscal years 2001 and 2002, and will result in an aggregate reduction in authorized foreign assistance of $120,000,000. Specifically, this section authorizes $1,980,000,000 for fiscal year 2001 and $2,040,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 in FMF. The administration's request for fiscal year 2001 is $1,980,000,000.

The authorization provided by the section is without prejudice to any rescissions or supplemental appropriations which might be required. The conferees intend for this formula for the reduction of Israel's ESF be in place through fiscal year 2008, and intend to authorize accordingly in future Acts.

In addition, this section directs that FMF funds for Israel for fiscal year 2001 be disbursed not later than 30 days after enactment of this Act or on October 31, 2000, whichever is later. To the extent that Israel makes a request, FMF funds shall, as agreed by Israel and the United States, be available for advanced weapons systems. Additionally, not less than $520,000,000 can be used for procurement in Israel of defense articles and defense services, including research and development. The conferees expect that Israel's annual aid package will be provided under the usual terms, including early disbursal of both ESF and FMF, offshore procurement, and that the aid will be provided in the form of a grant.

The conferees will view favorably additional requests for authority required in the event of a peace agreement in the Middle East.

ASSISTANCE FOR EGYPT

Section 514, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, provides a similar formula for Egypt as that applied under Section 513. In providing an authorization for ESF to Egypt for fiscal years 2001 and 2002, Section 514 sets in place the phase-out of Economic Support Funds for Egypt at a rate of $40,000,000 per year. This section, which also contains a two-year authorization for FMF, will result in an aggregate reduction of $80,000,000 in ESF. The authorization provided by the section is without prejudice to any rescissions or supplemental appropriations which might be required.

Further, the section directs that FMF estimated to be outlayed during fiscal year 2001 shall be disbursed to an interest bearing account for Egypt in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. However, withdrawal of funds from the account can be made only on authenticated instructions from the Defense Finance and Accounting Service and, in the event that the interest bearing account is closed, the balance of the account is to be transferred promptly to the appropriations account for Foreign Military Financing. The conferees urge that before any of the interest accrued by the account is obligated, the Committees on Appropriations and Foreign Relations of the Senate, and the Committees on Appropriations and International Relations of the House, be notified.

SECURITY ASSISTANCE FOR CERTAIN COUNTIES

Section 515, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, provides individual authorizations for fiscal years 2001 and 2002 of grant FMF and IMET funding for various countries.

BORDER SECURITY AND TERRITORIAL INDEPENDENCE

Section 516, which has been modified from the Senate proposal, provides an integrated authorization of security assistance funds for the GUUAM countries (e.g., Georgia, Ukraine, Uzbekistan, Azerbaijan, and Moldova) and Armenia. Specifically, for fiscal year 2001, Section 516 authorizes a package of $5,000,000 in grant FMF, $2,000,000 in nonproliferation and export control assistance, $500,000 in IMET funding, and $1,000,000 in antiterrorism assistance. For fiscal year 2002, that package is: $20,000,000 in grant FMF, $10,000,000 in nonproliferation and export control assistance, $5,000,000 in IMET funding, and $2,000,000 in antiterrorism assistance. These funds must be expended in accordance with the individual requirements of their respective accounts. Thus, for instance, the grant FMF may only be utilized for activities authorized in connection with the FMF program. Likewise, nonproliferation and export control funds must be spent on the objectives set forth under Chapter 9 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. Similar restrictions apply to the other authorized forms of security assistance. Thus, as assistance to Azerbaijan under this section is still subject to section 907 of the FREEDOM Support Act, such assistance may be provided only for antiterrorism or nonproliferation and export control purposes.

The funds authorized under Section 516 must be spent for the purpose of assisting the GUUAM countries and Armenia in strengthening control of their borders, and for the purpose of promoting the independence and territorial sovereignty of these countries. These funds also are specifically authorized, pursuant to Section 499C of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, for the purpose of enhancing the abilities of the national border guards, coast guard, and customs officials of the GUUAM countries and Armenia to secure their borders against narproliferation, trafficking, transnational organized crime. The conferees intend that funds authorized by this section be used in Uzbekistan solely for nonproliferation purposes. Finally, it bears emphasizing that the conferees strongly support the cooperation on political, security, and economic matters promoted and facilitated through the GUUÂM group. The United States should promote these endeavors as part of its strategy to help these states consolidate their independence and strengthen their sovereignty, to help resolve and prevent conflicts in their respective regions, and to promote democracy and human rights. In addition, the conferees strongly support political, security, and economic cooperation between the United States and Armenia

Finally, the conferees note the successes of the Department of Defense's two international counterproliferation programs—the DOD/FBI Counterproliferation Program and the DOD/Customs Counterproliferation Program. With minimal funding, and through excellent management, these programs are contributing to efforts to halt the spread of dangerous technology across the borders of the former Soviet Union, Eastern and Central Europe, and the Baltic states. The conferees hope that the Department of Defense will continue to support these programs and recommend that the Department of State coordinate closely with the Department of Defense on proliferation matters.

TITLE VI—TRANSFERS OF NAVAL VESSELS AUTHORITY TO TRANSFER NAVAL VESSELS TO CERTAIN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Section 601 of the conference agreement, similar in the House and Senate proposals, provides authority to the President to transfer twelve naval vessels to Brazil, Chile, Greece, and Turkey. These naval vessels either displace in excess of 3,000 tons, or are less than 20 years of age. Therefore statutory approval for the transfers is required under 10 U.S.C. 7307(a). The two PERRY class frigates proposed for transfer to Turkey under lease/sale authority were approved by Congress to be transferred to Turkey by sale in the fiscal year 2000 shop transfer legislation. Because of Turkish financial uncertainties caused by recent natural disasters, however, this proposal, which is in addition to the sale authority previously granted, is needed to give Turkey some flexibility in determining the most appropriate means to acquire the ships. Two KNOX class frigates are proposed in this section to be transferred to Greece on a grant basis.

INAPPLICABILITY OF AGGREGATE ANNUAL LIMI-TATION ON VALUE OF TRANSFERRED EXCESS DEFENSE ARTICLES

Section 602 of the conference agreement, similar in the House and Senate proposals, ensures that the value of naval vessels authorized for transfer by grant by this Act will not be included in determining the aggregate value of transferred excess defense articles.

COSTS OF TRANSFERS

Section 603 of the conference agreement, identical in the House and Senate proposals, provides that all costs are to be borne by the foreign recipients, including fleet turnover costs, maintenance, repairs, and training.

CONDITIONS RELATING TO COMBINED LEASE-hance end-use monitoring on government-to-SALE TRANSFERS

Section 604 of the conference agreement, identical in the House and Senate proposals, authorizes the transfer of high value ships on a combined lease-sale basis under Section 61 and 21 of the Arms Export Control Act (22 U.S.C. 2796 and 2761 respectively).

FUNDING OF CERTAIN COSTS OF TRANSFERS

Section 605 of the conference agreement, identical in the House and Senate proposals, provides authorization for the appropriation of funds that may be necessary for the costs of the combined lease-sale transfers in order to satisfy the requirements of 2 U.S.C. 661c. These funds are authorized to be appropriated into the Defense Vessels Transfer Program Account, which was established in the fiscal year 1999 transfer legislation.

REPAIR AND REFURBISHMENT IN UNITED STATES SHIPYARDS

Section 606 of the conference agreement, proposed by the House, requires the President, to the maximum extent practicable, to ensure that repair and refurbishment of naval vessels authorized for transfer under this title is performed in U.S. shipyards, including U.S. Navy shipyards.

SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING TRANSFER OF NAVAL VESSELS ON A GRANT BASIS

Section 607 of the conference agreement, proposed by the House, expresses the sense of Congress that naval vessels authorized for transfer to foreign countries on a grant basis under section 516 of the Foreign Assistance Act should be transferred only if the U.S. receives appropriate benefits from such countries.

EXPIRATION OF AUTHORITY

Section 608 of the conference agreement, identical in the House and Senate proposals, provides that the transfers authorized by this Act must be executed within two years of the date of enactment. This allows a reasonable opportunity for agreement on terms and for execution of the transfer.

TITLE VII—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS UTILIZATION OF DEFENSE ARTICLES AND SERVICES

proposed by the Senate. Section 701. amends Section 502 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 to make clear that defense articles and services may be furnished by the United States to foreign nations for antiterrorism or nonproliferation purposes (in addition to other currently authorized purposes).

ANNUAL MILITARY ASSISTANCE REPORT

Section 702 of the conference agreement, proposed by the House, requires the State Department to include information in the annual military assistance report required by section 655 of the Foreign Assistance Act which identifies the quantity of exports of weapons furnished on a direct commercial sales basis. The so-called "655 report" provides a timely and comprehensive account of U.S. arms transfers. This provision will close a long-standing gap by ensuring that the State Department provides information not only on the quantity of approved licenses for Direct Commercial Sales (DCS) but also on the quantity of actual deliveries of weapons exported pursuant to the DCS authority during the fiscal year covered by the report, specifying, if necessary, whether such deliveries were licensed in preceding fiscal year.

REPORT ON GOVERNMENT-TO-GOVERNMENT ARMS SALES END-USE MONITORING PROGRAM

Section 703 of the conference agreement, proposed by the House, requires the President to submit a report on the status of efforts by the Defense Security Cooperation Agency (DSCA) to implement its plan to engovernment arms transfers to foreign coun-

The conferees direct the State Department to provide DSCA complete copies of all enduse violation and prior consent reports required under section 3 of the Arms Export Ćontrol Act.

MTCR REPORT TRANSMITTAL

Section 704 includes the Senate Committee on Banking in an infrequent report required under the Arms Export Control Act. STINGER MISSILES IN THE PERSIAN GULF REGION

Section 705, proposed by the Senate, permits the replacement, on a one-for-one basis, of Stinger missiles possessed by Bahrain and Saudi Arabia that are nearing the scheduled expiration of their shelf-life.

SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING EXCESS DEFENSE ARTICLES

Section 706, proposed by the Senate, calls on the President to sell more defense articles, rather than merely give them away, using the authority provided under Section 21 of the Arms Export Control Act. It urges the President to use the flexibility afforded by Section 47 of that Act to determine that 'market value' of Excess Defense Articles and to sell such items at a price that can be negotiated. When the Department of Defense uses too rigid a definition of value," and that price cannot and that price cannot be commanded, the item is instead transferred on a 'grant'' basis pursuant to Section 516 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, thereby forgoing revenues. This section encourages the Department of Defense to ascertain the 'market value'' on the basis of local market conditions rather than solely on the basis of a generic formula applied by the Department of Defense for accounting purposes.

EXCESS DEFENSE ARTICLES FOR MONGOLIA

Section 707 of the Conference agreement, which has been modified from the House proposal, provides authority to furnish grant excess defense articles (EDA) and services to Mongolia for fiscal years 2001 and 2002. Unfortunately, given the weak nature of its national economy, which has led to difficulty in funding its military budget, Mongolia cannot afford the cost of packing, crating, handling, and transportation of EDA, even if the EDA itself is provided at no cost. Section 707 provides the Department of Defense with the authority to absorb the cost of transporting EDA to Mongolia, thereby allowing the receipt of much needed equipment. However, the Committee intends to continue the practice of requiring from the Department of Defense a detailed description of such costs in each proposed transfer. Were such costs to grow beyond a reasonable level, the Committee's continued support for such authorities would be jeopardized.

SPACE COOPERATION WITH RUSSIAN PERSONS

Section 708 has been modified from the Senate proposal. This section amends the Arms Export Control Act, provides for increased reporting and certification to Congress, and expands the ability of the President to regulate missile-related cooperation by providing him with the discretionary authority to terminate contracts in the event that he determines that a violation of the MTCR sanctions law (Section 13(a)(1) of the Arms Export Control Act) has occurred.

Currently, Chapter 7 of the Arms Export Control Act imposes mandatory sanctions on proliferating entities. However, those sanctions apply only to prospective licenses and contracts. The authority does not exist, within Chapter 7, to terminate an existing license in the event that an individual has been discovered to have proliferated missile technology subsequent to the granting of the license. This deficiency became apparent in discussions with the administration regarding the proposed co-production arrangement between Lockheed Martin and a Russian rocket-engine firm, NPO Energomash. Section 708 provides that missing authority to the President, should he choose to utilize it. It is important to underscore that this authority is completely discretionary.

Section 708 also requires the President to make an annual certification to the Committee that various Russian space and missile entities doing business with the United States are not identified in the report reguired pursuant to the Iran Nonproliferation Act of 2000. These certifications must be made annually for the first five years of a license between a U.S. firm and a Russian entity (or for the life of the license, if less than five years). However, there is no penalty in the event that a certification cannot be made (presumably because the person or entity has been listed in the report). The MTCR sanctions law only operates in the event that the President makes a formal determination that a transfer, or a conspiracy to transfer, occurred. While the certification required under Section 708 does not go beyond the annual report that the President is required to submit to Congress under the Iran Nonproliferation Act of 2000, it is nevertheless useful because it will ensure that the Department of State continues to focus on Russian entities doing business with the United States. This provision is also intended to encourage U.S. companies working with Russian space entities to maintain pressure on their counterparts not to proliferate technology to Iran.

Finally, Section 708 rectifies an unintended reporting loophole in the Arms Export Control Act that resulted from amendments to integrate the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency within the Department of State and a subsequent decision by the Department of State on licensing technical exchanges and brokering services under Section 36 of the AECA. Specifically, for MTCRrelated transfers governed under Section 36(b) and (c) which fall below the Congressional notification threshold, the administration currently must nevertheless submit a report to the Committee explaining the consistency of such a transfer with U.S. MTCR policy. However, MTCR-related licenses covered by Section 36(d) which fall below the notification threshold are not captured fully by this reporting requirement. Section 708 rectifies this problem.

SEENSE OF CONGRESS RELATING TO MILITARY EQUIPMENT FOR THE PHILIPPINES

Section 709 of the conference agreement, proposed by the House, expresses the sense of the Congress that the U.S. should work with the Government of the Philippines to enable them to procure certain military equipment to upgrade the capabilities and improve the quality of life of the armed forces of the Philippines.

WAIVER OF CERTAIN COSTS

Section 710 of the conference agreement, proposed by the House, waives the requirement to collect certain nonrecurring charges associated with the government-to-government sale of 5 UH-60L helicopters to Colombia in November of 1999.

IMPACT AID THEFT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. SCHAFFER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCHAFFER. Madam Speaker, something pretty positive happened in Hyattsville, Maryland that I want to discuss; it happened particularly at a Chevrolet dealership, at the Lustine Chevrolet dealership. It was there that a sales agent happened upon a scandal that affects the United States Department of Education, a theft of about $2 million that this sales agent stumbled upon and called the FBI, and it resulted in a hearing that was conducted earlier today in the Committee on Education and the Workforce; specifically, the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations.

The Justice Department, back in July of 2000, filed a claim in Federal court that Impact Aid funds, these are the funds that are sent to assist districts responsible for educating children connected with Federal facilities; military installations usually, sometimes Indian reservations, that these Impact Aid funds intended for two school districts in South Dakota were stolen on March 31 of this year. These alleged facts were presented in the Justice Department's complaint for forfeiture, which it filed in order to recover the stolen money and property and try to get these dollars back to the children in South Dakota.

Here is how it worked. There was a falsified, direct deposit sign-up form for the Bennett County, South Dakota school district that was submitted to the Department of Education on March 20 of this year, and on the form, the deposit bank account was changed from the correct bank account number, which was used by the school district, to a number under the name of Dany Enterprises. The Department of Education employee entered these forms and this false information into the agency's electronic accounting system. Consequently, the Impact Aid forms were wired on March 31 to the Dany Enterprises bank account, to the thief's bank account.

Now, this fraud was discovered thereafter on April 4 when a salesperson at the Chevrolet dealership in Hyattsville, Maryland, when he contacted the FBI to report this suspicious transaction involving two men trying to buy a Chevy vehicle with a $48,000 cashier's check, drawing on the stolen funds from the U.S. Department of Education that were deposited in the thief's account, Dany Enterprises account. The salesman was alerted by what appeared to be false credit information.

Now, although this Chevrolet salesman refused to sell the two men the car, they were each successful in purchasing a car from other dealers in the Washington, D.C. area. Now, one of them purchased a 2000 Cadillac Escalade from a Cadillac dealer using a $46,900 cashier's check, and the other person purchased a Lincoln Navigator from a Lincoln Mercury dealer, using a $50,000 cashier's check. These checks were used to buy both of these cars and they drew on the stolen funds from the Department of Education which were intended to go to the school in South Dakota.

Madam Speaker, I mention all of this because the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigation has been working very hard to try to divert dollars away from the waste, fraud and abuse that is rampant over in the Department and move these dollars back to our classrooms where they benefit children.

The story did not end there, because following these revelations, the FBI found another example of where another cash transaction, this time almost $1 million which was intended for another South Dakota school district was again stolen out of these Impact Aid funds and wired to an account called Children'S Cottage, Incorporated, due to another fraudulently submitted direct deposit form. This was used to buy a house as it turns out somewhere here in the Maryland area.

Now, this committee hearing that we had today was one of an ongoing series of committee hearings that we have initiated to uncover and explore the theft, fraud and abuse and waste in the Department of Education. We have also been learning about a computer theft ring where Department of Education employees have come up with this elaborate system where they have stolen television sets, electronic equipment, and so on and so forth.

Madam Speaker, we are spending as a Congress about $40 million a year for various investigators, financial auditors, other investigators that are working over in the Department of Education to try to help us stop this waste, fraud and abuse within the Department of Education and to help us get these dollars to our children and classrooms where these dollars matter most. But in this case, we are thankful for the car agent who did what the high-priced auditors were unable to do, and in this case, it has a very positive ending. He has reunited these almost $2 million with the children of South Dakota who need them. I wanted to bring that to the attention of my colleagues.

PIPELINE SAFETY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, I rise this evening to command the attention of my colleagues to a potentially deadly and amazingly overlooked aspect of public safety, the construction of oil and natural gas pipelines in America.

Unbeknownst to millions of Americans, their homes, their schools and communities are sitting atop hundreds of miles of pipelines that may explode at any moment if not properly constructed or if not properly maintained.

We all received a rude awakening to the likelihood of tragedy this past August. A pipeline exploded one August morning on a camping ground in Carlsbad, New Mexico, taking the lives of 11 men, women and children. Our Speaker pro tempore knows firsthand of this tragedy. Forty-eight hours later, on the other side of the country, a bulldozer ruptured a gas pipeline on a construction site in North Carolina. Luckily, no serious injuries were reported there. Of the 226 people that died between 1989 and 1998, according to a report issued by the General Accounting Office, these were some of 1030 who were injured, $700 million in property was damaged. This is unbelievable. It is unaccentable

Madam Speaker, it is time for Congress to demand that the office of pipeline safety within the Department of Transportation do their job. Periodic pipeline inspections, rigorously report pipeline spills.

Let me give my colleagues an idea about the status of pipeline safety, Madam Speaker, in the United States right now. All of the Nation's natural gas, in about 65 percent of crude and refined oil, travel through a network of nearly 2.2 million miles of pipes. These pipelines need constant attention and repair to remain safe. Over 6.3 million gallons of oil and other hazardous liquids are reportedly released from pipelines on the average each year.

□ 1915

Yet the incidence of spills and explosions is getting worse. The amount of oil and other hazardous liquids released per incident has been increasing since 1993. The average amount released from a pipeline spill in 1998 was over 45,000 gallons.

Oil pipeline leaks can and do contaminate drinking water, crops, residential land. They generate greenhouse gases, kill fish, cause deaths and injuries from explosions and fires.

For one, there is little or no enforcement of existing regulations. The General Accounting Office found that the Office of Pipeline Safety had not enforced 22 of the 49 safety regulations that are already on the book. And right now there are pipelines, natural gas pipelines, starting all over America. Some of these pipelines are going through college dormitories in my own State of New Jersey; going through people's residential areas in Pennsylvania and Ohio. And I say there is something wrong. This was a wilderness area. These people were fishing in New Mexico. This was not a densely populated area when 11 Americans were killed.

The Office of Pipeline Safety has not acted on many National Transportation Safety Board recommendations for more stringent pipeline standards. This sort of inattention is mysterious. Why would the agency, whose sole purpose it is to regulate and monitor these pipelines, keep them safe, be so uninterested in their duties? It is enough to make me wonder if there is collusion of some kind going on behind the scenes. Why else would this Federal agency be so lax in enforcing its own regulations?

Madam Speaker, this inaction of the Office of Pipeline Safety will not be excused by this Congress. We cannot forgive the lack of pipeline safety and enforcement. As an original cosponsor of H.R. 4792 with the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE), who we will hear from later, I beg of the Speaker to use her influence to get some real safety regulations. They are not being adhered to. People's lives are in jeopardy.

Madam Speaker, I submit for the RECORD a newspaper article regarding a pipeline rupture in Paterson, New Jersey.

GAS LINE RUPTURE FORCES EVACUATION IN PATERSON

(By Robert Ratish and Eileen Markey)

PATERSON.—Workers digging up a roadway on Governor and Straight streets hit a natural gas line Monday morning, releasing fumes and forcing the evacuation of 82 residents in 15 to 20 buildings dents in 15 to 20 buildings.

Police cordoned off four blocks surrounding the break for about three hours while crews from Public Service Electric & Gas Co. worked to shut off the gas. Meanwhile, those who live in the neighborhood waited outside until emergency crews deemed the area safe. "You could hear a roaring sound. It sounded like a train," Councilwoman Vera Ames said. She said a thick smell of gas filled the area surrounding the break.

There were no injuries, and no buildings were damaged.

The break occurred as workers with the Passaic Valley Water Commission were using a backhoe to break through the street. The crew had been shutting off a water line leading into a building, said Chief Engineer Jim Duprey.

Duprey said the accident occurred because PSE&G failed to mark the road properly for underground lines. "When Public Service went to mark out, they indicated there was no piping in the area that was excavated," he said

Before digging, the commission called a hotline maintained by the state Board of Public Utilities as required by the 1995 "One Call" law, Duprey said. The hotline allows agencies to make one call and have all of the appropriate utilities mark underground lines.

A spokesman for PSE&G said the utility was investigating whether the gas line was properly marked.

After hitting the line, a PVWC worker flagged down a passing officer at about 10:35 a.m., police said. Police were advised to turn off the lights on patrol cars and not leave any engines running for fear of sparking the gas fumes.

"It was very dangerous. The pressure was just phenomenal," Mayor Martin G. Barnes Roger Soto, a service technician at PSE&G, stopped at each building on Harrison Street telling workers to stay outside their buildings.

"We want to make sure that no one is operating any equipment or any kind of engine," he said. "We're just securing the area, making sure everybody is safe."

The chief of emergency management, James Sparano, said even police and fire equipment posed a danger. "You'll notice even our emergency vehicles are staying way back—anything can spark it," he said.

As firefighters and emergency medical technicians stood by, 22 young children attending Bethel Christian Childcare on Auburn Street were evacuated to School 6, where they stayed until it was safe to return.

WASTE, FRAUD AND ABUSE IN THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WILSON). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Madam Speaker, as my colleague earlier this evening talked about, today we had a hearing in the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations of the Committee on Education and the Workforce doing oversight hearings on the Department of Education. Let me just put this in context for my colleagues.

In 1998 and 1999, the Department of Education failed its financial audit. That means that the independent auditors who came in and took a look at the financial records of the Department of Education indicated that the way the numbers were presented and the background, the records that the Department of Education has, the procedures that it has in place and the interim controls that it has in place, gave the auditors some reason of doubt that the way the numbers were actually presented in the financial statements perhaps did not accurately reflect the expenditures and the flow of revenue throughout the Department.

Coming from the private sector, I know that when the financial auditors come in and put some disclaimers in or do not give an organization a clean bill of health, it sets off a number of alarm bells. Because, basically, what the auditors are saying is that in this environment, without the proper financial controls in place, an environment is created that is ripe for waste, fraud, and abuse. Over the last 18 months, as we have been taking a look at this problem within the Department of Education, we have come across a number of cases where the predictions from the auditors have actually been borne out. and it is very, very disappointing.

Today, we talked about basically what some would characterize as an embezzlement scheme of roughly $1.9 million out of the Impact Aid funds that were diverted into individuals' or small companies' checking accounts. And, again, this was not caught by the internal controls within the Department of Education, this was caught by a car salesman who grew suspicious with somebody coming in and buying or attempting to buy a very expensive automobile.

We know about the theft ring. Three people have pled guilty, another three have pleadings before the court, and there are a number of employees within the Department of Education that are suspended without pay. This is a $300,000 theft ring. The material products they brought in were anything from a 61-inch television to computers to VCRs to a whole series of other electronic equipment. It also includes up to $600,000 of false billable overtime, time that was billed, time that was paid, but time that was never worked.

We also know of at least one other major theft ring within the Department of Education that we are not at liberty to talk about because there are not public documents that have been released at this point in time. We also know that within the Department of Education the Inspector General has estimated that improper Pell Grant payments amounted to $177 million in one recent year.

We know that real decisions have real impact on real people. The $1.9 million embezzlement from the Impact Aid funds impacted directly two school districts in South Dakota. Another example. Thirty-nine students were recently awarded Jacob Javits scholarships. These are scholarships that are given to students who have excelled at the undergraduate level. The Education Department at the Federal level comes back and says that they have done such a good job, that the Federal Government is now going to fund 4 years of graduate school. That is great news for those young people; that is great news for their parents; and that is great news for the undergraduate university that has fostered an environment that has allowed these kids to excel.

Just one problem: The Department of Education notified the wrong 39 students. Two days later they had to call back these young people and tell them, sorry, they were not the students that won.

We know that the Department of Education has made $150 million in duplicate payments in this current fiscal year alone. A duplicate payment is a vendor supplying an invoice for products and services that they have provided the Department of Education. A duplicate payment means they get paid once and they get paid again.

We have some serious problems at the Department of Education. At the same time that we have been looking at these kinds of problems within the Department of Education, we have also had the opportunity to travel around America and see what is working in education. We have been in roughly 21 different States, and what we have seen is some great education, reform and educational results happening at the local level.

What the Federal Government needs to learn in this issue is where we are only providing 7 percent of the money, but in some States we estimate that we are providing 50 percent of the paperwork, it is time for the Federal Government to step back and let the people who know our children's names decide what is best for our schools and for our kids. It is time to step back and to make sure that we get 95 cents of every Federal dollar invested in education, that we get 95 cents of every dollar back into the classroom.

It is time for us to remove the red tape which really restricts innovation at the local level. It is time for us to allow local school districts to decide whether they want to use money on technology, to hire teachers, to pay teachers more for teacher training or for investment in other projects. Allow people at the local level to make the decisions.

There is a lot of good things happening in education in America today. The focus needs to be on the local level and not here in Washington.

TRIBUTE TO GILBERT WOLF

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STRICKLAND) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. STRICKLAND. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a good friend and a great American, Mr. Gilbert Wolf. On April 1 of this year, Gilbert Wolf retired as Director of the National Plastering Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Trust Fund and Administrator of the Plasterers and Cement Masons Job Corps Training Program. After 49 years in the industry, Mr. Wolf has left a legacy of superior skills training directed toward young people entering the construction trades.

A plasterer by trade, Mr. Wolf began his own career as an apprentice and went on to become a journeyman and then apprentice instructor. In 1969, he was instrumental in securing a contract with the Department of the Interior to train economically disadvantaged youth to become plasterers and cement masons. After a successful operation in three Job Corps centers, Mr. Wolf was awarded additional contracts with the Department of the Interior and labor. The Plasterers and Cement Masons Job Corps Training Program, under Gilbert Wolf's guidance, now boasts participation in 41 centers throughout the United States.

Training and motivating youth in careers in the construction industry has been Mr. Wolf's major focus for over four decades. He spearheaded several national events to bring the need for youth training to the forefront. Competition was one of his favorite themes. The result was three international apprenticeship competitions over a 5-year period; two Job Corps national competitions and countless skills demonstrations at trade shows and construction industry events throughout the United States. These events consistently showed the public the need for and the importance of solid skills training.

The Smithsonian Institute's famous Festival of Life became the setting for another national skills demonstration by Job Corps students from around the country. Mr. Wolf led the committees who organized the 2-week long festivals and won a spot on Good Morning Amer-

Mr. Wolf also coauthored papers on historical preservation and restoration with the Department of the Interior and the National Trust for Historical Preservation. A partnership with the NTHP brought opportunities for Job Corps students to learn and to work on important historical landmarks and to develop specialized skills.

Mr. Wolf also coauthored the Incentive Apprenticeship Training Course, which guides instructors through the process of training a number of people at multiple levels.

Gilbert Wolf is also credited with pushing hard to increase the number of women and other minorities into skills training and the construction industry. He was the first in the Job Corps to hire a woman as an instructor in a nontraditional trade.

When asked what has kept him going in this industry for the last 49 years, Mr. Wolf responded, where are the future skilled crafts people coming from, and who will train them? Passing a legacy of knowledge from one generation to the next is the backbone of our building industry. Young people are our only chance to keep building a strong America.

Madam Speaker, in closing, I want to express my own personal deep appreciation for the fact that Gilbert Wolf has been a mentor to my brother Roger and a valued friend to me. This Nation would be stronger and we would all be better people if more of us were more like Gil Wolf. I wish him a long, healthy, and happy retirement.

PIPELINE SAFETY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. INSLEE. Madam Speaker, in June 1999, a gasoline pipeline ruptured in Bellingham, Washington, and the ensuing fireball killed three young men. Following that tragedy, the House of Representatives did nothing.

Several months ago, a fuel pipeline ruptured by the Patuxent River in Maryland, spilling over 100,000 gallons of fuel, creating an environmental disaster. And following that disaster, the U.S. House of Representatives did nothing.

Several weeks ago in New Mexico, in Madam Speaker's own State, entire families were incinerated in a terrible tragedy due to a ruptured natural gas pipeline. And to date, despite many of our best efforts, the U.S. House of Representatives has done nothing.

□ 1930

This Chamber, despite this continuing toll of human loss and environmental loss, has not moved one bill through committee, has not moved one bill to the floor of the House of Representatives for a vote despite many of our bipartisan efforts to accomplish a meaningful bill this year.

Madam Speaker, I rise today to call on the House leadership to bring forward to this Chamber a meaningful, comprehensive, pipeline safety bill with real teeth. And we have several to choose from in the House. We have a bipartisan bill cosponsored by the gen-Washington tleman from METCALF), a Republican from the Second District in Washington, and myself, H.R. 4558. I am a prime sponsor on a bill, House bill 4792, bills that will achieve something we have long needed in this country and that is statutorily codified inspection criteria to require that pipelines in this country are inspected on a regular basis to try to prevent these tragedies.

Now, why is that so important? It is important because the tradition in the last several decades here has been of abject failure. What has happened before is that when tragedies of this nature have occurred, the U.S. Congress has passed bills that have essentially deferred to an administrative agency, to the Office of Pipeline Safety, and have directed the Office of Pipeline Safety to adopt meaningful inspection criteria, to adopt meaningful training criteria for operators.

And what has happened despite those continued grants of discretion to the administrative agency? Well, what has happened is total failure.

In 1992, this Chamber required requirements to identify high-risk pipelines. And yet, in a new millennium, we still do not have a regulation or rule requiring that. We have the National Transportation Safety Board. It found "in 1987, the Safety Board recommended that the Office of Pipeline Safety require pipeline operators to periodically inspect their pipelines to identify corrosion, mechanical damage, or other time dependent defects that may prohibit their safe operations. Yet, 13 years after our initial recommendation was issued, there are no regulations that require pipeline operators to perform periodic inspections or tests to locate and assess whether this type of damage exists on other pipelines.

Thirteen years and yet we are on the cusp of a failure if we do not pass a bill that has a statutorily required maximum period between inspections.

Now, the other Chamber, Madam Speaker, has passed a bill that again requires and gives discretion to the Office of Pipeline Safety to act. Well, frankly, we need a tougher bill. We need to break this chain of failure in the U.S. Congress. We need to bring to the floor of this House a bill that will have a statutorily codified inspection regime to make sure that these pipelines are in fact inspected.

I believe we can obtain a bipartisan resolution and get a bill to conference committee relatively quickly to do that under the leadership of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Chairman SHUSTER) and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), the ranking member

There have been lots of discussions, and I believe we can find a bipartisan solution to this to make sure we pass a meaningful bill.

I want to address a couple of other things our bill needs to do if we are going to give Americans the confidence they deserve in their pipelines. Besides the inspection, we have got to pass a bill that has meaningful training requirements for the people who operate these pipelines. They have to get a license to drive a truck with gasoline in this country. They have to get a license to fly an airplane. But they do not have to have any license or essentially any training requirements to operate a pipeline. It is time to require a meaningful training requirement for all operators.

Madam Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to help this leadership bring these bills up for a vote.

TRIBUTE TO DR. JOHN B. DUFF, PRESIDENT OF COLUMBIA COL-LEGE CHICAGO

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. WILSON). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Dr. John B. Duff, who is retiring as President of Columbia College Chicago after 8 successful years and an illustrious career in both academia and the public sector.

Prior to Columbia, Dr. Duff served as commissioner of the Chicago Public Library system, where he supervised construction of the Harold Washington Library, the world's largest public library. His academic positions include serving as the first chancellor of the Board of Regents from Massachusetts' newly reorganized system of public higher education; president of the University of Lowell, Massachusetts; and lay provost, executive vice president and processor of history at Seton Hall University.

Founded in 1890, Columbia College Chicago is an undergraduate and graduate college in downtown Chicago, dedicated to communication arts as well as media arts, applied and fine arts, theatrical and performing arts, and management and marketing arts. It is the fifth largest private institution of higher education in Illinois and the largest and most comprehensive arts media and communications college in the country.

More than one-third of Columbia's 9,000 students are minorities, the largest minority enrollment of any arts and communication institution in the country.

Columbia today is 50 percent larger than it was 9 years ago. In terms of physical space, under Dr. Duff's leadership, Columbia acquired 650,000 square feet. During this time, the first residence hall and new film stage facilities were opened, a new home for the music department was purchased, a new dance center was built, the 33 East Congress Building was purchased to house the English Department and the Radio Department, and Chicago's historic Ludington Building was acquired providing gallery space, student space, the Film/Video Department, and the Center for Book and Paper Arts.

The college has played a major role in the revitalization of the South Loop and, working with its neighbors, arts organizations, entrepreneurs and the city is spearheading the development of a Wabash Avenue Arts Corridor.

The growth of Columbia's faculty was also a priority for Dr. Duff during his tenure. The college added more than 100 full-time faculty positions to enhance curriculum development and management, to give more continuity to the educational programs, and to increase student contact with faculty.

Dr. Duff also reinforced the college's commitment to its students by strengthening developmental education programs, to help students stay in school and graduate. Open-admissions arts colleges are rare, but one as academically strong as Columbia is truly unique.

Today, thanks to Dr. Duff's leadership, Columbia remains secure in its mission and traditional commitments to opportunity, diversity, and professional education in the arts and communications.

Madam Speaker, I invite all Members of the House to join with me in recognizing Dr. John Duff's many contributions to higher education to the City of Chicago and to the State of Illinois and in wishing him and his wife, journalist Estelle Shanley, our very best as they join one-fifth of the rest of the population in this country and move out to California to spend the rest of their days.

HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES WEEK

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my special order this evening.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

Mr. HOYER. Madam Speaker, I am honored today to join a number of my colleagues in celebrating National Historically Black Colleges and Universities Week.

The contributions made by HBCUs to the African American community, to our country, and to our culture cannot be overstated.

As President Clinton noted in proclaiming the week of September 17 as HBCU Week, "Generations of African American educators, physicians, lawyers, scientists, and other professionals found at HBCUs the knowledge, experience and encouragement they needed to reach their full potential."

The alumni rolls of HBCUs are very long. They include two very distinguished, extraordinary Americans, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Booker T. Washington. In addition, they include a number of my colleagues who will be joining me today.

Today, Madam Speaker, Historically Black Colleges and Universities comprise about three percent of all colleges and universities. However, they confer nearly 30 percent of all bachelor's degrees awarded each year to African Americans.

HBCUs, Historically Black Colleges, also confer the majority of bachelor's degrees and advance degrees awarded to black students in the physical sciences, mathematics, computer sciences, engineering, and education. More than half of all African American professionals, including 70 percent of African American dentists and physicians, graduated from Historically Black institutions.

The real story, Madam Speaker, that underlies these figures is the story of hope and opportunity. We cannot, we should not, we must not run from our history no matter how painful, no matter how disgraceful.

Before the Supreme Court's landmark decision in Brown v. Board of Education in 1954, African Americans were routinely and wrongly excluded from institutions of higher learning. It did not matter how smart they were. It did not matter how much talent or potential they had. The only thing, tragically, that mattered was the color of their skin.

But out of that rank injustice, that indefensible racism, was born a fortitude and a determination to rise above, to overcome, to overcome through education. Thus, the first black college, which is now known as Cheyney University in Cheyney, Pennsylvania, was founded in 1837.

To appreciate the magnitude of this, remember that Cheyney was created a full 28 years before the ratification of the 13th amendment established to train free blacks to become school teachers.

Today Cheyney is one of the 105 HBCUs that continue to serve with great pride as an avenue for African Americans to attend college and indeed for other Americans to attend college, as well.

Four of those Historically Black Colleges are located in the State of Maryland, including Bowie State University in my own district, which was founded in 1865. Bowie State University is the oldest Historically Black University in Maryland. The others, Madam Speaker, are Morgan State, Coppin State, both in Baltimore, and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Shortly, I will be joined by my colleague, the gentleman from Maryland

(Mr. CUMMINGS), a graduate of Morgan State, who will join me in this special

I want to make specific note of the four presidents of those distinguished institutions: Dr. Calvin Burnett, president of Coppin State College; Dr. Earl Richardson, with whom I had the privilege of being today, president of Morgan State University; and Dr. Dolores Spikes, president of the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Our newest president is the president of Bowie State University, which I just mentioned. Dr. Calvin Lowe.

Madam Speaker, let me say, as a current member of the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland systems, as someone acutely interested in education and the needs of our youth, I see the manifest vision and the determination of HBCUs practically every day. I see it in the faces of the young people in my district who know that they will have the opportunity to develop their skills and talent, whether they choose Bowie State University, the University of Maryland College Park, or any other school. I see it in the faces of young professionals who have attended an HBCU and who are now working hard to build their careers and contribute to our society. And I see it in the faces of those here tonight who appreciate the unique role and history of Historically Black Colleges and Universities and who understand the importance of their continued vibrancy.

□ 1945

In the past 20 years, at least 10 Historically Black Colleges and Universities have closed. Others, Madam Speaker, face financial hardship. We have in my opinion in this House a duty to help them, and not just with dollars, though dollars are very important. The bottom line, adequate funding, will continue to be important. But we must also recognize, Madam Speaker, that our strength as a Nation lies not just in the quality of the University of Maryland at College Park or any of the other great universities but in the excellence of another great university, Bowie State, Morgan, Coppin, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, and the institutions from which so many of our distinguished colleagues have graduated. We must realize that while we celebrate the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, we also must take joy in the accomplishments and excellence of North Carolina A&T.

Historically Black Colleges have strengthened our country and enriched our culture beyond measure. They have nurtured and fostered the talents of millions. And while they can take great pride in their glorious past, it is incumbent on all of us to ensure that they enjoy an even brighter future.

Madam Speaker, I had the opportunity of meeting with Dr. Richardson, as I said, and many other presidents of Historically Black Colleges. They brought up some critical issues with which this Congress must deal. I am sure that my colleagues will join me in doing so to ensure the continued vibrancy and success of these extraordinary institutions.

Maďam Speaker, I am now privileged to yield to my good friend, distinguished colleague and graduate of Howard University. I said Morgan, but Howard, University. He is on the board of regents at Morgan State University, the distinguished gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS).

Mr. CUMMINGS. I want to thank the gentleman for yielding, and I want to thank him for this special order tonight with regard to our Nation's Historically Black Colleges and Universities. I also want to thank him as the former president of the State Senate in Maryland and now as a Member of this great body for all of the support he has given to our colleges in the State of Maryland and then of course to those throughout the United States as a Member of this body.

Many might ask, what is an HBCU? To clarify, the Higher Education Act of 1965 defines an HBCU as any historically black college or university that was established prior to 1964 whose principal mission was and is the education of black Americans. Earlier today, presidents, chancellors and representatives from HBCUs met with congressional leaders to identify opportunities to advance HBCUs. Throughout their history, HBCUs have served as emblems of excellence in higher education for African Americans.

Often acclaimed "the salvation of black folks," HBCUs have engraved in American history the opportunity for freedom through education. There are 117 HBCUs, a mix of 4-year colleges and universities, community and junior colleges, public and private institutions, and technical schools. The benefits of an educational experience at an HBCU are significant and cannot be duplicated. Students develop intellectually and build life skills and personal confidence about their identity, heritage and mission to society.

Tonight, Madam Speaker, I would like to simply provide facts and figures that will give my colleagues an idea of how many lives have been impacted by HBCUs. Did you know that HBCUs have produced a large number of congressional representatives, State legislators, mayors, Federal and State judges, professors, teachers, doctors, lawyers, business leaders, activists, writers, musicians, actors, athletes and military leaders? Did you know that for more than 150 years HBCUs have enrolled less than 20 percent of African American undergraduates but, significantly, award one-third of all bachelor's degrees and a large number of the graduate and professional degrees?

During the second session of the 101st Congress at a hearing before the House Committee on Education and Labor entitled "Issues and Matters Pertaining to Historically Black Colleges and Universities," former Congressman and current president and CEO of the United Negro College Fund, William Gray of Pennsylvania, said, "HBCUs have performed a remarkable task, educating almost 40 percent of this country's black college graduates at either the graduate or undergraduate level, some 75 percent of all black Ph.D.s, 46 percent of all black business executives, 50 percent of all black engineers, 80 percent of all black Federal judges, and 85 percent of all black doctors.

At that same hearing, U.S. Surgeon General David Satcher, who was then serving as president of Meharry Medical College, stated that "historically black health professional schools have trained an estimated 40 percent of this Nation's black dentists, 40 percent of black physicians, 50 percent of black pharmacists, 75 percent of the Nation's black veterinarians.'

Again, these statistics speak volumes for the value of HBCUs in providing an opportunity for African Americans to participate and make contributions in all walks of life. This record of outstanding achievement comes despite daunting challenges, including limited financial resources, as the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) talked about just a moment ago. In fact, I must note that in comparison with other colleges and universities, HBCUs are often underfunded. However, these institutions have maintained their commitment to excellence in higher education.

Locally, in my district of Baltimore, there are two HBCUs. Coppin State College has become a staple in the community, working with school children while also providing services to small businesses in cooperation with the Small Business Administration. It has also sponsored workshops, health fairs, concerts and other activities that enable the college to serve as a repository for African American culture. Coppin State also offers degree programs to prison inmates in urban and rural areas. This is just one example of an HBCU working to make their surrounding community more livable.

As President Clinton once said, "Historically Black Colleges and Universities continue to play a vital role by adding to the diversity and caliber of the Nation's higher education system. Furthermore, these institutions remind all Americans of our obligations to uphold the principles of justice and equality enshrined in our Constitution."

I believe that the information I have provided here tonight supports this notion. I again thank the gentleman for the special order.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for his contribution. I also thank him for his service with Morgan State University, one of the great schools in this country and in our State, and also would mention that his alma mater, Howard, of course, has a particular relationship with the Federal Government; and we are very supportive of that institution, and Dr. Swygert is doing a very outstanding job as its leader.

Mr. CUMMINGS. I certainly agree with the gentleman on that one. That is why my daughter is a second-year student there at Howard.

Mr. HOYER. I appreciate that testimony. It is as strong a testimony as you can get. I thank the gentleman.

Madam Speaker, I yield to the very distinguished gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON).

Ms. NORTON. I very much thank the gentleman for yielding. Moreover, I am very appreciative of the initiative that his involvement brings to this special order this evening. He is a member of our leadership. I think a special order led by him indicates, among other things, the attention and the importance of the Historically Black Colleges and Universities to our own minority leadership here in the House. I recognize that the majority has also given some considerable attention to Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and I want to thank them for that this evening as well. I am pleased that the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), the minority leader, has taken a lead in drawing in the Historically Black Colleges and Universities here this week when the President has declared this to be National Black Colleges and Universities Week, so that we could hear directly from them.

If I may say so, my own sister, a fourth generation Washingtonian like me, is president of a Historically Black College and University, Albany State University; so I suppose my own interest in this is also a family interest. She is a graduate of Miners Teachers College, now the University of the District of Columbia. My mother is a graduate of Howard University. I suppose it is very difficult for any African American who has gotten anywhere in life not to have in her family some indication that the HBCUs have touched their lives. I believe that this special order this evening is important for the way in which it illustrates the gentleman from Maryland's understanding of the continuing importance of these universities in the life and times of black America, the 23 States and the District of Columbia where they are located, almost half our States, 105 of them who bear a disproportionate share of the responsibility for higher education for African Americans. Because of that fact alone, these colleges and universities are deserving of all the attention we can give them. If they were to drop out of the higher education business tomorrow, black higher education in the United States of America would collapse. They give us, just at the bachelor's level, 28 percent of the bachelor's degree. They are only 3 percent of the colleges and universities in the United States of America. They are as vital as any network of institutions in our country.

Madam Špeaker, I do want to speak about some new developments in the District of Columbia involving HBCUs. Of course, Howard University, in many ways the flagship university of black America, is located here. The gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) has indicated its special relationship to this Congress. When the slaves were freed, what they wanted most of all was access to education, and higher education. The Congress has had responsibility for Howard University in a very special way almost since the end of the Civil War.

Actually, we had two Historically Black Colleges and Universities here, the University of the District of Columbia as well as Howard University, the University of the District of Columbia being an amalgam of three Historically Black Colleges and Universities. But because of a wrinkle and mishap, the University of the District of Columbia was never funded as a Historically Black College and University.

I want to thank this body here this evening that when the D.C. College Tuition Act was passed, the University of the District of Columbia received its rightful status as a fully funded HBCU beginning in 1999. This was very important because this is the only publicly supported university in the District of Columbia, for its lack of vital funding, especially given the hard times the District has since gone through, was a matter of some considerable disadvantage to the District.

It is also, however, an open-admissions university. That means that, by definition, it is not the university for some of our youngsters. One size does not fit all. And so this body passed the D.C. College Tuition Access Act. This was a historic act, because for the first time it means that residents of the District of Columbia have what Maryland and Virginia, to point to our two neighbors, have had historically. Virginia has 58 public colleges and universities, I think Maryland has almost 30, and so you can choose which one fits you. The District had one. It was an open-admissions university. This gave us access to any public college or university anywhere in the United States of America, and in this its first year just begun in September, college attendance in the District of Columbia has been raised enormously. Already in the first year they have come. What it means is that the youngster and her family pays in-state tuition and the Federal Government picks up the rest.

What does that have to do with what we are celebrating here today? We have the preliminary figures about where these students are going. And I am here to report today that of the 10 universities most favored by D.C. students, and they could choose any universities that are publicly funded anywhere in the United States, six are Historically Black Colleges and Universities, the six most favored. And they are Howard, Norfolk State, Morgan, Hampton, Bowie State. There are a host of others. Delaware State. There are many in North Carolina. Now I am focusing only on the Historically Black Colleges and Universities. Private universities in the District and the region receive a stipend of $2,500 if the student chooses the private university. We have 150 students at Hampton, a private university, of course, one of the great Historically Black Colleges and Universities in Virginia.

□ 2000

Mr. Speaker, the fact that so many District youngsters, who finally have the gates open for them, choose any one they want have chosen HBCUs speaks for itself about the importance of these universities to African Americans.

Mr. Speaker, we are a microcosm of where black America is in their choices of higher education. They feel welcome. They feel these schools will help them get a degree, rather than simply attend a university. The dropout rates for whites and blacks who go to college in the United States is enormous. Many of our students come from very disadvantaged backgrounds. They need special attention.

They get that attention in the historically black colleges and universities. These universities have proven themselves to the students, to their families and to our country for generations. More students than ever now in the District of Columbia know the value since the way it has been opened to allow them to go to these universities. We are grateful for this opportunity. We are grateful for this body, for the leadership on this side of the aisle and the other side of the aisle that has opened the gates all over America to make up for the fact that we do not have the same access that other colleges and universities have.

We are grateful that we now have a funded HBCU here in the District of Columbia, the University of the District of Columbia, and above all we are grateful that the HBCUs are there for D.C. as they have been there for African Americans and for people of all backgrounds throughout their glorious history.

Mr. Speaker, I very much thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for yielding to me and I thank him once again for leadership on this issue as he has always shown leadership on this issue and on other issues facing black America.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman very much. I appreciate the gentlewoman's remarks, and I believe her remarks were very cogent. I think it is a very significant fact that the six highest choices made by students in the District of Columbia who could go anywhere are historically black colleges, which speaks not only to the fulfillment of their mission, but to the quality of their work. So I thank her for her comments.

I yield to my very distinguished friend, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BISHOP), a graduate of one of the most distinguished educational institutions in America that is also a historically black college, Morehouse College.

Mr. BISHOP. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Maryland for yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to express my appreciation to our distinguished colleagues, certainly the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for arranging this evening's special order in recognition of the contributions made by the country's historically black colleges and universities.

These 105 institutions located in the District of Columbia and in 23 States from New York to California began to emerge more than 140 years ago, thrusting open the doors of opportunity and promise for millions of African Americans. These centers of learning have enriched the lives of their students, their parents and families and the communities and the regions that they serve.

As a matter of fact, they have made contributions that have strengthened our entire country enriching the lives of all Americans. For me, this special order has a very personal meaning. I literally grew up within the environment of a historically black college. This was in Mobile, Alabama, and the college was Bishop State Community College, which got its start in 1927 as a branch of Alabama State Teachers College. In 1965, the branch, as it was called, gained its independence and became Mobile State Junior College where my father, Dr. Sanford D. Bishop, Sr., served as the first presi-

My mother incidentally was the librarian at the college, and it was literally true that the campus and family life were very closely interwoven as I spent my formative years on and about the campus there.

In 1971, Mobile State became Bishop State Junior College by an act of the Alabama legislature and later Bishop State Community College in recognition of the leadership that my late father provided in building that college into the modern, flourishing institution that it has become. Today, it offers a wide variety of courses for our student enrollment that exceeds 4.000. A college that is recognized for its academic excellence and which is, perhaps. especially noted for turning out highly skilled health care professionals.

When I decided to attend college away from home, as many young people do, my choice was Morehouse College in Atlanta, my father's alma mater, an institution that had grown from a small Baptist school when founded in 1867 to become a part of a sprawling college complex, Atlanta University Center Complex, in providing studies in liberal arts, religion, philosophy, business administration and the sciences.

It is a place known for its leaders in the struggle to move our country closer to fulfilling its promise of freedom and opportunity for all from presidents like Dr. John Hope and Dr. Ben Mays to the most famous graduate, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., not to mention prominent leaders in the entertainment field like Spike Lee and Samuel L. Jackson.

Today I have the privilege of representing the Second Congressional District of Georgia, which is the home of Albany State University, where, as we have heard, Dr. Portia Holmes Shields serves as president. Dr. Shields is, of course, the sister of our own friend and colleague, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON).

Albany State, which was founded 97 years ago as a Bible and vocational training institute, now serves a widespread area of southwest Georgia, and it provides a wide range of bachelor's and graduate degrees. I often visit the campus in Albany where I always gain energy and ideas and inspiration from the relationship that I have with the faculty and the students.

Albany State has implemented what it calls a total quality approach, where the academic achievement translates into both commitment to the community and the skills and knowledge needed to compete in the workplace. Incidentally, in 1994 and 1998, Albany State was submerged in water from the flooding of the Flint Rivers as a result of Tropical Storm Alberta. They developed a motto the Unsinkable Albany State, and they have rebounded, rebuilt and now have a new campus that is flourishing.

Also we have Fort Valley State University in Fort Valley, Georgia, which is one of the 1890 Land Grant Colleges, the only one in Georgia. It has provided agriculture, education and liberal arts training for many, many years with many prominent graduates who have excelled in business and politics and medicine and other fields of endeavor. My good friend Dr. Oscar Prater is the President there.

There are historically black colleges and universities throughout much of the school with records and achievement very similar with those that I am very familiar with from a relatively new facility such as LaGuardia Community College in New York City to the long-established Wilberforce University in Ohio which was founded in 1856. to Compton Community College founded in 1927.

All have made contributions that loom large as the history of the country continues to be written. Congratulations to everyone who has helped these colleges and universities carry out their historic mission, including everyone here in Congress on both sides of the aisle who have helped provide the increased support for our HBCUs.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) and my other colleagues for having the foresight to have this special order to give recognition that of course is long overdue to a group of institutions that have really contributed greatly to the greatness of America and the world. Godspeed to all of these institutions as they continue to help make this Nation's promise a full reality.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BISHOP) for his comments. And as I was standing here, I thought to myself Sanford Bishop Sr. would indeed be proud of his son, a leading educator in our country. His father was a very distinguished American, and his son has become someone of whom his father would be indeed be extraordinarily proud. I thank the gentleman for his participation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to my very good friend, the gentleman from Chicago, Illinois (Mr. RUSH), a distinguished representative, and one of the very significant leaders in our country for most, if not all, of his adult life.

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER). I want to, first of all, commend the gentleman for his insightful leadership, for his dedication to the historical black colleges throughout his professional, political career. I want to thank him for the sensitivity of which he approaches this particular issue and really just his total dedication to the efforts of historical black colleges as they move to try to strengthen themselves and maintain their commitment and their mission to the American people.

The gentleman has an exemplary image and his exemplary conduct should be noted by all Americans, because he has indeed done this Nation a great service on behalf of its minority students throughout the country.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman. Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, Historically Black Colleges and Universities are important institutions of higher learning, growth and development for African Americans and minorities Nationwide. These institutions offer quality education in collegiate settings that are conducive to education and economic excellence.

The students who attend these colleges are educated, without the deriding stumbling blocks, the deriding stumbling blocks of racial selection for grants and scholarships and loans. The institutions are free of racial, religious, and gender discrimination.

Historically Black Colleges and Universities graduate large numbers of African Americans who, as previous speakers have indicated, lead, very, very productive lives in our society, who are leaders in this Nation among all professions, and who are leaders in the world.

In my home state of Illinois, many of our African American students attend HBCUs. There are 23 States along with the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands which are home to HBCUs. While these institutions are places where African Americans can flourish and people prepare for the challenges of the global village. There is an important problem which impacts the quality of their students and their professors, and that problem is finances, it is money. In the last decade, the Federal Government has increased its support of HBCUs, and although the House appropriators led by the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) and others have worked hard to ensure that HBCUs have ready access to Federal dollars through the HBCU capital financing program, more work still needs to be done.

It is this commitment to excellence which has fueled this administration's, the Clinton administration, acknowledgment of the needs of the HBCUs. This commitment was exemplified on November 1, 1993, when President Bill Clinton signed an executive order 12876 in order, and I quote, "to advance the developments of human potential, to strengthen the capacity of Historically Black Colleges and Universities to provide quality education, and to increase opportunities to participate in and benefit from Federal programs."

I am proud that President Clinton has designated the week of September 17, 2000 as National Historic Black Colleges and Universities week. The administration, the Democratic leadership, the Congressional Black Caucus and the House Democratic Caucus have led in promoting awareness of the merits of these education institutions. It is with this leadership that this subject is discussed on the Floor today, and that our Nation is aware of the tremendous benefits and the success of attending HBCUs.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to say, on a personal note say that both the previous speakers before me mentioned Albany State University, Albany State University was the first college that I ever laid eyes on.

□ 2015

As a young man, my mother attended Albany State University. I am a product of Albany, Georgia, and I cannot ever forget the awe and the delight and the sense of curiosity as a young man who was in kindergarten, going to a school right across the street from Albany State University, and to be excited about my first day in school, to look across the street, to be in the shadow of Albany State University, indeed imprinted on my mind that education was indeed the one thing that meant the most to me as a young man. As I grew into adulthood, education certainly became the hallmark of my activities.

I want to thank, again, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER). I want to thank all of those who had a vision to create Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and I want to thank my mom for introducing me to education and to instill in me the yearning, the need, the desire to make sure that I received all that this Nation can provide in terms of college and higher education and higher learning.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my friend, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. RUSH), for his generous comments and also for his cogent comments with respect to the impact that Historically Black Colleges and Universities have had on young African Americans, instilled in them a sense of hope, a sense of opportunity, a sense of future. We know that if young people do not have a sense of future, as too many do today, that they do not work for a future. They work only for today. That inspiration that the gentleman's mother gave him and his exposure to Albany State has enriched us all in this country.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to my friend, the distinguished gentlewoman from the State of California, from Oakland, (Ms. I FF)

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank and commend the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) for this special order tonight, and also for their consistent commitment and hard work on behalf of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. These institutions are so important to all of us, not only in the African American community but to all of us in the entire country.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. LEE. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. HOŸER. I was going to make this point later, but she gives me such an opening. We talk about these institutions giving extraordinary opportunities to African Americans, and they do. Bowie State University in my county is the place from which Christa McAuliffe graduated with her Master's degree. Christa McAuliffe, as some may recall, was the teacher in space who went up on the Challenger as it blew up and she died. She was one of Bowie State's most distinguished graduates, a Caucasian American but given an extraordinary opportunity through her attendance at and the receipt of a quality education at a Historically Black College.

Ms. LEE. That is quite a testimony; quite a testimony.

It is really an honor to be able to honor tonight our Nation's Historically Black Colleges and Universities. Malcolm X once declared that education is our passport to the future, for tomorrow belongs to the people who prepare for it today.

For over 150 years, Historically Black Colleges have provided these passports to their students. Although many African American scholars and leaders of the 19th and early 20th century disagreed about how African Americans would attain freedom and equality promised in our Constitution, they agreed, however, that educating young men and women was the most important step in succeeding in life.

Historically Black Colleges and Universities, also known as HBCUs, have always offered African American young men and women a quality, affordable education at times when access to institutions of higher learning were limited or completely closed off to African Americans. According to the Herald-Sun newspaper in North Carolina, HBCUs were actually first founded in 1837, 26 years before the end of slavery.

Since this humble beginning, HBCÚs have become revered institutions of higher learning that have provided quality educational access to millions of African Americans.

According to the United States Department of Education, there are 105 accredited HBCUs in the United States. These institutions enroll upwards of 370,000 students each year. Since 1966, HBCUs have awarded approximately 500,000 undergraduate, graduate, and professional degrees. They are providers of equal educational opportunity with attainment and productivity for hundreds of thousands of students. They are educating our future world leaders.

Historically Black Colleges and Universities have never been more important in providing young men and women a superior education than they are today; and now in this new era of technology, we must ensure that our HBCUs receive the necessary support to educate and train young African Americans for these unfilled jobs in the high-tech industry. And now, in my home State of California, since the end, unfortunately, of affirmative action, as we know it was banned in 1998 by passing Proposition 209, California students have increasingly become more aware of the educational benefits of attending a Historically Black College or University and many of my constituents are thriving and achieving academic excellence in these great schools.

Now, although I did not have the honor of attending an HBCU, I come from a family with deep roots at Historically Black Colleges and Universities. My grandfather graduated from Huston-Tillotson College in Austin, Texas; my role model, my mother, she attended Prairie View A&M and also Southern University; and my aunts followed in my grandfather's footsteps in attending Huston-Tillotson College. My nieces graduated from Prairie View A&M.

So I have really been the beneficiary of the values and the academic foundation provided me through my family's attendance and involvement at these great institutions.

Black colleges have a rich history to look back upon and a vibrant future ahead. I am proud to join my colleagues tonight in celebrating their many achievements and in so doing urge the United States Congress to redouble its efforts in supporting these fine institutions of higher learning.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) for her very important contribution and her giving us another example of an extraordinary American leader who has been impacted in her family and by the images and inspiration given by Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

We are advantaged by the service of the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Lee) in the Congress; and that, I am sure, is in part due to the inspiration she received by all of those who were enriched and given hope and opportunity and vision by Historically Black Colleges.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the very distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for yielding, but I also want to thank the gentleman for his display of sensitivity relative to taking out this special order and for recognizing the tremendous value of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. We have heard all of those who have spoken talk about the vast numbers of African Americans and others who have benefited from these institutions.

I, too, was fortunate to attend a Historically Black College, the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff. As the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) was talking about affordability. I can never forget on my 16th birthday going off to A&M College with $50 in my pocket wondering how I was going to make it.

As it turned out, the tuition was only $76 at that time, and I did have a $50 scholarship that the State of Arkansas gave to each of its high schools. So I only had to pay $26 of those $50. So I still had a little left over to play with.

The University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff has been an educational mecca for my family. I think of the numbers. I have four sisters who attended, two brothers, three nephews, two brothersin-law and a whole group of cousins. So it has been not only an opportunity but it has been a propelling force in all of our lives.

It started with seven students; opened its doors in 1875 with seven students. Much of the character, though, of this institution has been shaped by outstanding administrators: J.C. Corbin, John Brown Watson, and then, of course, President Lawrence Arnett Davis, who we called Prexie, who was there when I was a student and now his son is following in his footsteps, Dr. Lawrence A. Davis, Jr.

Wherever I go in America, I always run into individuals who have excelled: physicians, nurses, under-secretaries of departments and agencies. As a matter of fact, the Secretary of Transportation, Rodney Slater's, mother-in-law and father-in-law, his mother-in-law was a colleague of mine. We were students together. His father-in-law was one of our advisors in a current events club. So these become very personal and very direct.

I would hope that we would understand what everybody has been saying. These institutions have existed, operated, oftentimes with little more than baling wire; but they cannot continue in that way. We seriously need to redouble our efforts and find additional resources, and I guarantee if one talks about getting a bang for your buck, if we put some more resources into the Historically Black Colleges and Universities, I guarantee we will be reaping the dividends and rewards for years and years and years.

So I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), again, for yielding me this time.

Mr. HOYER. I thank the gentleman for his comments. It is just extraordinarily interesting to learn of the history of families that have been impacted by HBCUs and the enrichment of those families being passed on to generations that then benefit so much their district, their State, and their Nation.

We very much appreciate his contribution and his recitation of not only his history but his family's history.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the distinguished gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. DICKEY), who probably was interested in the history of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DICKEY. Absolutely. I am from Pine Bluff, Arkansas. I grew up when Prexie Davis was the president of Arkansas A&M, and I cannot say I know as much about it from the inside as the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), who is one of their distinguished alumnus; but I do know that I saw it from the outside. I know that what that school did under Dr. Lawrence A. Davis was offer scholarships to people who could not even afford to get transportation to come to school. Some of those people learned how to learn at Arkansas A&M at Pine Bluff.

Then to advance forward, here I am in Congress and I am on a committee that the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) and I serve on. We are midgets compared to Louis Stokes in this area, but we have been striving to add money to HBCUs because we want to present opportunities to people who want to learn and who care.

TRIO is a part of this plan, and I have gotten a lot of encouragements from Dr. Davis, Jr., about TRIO and we are doing our job there so that we can prepare people to come to school in places like UAPB and HBCUs all over the country. It is a great privilege for me to be a part of it, and I am going to continue on this committee striving hard to bring as much money as we can in a reasonable fashion for the benefit of the students who go to HBCUs all over the United States, but particularly at Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

□ 2030

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his contribution.

Mr. Speaker, it is now a great privilege of mine to yield to the gentlewoman from Houston, Texas (Ms. JACK-SON-LEE), one of our most dynamic members of the House.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I would like to add my own personal accolades to the speakers who have given their eloquence before me and to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), in particular, along with the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS), for the very significant and important opportunity we have been given for this Special Order.

Many times, people diminish or misinterpret Special Orders and do not see the ultimate importance of coming to this august body and speaking to our colleagues, as the gentleman from Arkansas has just done, speaking to America, about some very vital and important issues of concern, but also making important tributes. Let me thank the gentleman from Maryland for not only providing this opportunity for a tribute, but also for his legislative work and agenda of showing himself to be a true friend of HBCUs.

Let me ask the question, since we are here together: What if? I think the gentleman from Maryland made a very valid point, as we have listened to some of the very charging stories of my colleagues. This was a very instructive experience for me, listening to sons and daughters of presidents and heroes and sheroes of our historically black colleges, right here in the House of Representatives, now the legacies of the teachings of those colleges are now here passing laws. What an honor. I think it again emphasizes that the colleges are more than places of refuge for individuals who can go nowhere else, though they were born in a segregated history, which we are very proud of. I have the honor and pleasure of representing Texas Southern University, being the neighbor to Prairie View A&M, and being on the board of directors of Oakwood College in Huntsville, Alabama. So I have a familial relation-

Although I did not have the honor or the distinct pleasure of going to or attending an historically black college, I can certainly name a whole list of relatives and extended family members who have had the honor and pleasure of associating themselves with these institutions. My father-in-law, Philip Lee, now passed, was a Tuskegee airman and a very proud graduate of Hampton Institute, now university, along with his dear wife, who still lives. I had the pleasure of being able to point my younger brother, Michael Jackson, to the Oakwood Academy in Huntsville, Alabama. And, of course, the predecessors of this seat, the esteemed and honorable Barbara Jordan, Mickey Leeland and Craig Washington were all respective graduates of Texas Southern University, and I certainly count them as colleagues and friends. So the 23 States, along with the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands, are further homes to the HBCUs.

Mr. Speaker, I raise the question as I speak this evening, what if? What if we did not have these places of intellectual stimulation where Booker T. Washington could not debate with W.E.B. Du Bois about the question of lifting up your buckets where they were, versus having the Talented Tenth as W. Du Bois argued, what an excellent and outstanding intellectual debate.

I think those of us who look back on history realize that there was no anger between those two gentlemen; they were only seeking to lift the recently freed slaves where they could best serve. Booker T. Washington, who founded Tuskegee Institute, thought it was important for us to learn how to be carpenters and artisans, for us to know how to build and to be plumbers, and to use our hands. He knew that slaves had just come off of the plantations, we had worked with our hands, and he wanted us to be economically independent and he saw a vehicle to do so, teach them to build this Nation with their hands and to be remunerated, to be compensated.

Also, the same with W.E.B. Du Bois, a Harvard proponent and graduate, saw that it was necessary to take the Talented Tenth and to lift them from the buckets and send them to the East Coast at that time, primarily because there were no institutions, at least of plentiful numbers, that could educate the Talented Tenth and have them be available to be the philosophers and the articulators of the agenda of the new Negro for the 20th century as we went into the 21th century.

So I ask the question, what if? What if these institutions had not survived or not carried us through the segregated 20th century when many African Americans could not be educated anyplace else. Particularly in the State of Texas and in the Deep South, there were no places for the Talented Tenth or those who wanted to lift their buckets where they were to be educated, and these schools saw fit to take up the cause.

As we moved through the 20th century, of course, as we saw the movement of A. Philip Randolph and Witney Young, and then we moved into the 1950s and saw a young man, a graduate of Morehouse College, rise to the occasion to be the visionary of the civil rights movement, Dr. Martin Luther King. His original training, or his basic training was that of a minister, but he saw fit to carry the vision of that movement, and it was his leadership that drew young people out of institutions all over this country, both white and black, but I believe that historically black colleges fueled the movement of which he led that brought young people from those institutions, because they lived in the segregated South and they said, what can we do to begin to follow Dr. Martin Luther King, and there lie the sit-ins and, of course, the marches joined by young people all over the Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I think we have had a special week and I have enjoyed participating with the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) this week, as the President has named this week in honor of historically black colleges. We were gratified to have the Democratic Caucus host I imagine over 100 leaders of these colleges. They came to petition us to have us listen to them and to have us share our vision with them.

I would just like to note, because I know of the gentleman's record in the Committee on Appropriations, that each of us could count opportunities where we have tried to increase their funding. As a member of the Committee on Science, I thought it was important to ensure that the Civilian Space Authorization Act of 1998 and 1999 would ensure that there would be access by these colleges for direct research programs to work with the FAA, the Federal Aviation Administration, to ensure under their research, engineering and development authorization act, in particular, that again, undergraduate students could do the research that they needed.

Mr. Speaker, let me quickly conclude by noting as well that the NASA minority research, which is an important aspect of this program, and the land grant programs are important to be funded by some of the agricultural authorization.

I think the key that I would like to make sure that we are aware of is the answer to what if? We would be left with I think a gaping hole, to not have the rich history of the historically black colleges, Oakwood College, now chaired by Chairman Calvin Rock. We would not be able to cite Dr. Freeman, Dr. Joshua Hill, Dr. Polly Turner, Dr. John B. Coleman, all surrounding Prairie View A&M and Texas Southern University doing all great works.

This is an important part of our history, I say to the gentleman, and I believe this is an important night, because we have allowed ourselves to reflect and to congratulate. I think our concluding commitment should be, as our presidents have asked us, to bring them into the 21st century and catapult them with the research institutions of this Nation of high order. Let them be on the same plane as our institutions that are noted as the Ivy Leaguers, which I attended one of those. But I want them to hear our voices of appreciation and our commitment that we believe their role is extremely vital for the future of our young people and the 21st century.

With that, there is much more I could say, but I yield back to the gentleman, and I thank him for the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in recognition of the special role that Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) have played in the education of our Nation's young people. Twentythree states, along with the District of Columbia and the Virgin Islands are homes to HBCUs. I have the honor of recognizing Texas Southern University, a HBCU and a constituent of the 18th Congressional District of Texas, which I serve. Texas Southern University like so many of the HBCUs was established in 1947 as a means of educating young African Americans who wanted to experience the full force of the American Dream through higher education. It was first formed under the name Texas State University for Negroes, and became the first state supported institution in the City of Houston, Texas. The first president of Texas Southern University was the Honorable Dr. R. O'Hara Lanier, U.S. Minister to Liberia

Although Texas Southern University was first formed to educate African Americans it has become the most ethnically diverse school of higher learning in the State of Texas.

Texas Southern University has awarded over 35,000 degrees and presently offers 54 baccalaureate degree programs, 30 master's degree programs; the Doctor of Education degree in six programs; the Doctor of Philosophy in Environmental Toxicology; and two graduate professional degrees a Doctor of Pharmacy and the Doctor of Jurisprudence. The University's Robert J. Terry Library has a collection of over 913,000 holdings. The campus also hosts a 25,000-watt FM radio station that serves as a teaching and learning laboratory for communications.

Another HBCU located in the state of Texas is Prairie View A&M University. Prairie View A&M University is the second oldest public institution of higher education in Texas, originated in the Texas Constitution of 1876. Originally the University was named the A&M College of Texas for Colored Youths and opened on March 11, 1878. Initially the College was designed by the Texas legislature to provide education to teachers.

In 1945 the name of the College was changed to Prairie View University, and the school was authorized to offer, "as need arises" all courses that were offered at the University of Texas.

Another HBCU that is close to my heart and carries the proud heritage of education excellence is Oakwood College located in Huntsville, Alabama. This college unlike the previous HBCU is not a public institution, but is operated by the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Ellen G. White declared that it was God's purpose that the school should be placed in the City of Huntsville, Alabama

Oakwood College's beginning can be traced to 1895, when the General Conference Association sent a three-man educational committee to the South to select and purchase property for a school for black youth. They began with four buildings four teachers and 16 students, eight women and eight men; Oakwood Industrial School opened its doors on November 16, 1896.

The faculty consisted of H.S. Shaw, A.F. Hughes, Hatie Andre, and the principal, Solon M. Jacobs. For the benefit of both the institution and community, the school maintained and operated a line of industries. Students and teachers worked beside each other in agriculture, blacksmith, bricklaying, broom making, canning, carpentry, chaircaning, clothes manufacturing, cotton manufacturing, dairying, gardening, log milling and woodworking.

The beginning of each of these institutions was a need and the will to see that need met. I commend those hundreds of instructors, visionaries, students, parents, and communities who made higher education a reality for African American young people in our nation. My regret is that the precious gift of higher education was not available to every African American young person, and that desegregation came so many generations after the institution of slavery was ended.

As a member of the House Committee on Science I have worked to offer parity to HBCUs through the application of amendments to routine legislation designed to offer support to Colleges and University science, math, and engineering programs, but which have historically not included HBCUs.

I included amendments in the Civilian Space Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1998 and 1999 that would direct that research programs funded by this act to include Historically Black Colleges and Universities. On the Floor of the House during the 104th Congress I had an amendment added to the FAA Research, Engineering and Development Authorization Act in particular to encourage research by undergraduate students at our nation's Historically Black Colleges and Universities and Hispanic Serving Institutions.

I also offered an amendment to increase funding for Historically Black Colleges and Universities under NASA's minority research and education programs. The amendment added $5.8 million to the authorization request of $25.5 million, which restored the program to the FY 1997 funding level of $31.3 million. This greatly improved and expanded research programs of HBCU's with NASA and promotes science and technology at minority universities.

Recently, during the appropriations process for the Department of Agriculture, I sponsored a successful amendment that offered 1890 Historically Black Land Grant Colleges an opportunity to share in the research resources that are made available to other colleges and universities by the Department of Agriculture. My amendment will ensure the economic viability of 105 1890 Historically Black Land Grant Colleges and Universities. These 1890 HBCUs are part of a land grant system of 105 state-assisted universities that link new science and technological developments directly to the needs and interests of the United States and the world. In addition, to strengthening agriculture, the 1890 HBCUs conduct research, provide technical assistance in environmental sciences, improve the production and preservation of safe food supplies, train new generations of scientists in mathematics, engineering, food and agriculture sciences and promote access to new sources of information to improve conservation of natural resources.

HBCUs are unlike any other institutions of higher education in the United States; they for decades were for many the only means of higher education for thousands of African Americans. They were the source of our doctors, dentists, lawyers, teachers, ministers, and artisans of all descriptions. They have reached this level of recognition that is being demonstrated this evening by education nearly 40 percent of our nation's black college graduates. Today these same institutions confer the majority of bachelor's degrees and advanced degrees awarded to black students in the physical sciences, mathematics, computer science, engineering, and education.

I am proud to stand with my colleagues in touting the accomplishments of America's Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the very distinguished gentlewoman for participating in this Special Order.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today during National Historic Black Colleges and Universities Week to honor the achievements of two of Ohio's historically black institutions of higher learning which I have the privilege of representing in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Wilberforce University, with a current enrollment of 964 students, and Central State University, with a current enrollment of 1,111 students, have demonstrated time and time again that they are firmly committed to academic excellence and the pursuit of knowledge. I am very familiar with both of these universities, as I have had the opportunity to serve on the Board of Directors of both of them.

Before coming to Congress, I served as the President Pro Tempore in the Ohio State Senate and became very involved with both institutions. I have found their respective administrators and educators to be of the highest caliber, and I am proud to represent their interests in both the Ohio Statehouse and the U.S. Congress.

Wilberforce University, which is named in honor of the 18th century statesman and abolitionist, William Wilberforce, was established in 1856. It is affiliated with the African Methodist Episcopal Church and was the first institution of higher learning owned and operated by African Americans.

Central State traces its origin to legislation passed by the Ohio General Assembly in 1887 to create a Combined Normal and Industrial Department at Wilberforce. In 1951, the general assembly officially changed the name of the state-supported portion of Wilberforce to Central State College, and then to Central State University in 1965. Central State University remains the only public historically black university in the State of Ohio.

The true resilience of these educational institutions has been demonstrated in the way they have recovered following the tornadoes of April 1974, which devastated large portions of both campuses. Both schools have been revitalized and have produced aggressive plans for the future to continue producing outstanding graduates for the State of Ohio for generations to come.

As Ohio's Seventh District Representative to the Congress of the United States, I am very pleased to have this opportunity to honor the efforts and the achievements of Wilberforce and Central State Universities. Their many contributions to higher learning in the State of Ohio are greatly appreciated by all.

Mr. FRÖST. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of Nationally Historic Black Colleges and Universities Week to pay tribute to Paul Quinn College of Dallas, Texas. Founded in 1872, it is the oldest Liberal Arts College for African-Americans in Texas and west of the Mississippi.

Born of humble roots, Paul Quinn College was founded by a small group of African Methodist Episcopal preachers. A faculty of five taught newly freed slaves blacksmithing, carpentry, and tanning saddle work. The founders faced early challenges: a poor congregation, limited resources, and a country struggling with post-Civil War race relations. To construct the college's first building, the church launched a "Ten Cents a Brick" campaign throughout their congregation. Although poor, together the congregation's pennies built the first solid monument to their dreams.

Paul Quinn College soon expanded its curriculum to include mathematics, music, Latin, theology, and English. As the increasing service and value of the institution became apparent, the student population grew, the academic program evolved, and more buildings appeared on campus.

Today Paul Quinn College is a thriving institution, rich in history. Its 150-acres campus is a far cry from the schoolroom built with pennies, and today its 741 students take advantage of a liberal arts education, a diverse student population from around the globe, more than 40 clubs and organizations, and a strong athletic program, all steeped in an atmosphere of Christian ideals.

Although it has come a long way from humble beginnings, Paul Quinn College is now, as it was 128 years ago, still serving the intellectual, spiritual, emotional and social development of its students, preparing them for leadership and service.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud of the opportunities this fine institution has provided for so many people and the contributions it has made to the Dallas community. I know my colleagues will join me in saluting Paul Quinn College and all historically black colleges and universities this week

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I rise today on behalf of the 29,300 students that graduate from Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) each year. I come to this floor as a proud 1968 graduate of Tougaloo College and a 1972 graduate of Jackson State University. I am also proud to say that, located in my congressional district is the nation's oldest historically Black land-grant institution—Alcorn State University.

In the year 2000, we find that nearly 40% of Black undergraduates at HBCUs are first-generation college students. While we applaud the services that these institutions provide, we must also show support for HBCUs by increasing funding for them, developing programs to make federal dollars more accessible and encouraging private investments. In my home state of Mississippi, public HBCUs have been faced with the challenge of achieving funding levels equal to those of traditionally White institutions. For 25 years. Mississippi Valley State University, Jackson State and Alcorn have been engaged in a legal battle for equal funding. This fact emphasizes the need for increased public and private support. In spite of the circumstances, we find that HBCUs are continuing to fulfill their missions as institutions of higher learning and the first outlet for Blacks who desire to attend college.

Yes, Mr. Speaker, HBCUs have stood the test of time. Today, more than 25% of Blacks earning bachelors degrees received them from HBCUs. As President Clinton has designated this week as Nationally Historic Black Colleges and Universities Week, let us commit to improve upon the past successes of schools like Tougaloo College, Rust College, Alcorn State University and Jackson State University.

I thank Representatives HOYER, CUMMINGS, LEWIS and WYNN for their leadership on bringing this issue to the floor. God bless our HBCUs and their supporters.

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, as a proud graduate of a Historically Black College, I am more than happy to be a part of the National Historical Black College and University week here in Washington. Today, over half of all African American professionals are HBCU graduates, as is 42% of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Historically Black Colleges and Universities were created back in 1837 to provide African Americans access to higher education. Because of the terrible history of racism in many parts of our country, the goal of these schools, although straight forward, has not been easy: to educate young black Americans and empower them to play a role in the affairs of our country. Since African Americans have been denied educational opportunities until very recently, these schools have really been the only avenue open to blacks to further themselves through education.

Today, a majority of African American college students graduate from HBCU's. 28% receive their bachelor's degrees from these schools, and 15% obtain their Master's degrees from these schools. Since their creation, HBCU's have graduated more than 70% of the degrees granted to African Americans.

In my state of Florida, we are blessed with four HBCU's, two of which are located in my district. In Tallahassee, we have Florida's largest Black College, my alma mater, Florida A&M, which has nearly 10,000 students. In South Florida, we have Florida Memorial College, and my district, Florida's third, is lucky to have both Edward Waters College in Jacksonville, and Bethune Cookman College, which was founded by a determined young black woman, Mary Mcleod Bethune, in 1904 in Daytona.

Among the many exciting things happening in Florida's black colleges is the acquisition of a law school at Florida A&M, which is set to open in 2003. The opening of the school will officially mark the return of the FAMU College of Law since its closing in 1968. I remember when I was a student at Florida A&M. when the FAMU College of Law, which had provided the only avenue in the state of Florida for African Americans to undertake a career in the influential field of law, was stolen from us and merged with the law school at Florida State. This was a time when African Americans were not allowed to study at Florida state schools at the graduate level, consequently, African Americans were excluded from the field. Not surprisingly today, although that law has been repealed, there are very few African American attorneys in Florida. With the reinstallation of FAMU's law school, minority students will once again have greater access to be represented in the legal profession.

In closing, I am, and always will be, a strong supporter of HBCU's, and will continue to work hard to allow these schools to continue on with their valuable mission, the educational advancement of young African Americans.

Mr. SISISKY. Mr. Speaker, thank you for this opportunity to speak on behalf of the positive influences that Virginia State University and Saint Paul's College, two Historically Black Colleges and Universities in my district, have had on Virginia in particular, and African American culture in general.

Virginia State University, located in Ettrick, Virginia, is America's first fully state supported four-year institution of higher learning for African-Americans. In its first academic year, 1883–84, the University had 126 students and seven faculty; one building, 33 acres, a 200-book library, and a $20,000 budget.

Tuition was $3.35 and room and board was $20.00

From these modest beginnings, Virginia State University now offers 27 undergraduate degree programs and 13 graduate degree programs.

The University, which is fully integrated, has a student body of 4,300, a full-time teaching faculty of approximately 170, a library containing 277,350 volumes, a 236-acre campus and a 416-acre farm, more than 50 buildings (including 15 dormitories and 16 classroom buildings), and an annual budget of $64,238,921.

I am pleased to have been on the Board of Visitors of Virginia State University.

When I was a delegate in the Virginia General Assembly, I sponsored the legislation which changed Virginia State College to Virginia State University.

Saint Paul's College, founded in 1888 in Lawrenceville, Virginia, is a small liberal arts college in which the attributes of integrity, objectivity, resourcefulness, scholarship, and responsible citizenship are emphasized. Over 15 undergraduate degrees are offered.

Its liberal arts, career-oriented, and teachereducation programs prepare graduates for effective participation in various aspects of human endeavor.

Intentionally small, its 600 students represent a wide variety of areas in the United States and several countries. However, the active campus life is characterized by a strong sense of camaraderie.

Education has always been very important to the people of Virginia. Whatever part of the Commonwealth you hail from, there is a place for our children to go for advanced learning.

Both Virginia State University and Saint Paul's College rank with the best colleges and universities in the country for preparing our young people to enhance this world.

As a Historically Black Colleges and Universities, the opportunities offered by these schools have been very important to the development of Virginia, and will continue to be for the future of this nation.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, Lincoln University, in Jefferson City, Missouri, is an historic black college that has served Missouri and our nation well since the latter part of the 1800s. Today, it serves as a beacon of education for our state of Missouri. I am so very proud of the faculty, the students, and its extension service, which have put this university on the map. I am pleased to represent such an outstanding institution.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO OFFER MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFERES ON H.R. 4577, DEPARTMENT OF LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, AND EDUCATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2001

Mr. GOODLING. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 7(c) of rule XXII, I hereby notify the House of my intention tomorrow to offer the following motion to instruct House conferees on H.R. 4577, a bill making appropriations for fiscal year 2001 for the Department of Labor, Health and Human Services and Education.

I move that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill, H.R. 4577, be instructed to increase Title VI Education Block Grant funding with instructions that these increased funds may also be used for the purposes of addressing the shortage of highly qualified teachers, to reduce class size, particularly in early grades; using highly qualified teachers to improve educational achievement for regular and special needs children, to support efforts to recruit, train and retrain highly qualified teachers, or for school construction and renovation of facilities at the sole discretion of the local educational agency.

MEDICARE MODERNIZATION AND PRESCRIPTION DRUG ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, tonight we want to discuss one of the measures that has passed the House of Representatives. Sometimes, we do not feel the need to discuss measures that have gone through committee and have passed the House, but since there has been so much misrepresentation about the legislation that passed the House on a bipartisan vote called the Medicare Modernization and Prescription Drug Act, and since the Presidential nominees are engaged in a spirited debate, I thought it would be worthwhile to take some time, one, to focus on what it is that the House actually did. but probably more important than the specifics is to put in context the way in which the prescription drug issue has been discussed.

I think the first thing that people have to remember is that as the former majority, the Democrats controlled the House the entire time Medicare was law, up until 1994. Indeed, when President Clinton was elected in 1992, the Democrats controlled the House, they controlled the Senate, and they controlled the Presidency. I find it rather interesting that at a time when they could do anything they wanted to do, they did not talk about putting prescription drugs in Medicare for seniors.

All right. Let us say that that issue is one which has matured only recently. However, let me tell my colleagues what I consider to be an even more telling fact. During the time the Democrats controlled the House and the Senate and the Presidency, they did not add any preventive care measures or wellness measures. Now, that I think is very telling, because it was pretty obvious even at that time that if we would do relatively aggressive screening on seniors for colorectal cancer, increase mammography, and especially tests for women with osteoporosis; and one of the real scourges is diabetes, and with education and early detection and treatment, we can make significant life-enhancing behavioral decisions; but none of those were part of a Medicare program that the Democrats offered.

In 1995, the Republicans became the majority in the House and in the Senate. We offered a series of reforms adding preventive and wellness and suggesting prescription drugs. Well, as some people may remember, the 1996 election was based upon a series of untruths, frankly, that Republicans were trying to destroy Medicare, that Republicans never liked the program and could not be trusted with it.

Well, as it is now historically recorded, in 1997, it was the Republican majority that, for the first time in the history of the Medicare program, put a preventive and wellness package together, and proposed a commission to examine the way in which we could successfully integrate prescription drugs into Medicare. Why? Because no one would build a health care plan, especially one for seniors today, that does not make medicines or prescription drugs a key part of the program.

Now, what we have heard from this well from a number of our Democratic colleagues about the Republican prescription drug plan and its modernization of Medicare are frankly untruths. They have attempted to use what they have unfortunately historically done during campaign seasons with prescription drugs, and that is, they have tried to scare seniors into believing that Republicans would never believe, notwithstanding the fact that we have mothers and fathers and aunts and uncles and now, for me, even sisters who are on the verge of turning 65; I hope I do not get an irate phone call on that statement; but I have a real concern about making sure that Medicare is relevant to today's seniors' health care needs and especially tomorrow's.

I mention that brief history because, as we talk about Medicare, suggested changes in Medicare, and the proposals that the Democrats have offered, including President Clinton and Vice President AL GORE in his race for the Presidency, and alternatives that Democrats may offer, I think it behooves all of us to stick to the facts; to talk about what the programs are. And there are differences between the Republicans' approach to reforming Medicare and providing for prescription drugs, and Democrats'. But one of the things we ought not to do is take the liberty with the truth.

One of the things I think we need to put in focus is the fact that, unfortunately, according to recent news reports, AL GORE was unable to contain himself and made up stories; made up a story about his dog and his mother-inlaw, which is already on thin ice, and comparing their use and price of drugs. I am sure it was quite a good story. He is good at telling stories. There is just one problem with it: It was not true; it is not true. He made it up.

I think it ironic that as the press and some of my colleagues focus on some verbal stumblings on the part of our Presidential candidate, he does not make things up; and that when one is challenged with the pronunciation of a word, I think it is significantly different than when one is challenged with the efficacy of a statement.

AL GORE lied. He was probably so overcome by the occasion that he felt he had to have a better story than the truth. And, actually, that is a perfect setting for the discussion of what the Republican prescription drug proposal and the modernization of Medicare is and the Democrats description of it.

The first thing they have said frequently is that our program is not in Medicare; it is not even an entitlement program. That is, it is not part of the traditional Medicare. It is something new, it is a risky scheme, and it is probably not going to be available.

During the debate, we were pleased to get a letter from the American Association of Retired People, and I do believe that in this instance it is better to rely on third parties describing what our program is rather than listening to us or to our opponents. Because what the American Association of Retired People said was, "We are pleased that both the House Republicans and Democrat bills include a voluntary prescription drug benefit in Medicare, a benefit to which every Medicare beneficiary is entitled." That is where they get the name entitlement. "And while there are differences, both bills describe the core prescription drug benefit in statute.

So there should be no misunderstanding, Governor George W. Bush's basic plan is a Medicare plan. The Republican plan, the bipartisan plan, the plan that passed the House, was a Medicare entitlement program. AARP says so. Do not take our word for it.

But what we want to spend a little time on tonight is the phrase that there are differences. Because if we do not have to worry about the fundamentals, that is they are both in Medicare, they are both an entitlement program, they are both voluntary, then maybe it might be worthwhile to stress what the differences really are. If once we have met the threshold that Republicans are not trying to destroy Medicare, that we are trying to improve Medicare, just as it was the Republican majority that added preventive and wellness and it was described as an attempt to destroy Medicare, let us spend a few minutes talking about how the plan that passed the House differs from the one that, for example, Vice President GORE wants to offer.

And in that regard I am joined by two of my colleagues tonight, both of them members of the Subcommittee on Health of the Committee on Ways and Means, which has the primary responsibility in the House jurisdictionwise of the part A Medicare program and shares the part B Medicare program with the Committee on Commerce. We have worked long and hard.

I was a member of the Medicare bipartisan commission that spent over a year examining the particulars. Both of my colleagues were close followers of that debate, read the material, and as we put together the plan that passed the House, we were focusing not on whether or not it was in Medicare but key things that I think seniors are concerned about, such as: Does it give me some choice? Do I get to choose or do I have to fit the plan I am told that I get? The idea that if someone cannot afford the drugs, how do we help them?

Whether an individual is low income, or even if they are not low income, whether the cost of the drugs that they are required to take are so expensive that even that lifetime earning they have put away would soon be lost.

Those are some of the key questions. But probably the most fundamental question, given the fact that we are going to put drugs now into Medicare, and we are at the very beginning of not an evolution but a revolution in the kinds of drugs that are going to be available to seniors, do we really want a one-size-fits-some government-regulated drug program; or would we rather have the professionals who do this every day for the other health care programs decide when and how we need to shift this mix to maximize the benefit to seniors?

That really is, when we strip away all of the scare terms and the untruths about the program, the real question. The differences that AARP has said are in the two plans. And when we begin to focus on the differences, I think we will find that there are not only quantitative differences in the plans but there are clearly qualitative differences as well.

Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania wish to talk about one or more of those differences?

Mr. ENGLISH. I would, and I want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) for raising this issue and leading this discussion tonight.

Every August I go back to my district and I take the time to have a series of town meetings, particularly with seniors. And as I went back this August, I attended meetings at senior centers and I went to Labor Day fairs, and when I talked to seniors this was the single topic that they seemed to be focused on. This is the single issue that seems to directly affect their lives almost regardless of their personal circumstances.

Seniors were telling me stories, and too many times that plot included skipped doses or the act of cutting pills in half in order to save money on the skyrocketing costs of prescription drugs. And in my district in northwestern Pennsylvania it is odd, but senior groups have felt obliged to charter buses to drive more than 2 hours to Canada in search of lower drug costs. That is an extraordinary anamnesis, a trip they should not have to be making, and it is just further evidence that we ought to be putting politics aside and trying to get signed into law a prescription drug plan that will protect seniors and relieve them from the expensive prescription drug market where they simply cannot keep up.

We have discussed different plans on the floor of the House, but the one thing we can all agree on is no senior should have to choose between buying food and buying their life-sustaining medicines. What I feel comfortable about is that this House has acted and has moved forward a bipartisan plan that offers a flexible and universal benefit that would really address the needs of seniors.

We in the House voted to provide a prescription drug plan under Medicare that really meets the needs of seniors virtually regardless of their circumstances, and we did it in the face of rancorous partisan opposition. We embraced a bipartisan model for extending prescription coverage to Medicare beneficiaries. Beyond that, we also all agree that seniors should have the right to choose whether or not they wish to enroll in the prescription drug benefit or maintain their current coverage.

The bipartisan plan that we passed is a balanced market-oriented approach targeted at updating Medicare and providing prescription drug coverage that is affordable, available and voluntary. And I credit the gentleman for having played a critical role in designing this plan. This plan provides options to all seniors, options that allow all seniors to choose affordable coverage that does not compromise their financial security.

The plan that the House passed would give seniors the right to choose a coverage plan that best suits their needs through a voluntary and universally offered benefit. On the other hand, as the gentleman alluded to, the plans offered on the other side, including the one offered by the Vice President, would shoehorn seniors, many of whom have private drug coverage which they are happy with, into a onesize-fits few plan. The Gore plan seems to give seniors one shot to choose whether or not to obtain their prescription drug coverage under Medicare. They have to choose at age 64 or forever hold their peace.

Under that plan, seniors are forced to take a gamble. At 64 they are asked to predict what the rest of their lives will be like. They are supposed to operate on assumptions that may change. And while their coverage may be adequate now, if heaven forbid illness were to strike and their current plan no longer suited their needs, sorry, under the Gore plan those seniors would be out of luck.

In my view, the House-passed plan addressed skyrocketing drug costs in the most effective possible way by providing Medicare beneficiaries real bargaining power through private health care plans that can purchase drugs at discount rates. This is a much more effective approach than rote price controls. Seniors and disabled Americans under the plan the House passed will not have to pay full price for their prescriptions, they will have access to the specific drug, brand name or generic, that their doctor prescribes.

Our plan provides Medicare beneficiaries with real bargaining power through group purchasing discounts and pharmaceutical rebates, meaning seniors can lower their drug prices certainly 25, perhaps as high as 40 percent. These will be the best prices on the drugs that their doctors say they need, not the drugs some government bureaucracy dictates. But I would say to the gentleman that I am concerned that other plans, such as the one offered by the administration, cannot give all seniors such a sizable discount on their prescription drugs. The CBO reports that seniors will probably see a discount of about half of what our plan offers.

The House-passed plan also is designed to allow seniors who have drug coverage to keep it, and help those who do not, get it. No senior will lose coverage as the result of this bill. Under the House plan, we are trying to help millions of seniors in rural areas without coverage to get it and to get prescription drugs at the best prices, and to have the choice of at least two plans.

Mr. Chairman, I feel that this plan is the best and the most flexible. And in Pennsylvania about two million seniors who rely on Medicare could choose to reduce their drug costs by enrolling in programs to supplement Medicare. Our plan gives all seniors the right to choose an affordable prescription drug benefit that best fits their own health care needs. By making it available to everyone, a universal benefit, we are making sure that no senior citizen or disabled American falls through the cracks. Mr. GORE claims to offer seniors a choice, but in reality he offers them a selection of one, one plan, Medicare, take it or leave it. That does not seem like much of a choice to me.

The House-passed bill also takes steps to modernize Medicare, and I think that is the core difference. The gentleman had asked me what the differences are, and this, to me, is one of the critical ones.

□ 2100

We take the first step to reform Medicare to create an independent commission to administer the prescription drug program. Mr. GORE's plan leaves Washington bureaucrats in control of senior benefits. These are the same bureaucrats who have made bad decisions here in Washington about Medicare+Choice plans like, for example, Security Blue in my district. They have not provided adequate reimbursements to districts like mine; and, as a result, we have seen a decline in benefits under Medicare+Choice and Security Blue.

I do not think those bureaucrats are the ones that we should be putting in charge of a Medicare prescription drug benefit making critical decisions that will affect not only pricing but also access to benefits for seniors throughout America

Mr. Speaker, I feel that there is a clear choice here. We have advocated a plan that gives seniors real choices, real flexibility, and allows them to customize their benefits to meet their needs. Mr. Speaker, those are the differences that I think are absolutely critical.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for his observations. Because although his State does not share its border with Canada in any significant way, he is clearly in a situation in which, because we failed to provide group purchases for seniors under a plan, they are forced to take some drastic measure.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my special order this evening order this evening.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, the key term is "flexibility." As I said, we are on the verge of a dramatic breakthrough and a number of drugs are going to be available that are not currently on the market.

One of the reasons that the nonpartisan analysts that we use to look at pieces of legislation said that our plan, the bipartisan plan that passed the House, had as much as twice the discount capability of the Democrats' plan, including the one that the Vice President has offered, is because of the flexibility; that we provide the opportunity to change the structure when the structure needs to be changed, not when the bureaucrats or the politics say it should be changed. And so, we really should not wait one day longer than necessary to provide the seniors this relief.

Now, I think it is also worthy to note that there are as much as two-thirds of the seniors that have some form of insurance protection; but even though they have it, they are in fear of losing it. And, of course, if they are part of the one-third that has none at all, they live in fear every day that something is going to happen in which their finances simply are not going to be capable, if they have them in the first place, of paying for some these miracle drugs, which do come at relatively high prices if they have to buy them at retail, as many seniors do today, instead of group purchases.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHN-SON).

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California, the chairman of the subcommittee that governs most of the Medicare program, for yielding to me.

I have been very pleased. First of all, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH) for his very thorough overview of the legislation that we developed in our committee. And I might say, over many months I have been very pleased that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have really taken an interest in prescription drugs.

The last few months, and actually in our last floor debate, we had a fullblown alternative developed. Had that been possible a year ago, we would have prescription drugs signed by the President now. But our subcommittee did start holding hearings on this matter at the very beginning of this session.

I must say, as a woman, I have been keenly aware of the need for Medicare to cover prescription drugs. It is simply a fact that 90 percent of all women over 65 have at least one chronic illness and 73 percent of women over 65 have at least two chronic illnesses. And, for this reason, because women tend to have more chronic illnesses and also live longer than men, they spend much more on prescription drugs than do men over 65.

It is also a fact that, for a lot of reasons in our society, that most women are retired on very modest incomes, oftentimes not so low that they benefit from our State medication subsidy programs. In Connecticut it is called COMPACE, and it is a wonderful blessing to low-income seniors. But to those just above the poverty income but struggling along on a very modest income, they get no help from the State program. They cannot afford insurance. They cannot afford preventative health care and, in fact, they commonly suffer from disabilities. But they do have in common a higher instance of chronic illness and therefore a greater need for regular weekly, monthly prescription drugs.

So it is extremely important to our seniors and extremely important to senior women that we integrate prescription drug coverage into Medicare. And so there are two things that are very important in this effort to gain coverage of prescription drugs under Medicare.

One is price.

Over and over, seniors will say to me, why, when we are such a big buying group, can we not negotiate lower prices at the pharmacist?

I want to congratulate the chairman for structuring a bill that will cut those prices 25 to 30 percent. Unfortunately, the Democrats' bill, because it does not involve competition, and we are going to talk about what that means to seniors in terms of the quality of drug coverage, but just from the point of view of price, because our Democrat colleagues' alternative does not allow more than one company to distribute drugs, they will reduce drug prices at the pharmacy only about 12 percent.

And since all the bills, whether it is the Democrats or the Republicans, the President or the Congress, involve 50 percent copayment for most seniors, whether it is 50 percent of $50 or 50 percent of $100 or 50 percent of $75 makes a lot of difference.

I just want to congratulate the chairman on the fact that the structure of his bill, and this goes back to not only the importance of achieving the goal, but how we do it, the structure of our bill will drive those prices down at the pharmacy 25 to 30 percent; and that will help seniors no matter what their income group, no matter how many drugs they have to buy, whether they have reached the catastrophic limit or they have not. So I am very proud that our bill will reduce prices at the pharmacy by 25 percent.

I would like to take a couple of minutes later on in the discussion to talk about the fact that our bill will also ensure many more drugs are available to our seniors.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I just want to give my colleagues a real-world anecdote to support what my colleague says. Because, clearly, as we talk about the flexibility, and as the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH) indicated, no one should have to choose between prescription drugs and food.

Using professional managers in dealing with seniors' drug needs directly addresses two fundamental problems with seniors and drugs today; and that is, the drugs are miracle workers, as I said, but oftentimes only if they take them as prescribed. And sometimes it is money. That should not be the case, but sometimes it is just failure to remember to follow a regimen. Professional management is important there.

I was in the Kern River Valley, and this is a predominant retirement senior area, and it was at a health fair and we began discussing this question of prescription drugs. And if my colleagues have not really experienced it first-hand, they just do not appreciate the other real problem that we face with seniors and prescription drugs and that is, many seniors are not on just one prescription drug or two or three.

There were about 200 seniors there; and I said, how many seniors here are on one prescription drug? Well, every hand in the place went up. How many are on two? Virtually none went down. How many are on three. All the hands went up. How many are on four? By the time we reached four, a couple hands went down. How many are on five? Still a majority. I went all the way up to 12 different drugs, 9, 10, 11, 12, until I finally got one hand. And I said, well, okay, you win. How many do you have? He said, as far as I can remember. 16.

So it is the failure, the tragic failure to not only provide availability or low price through the group purchasing but the management, the best way to allow seniors to enjoy this miracle is what we are missing and that professional management, that flexibility is what gives us the opportunity to tell seniors under our plan and the President's plan that, yes, they are going to have a prescription drug program that meets today's needs; but they are going to have tomorrow's needs met and the day after tomorrow the flexibility that gives us those discount savings that the nonpartisan professional saves twice as much as the Democrats or the Vice President's plan.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MCCRERY), who represents a different region than the ones we have been discussing but whom I am sure has similar concerns based on his seniors' needs and how a program is structured.

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) for convening this special order to talk about prescription drugs, and I thank the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) for bringing up the element of our prescription drug bill that does not get highlighted too much, which is the elements of price and price discounts. And she is exactly right. The Republican prescription drug bill that we passed through this House, on average, would give seniors a 25 percent reduction in the cost of their prescription drugs, that is every senior, not just low-income seniors, as some Democrats have tried to characterize our bill. Every senior gets that reduction in the cost of the prescription drugs.

Another element that is overlooked sometimes in the Democrats' characterization of our bill as one that leaves out millions of senior citizens is the element of the catastrophic coverage. That is available for every senior, not just low-income seniors, not just some seniors; but every senior who voluntarily subscribes to this prescription drug program would have the benefit of that protection, protection against those soaring drug costs that can afflict somebody with a range of illnesses, some catastrophic disease should that strike that person.

That senior will be protected no matter his income, no matter his status. If he opts to get into this voluntary program that we will have created through this legislation, he will receive that protection.

So I think it is important for us to explain to the American public that the bill we passed through this House of Representatives is not just a bill for low-income seniors. It does not leave millions of seniors out; it protects all seniors who voluntarily choose to subscribe to the program, and it is available for every senior without regard to the health status of the senior.

In other words, if the senior citizen already is on the 12 prescription drugs that the gentleman from California (Mr. Thomas) discovered one of his constituents was on, she is eligible for our program, just like the senior citizen who is not on any prescription drugs.

So, unfortunately, in some of the House races around the country, our prescription drug bill has been mischaracterized by Democrat opponents; and that is unfortunate, because what we passed through this House, I believe, is the best solution for guaranteeing a prescription drug benefit to the seniors in this country. It is the solution that involves the private sector in this country which has been so dynamic in delivering high-quality health care, unlike countries that have gone to government control of health care, dumb down basically the health care system, dumb down innovation in our health care system.

Our country, thank goodness, has continued to rely on the private sector to deliver that health care innovation. We want to do the same thing with prescription drugs, not fall back on a government solution that involves hundreds of mandates like the Democrat solution, the Gore solution. That would be catastrophic for this country if we were to let the Government take over prescription drugs in this land of ours.

□ 2115

I appreciate the gentleman allowing me a few minutes to talk about the fact that our prescription drug plan is for all seniors, not just for some, and it delivers high quality benefits to all seniors, not just some.

Mr. THOMAS. What is especially of concern to me about now, apparently the news media's understanding that the Vice President manufactured some facts to try to make his point is that there is a lot of reality out there that is better than made-up stories. What concerns me is that he knowingly made that story up. And I happen to personally believe that there are some of the Members in this body who have made up fictions about the plan that passed the House because they would rather have the issue than the solution. That is just to me reprehensible, when we could have already provided prescription drugs for seniors in Medicare.

It should not be part of a presidential debate. It should be part of the law. We are doing everything we can to make that happen, including create a bipartisan plan that passed the House when those Democratic leaders who wanted to make it an issue walked out of this body rather than engaging in an honest, direct debate about the flexibility of our plan versus the rigidness of theirs, the integration of the plan rather than theirs as an add-on, and probably, most important, the fact that we provide the drugs that your doctor believes you need, not a bureaucratic structure that may not provide that particular drug but will force you to an alternative. That is not the kind of choice that we believe seniors and their doctors ought to make.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. The gentleman makes an excellent point. Honestly, some nights I just lie in anguish because I know that by my colleagues making this a partisan decision, seniors in America are not going to get prescription drugs for another year and a half. Now, all the plans will take a year or two to put in place and if we cannot pass the bill for another year and a half, there are people in my district who are really truly desperate for this coverage, and that says to them, "Not for another 3 or 4 years." We could pass this this year. It is really almost a crime that our colleagues will not come together and help us do it. It needs to be bipartisan.

Now, we have talked about price, but there is one really important issue that you referred to that needs to be addressed. Seniors need to be able to have the drug that is appropriate to them. Some antidepressants, for example, work by making you sleepy. Well, if you are sleepy and you fall and break a hip, that is terrible. There are other antidepressants that do not make you sleepy, and your doctor ought to have the right to choose the one that works for you. Under our bill, I am proud to say every plan will have to provide not only multiple drugs in each category but what we call multiple drugs in each classification.

One of the problems with the proposal from the other side is that you have to only provide one drug in each category, and that means your doctor will not be able to choose the pharmaceutical product that is really good for you, that will interact fairly in a healthy fashion with your other medications, that will not give you side effects that will cause harm to your health or to your well-being. So I think in this fast-paced debate, it is kind of being overlooked, that we not only want a plan that gives seniors choices of drug plans but that we want within those plans for each one to provide a lot of choices of medications so each senior gets the medication that she or he needs and that doctors will have the right to choose the pharmaceutical agent that is best for that senior.

Mr. McCRERY. It is ironic that our plan has been attacked by the Democrats because we rely on the private sector to manage the benefit. They say, "Oh, gosh, you know, we just don't believe the private sector will do a good job of managing this benefit under Medicare. We should let HCFA, the Health Care Finance Administration which administers Medicare, also administer this prescription drug benefit."

What they do not tell you is that HCFA, the Health Care Finance Administration, would rely, would hire, a private sector entity to manage their business. Just as under our bill we would have private sector entities called PBMs, or pharmaceutical benefits managers, to provide this benefit around the country, only we would have multiple PBMs, not just one, the Health Care Finance Administration would hire under the Democrats' vision one single pharmaceutical benefits manager to manage this benefit. Well, if our plan is flawed because we are going to have a private sector entity, in fact a number of private sector entities, PBMs, manage the benefit, then theirs is flawed as well because HCFA relies on a private sector entity, a PBM, a single PBM to manage theirs. They say, "Oh, well, gosh, if that

They say, "Oh, well, gosh, if that happens, if we can't get a PBM to manage the benefit under our plan, well, we'll just let HCFA, the Health Care Finance Administration, manage the benefit." Well, that sounds good, I guess, but then when you examine the kind of job that HCFA is doing now with Medicare, managing Medicare, never mind prescription drugs because that is not part of Medicare, just managing Medicare, you see that maybe that is not such a good idea after all.

For example, in an effort to help senior citizens, this Republican-majority Congress just in the last couple of years passed a change to Medicare to benefit senior citizens with their copayments, with their coinsurance under Medicare, trying to reduce the amount of out-of-pocket costs to seniors. Well, in order to effect that, HCFA, the Health Care Finance Administration, has to create an outpatient prospective payment system to make that happen, to save those seniors those out-of-pocket costs. Guess what? They have not been able to do that yet. How many years have they had now, HCFA, to put this in place? How long has it been since we have directed them to do that, to save seniors money and they have not been able to put it in place?

Mr. THOMAS. That particular program 3 years, but actually there is one program on the statutes that has been 7 years languishing waiting for the Health Care Finance Administration to implement it through regulation.

Mr. McCRERY. So 7 years for that, 3 years for the one I am talking about that would benefit the pocketbooks of seniors that we passed in an effort to help seniors, and the very administration, the Health Care Finance Administration, that the Democrats want to rely on to deliver this new benefit, prescription drugs, has not been able in 3 years to perfect this mechanism to save seniors out-of-pocket costs. That to me is not much to rely on. To me, it is much safer to rely on the private sector, a robust private sector that is innovative and wants to get in the business of delivering prescription drugs to seniors and in fact is doing so in a number of group plans around the country

Mr. ŤHOMAS. I know the gentleman shares my frustration in trying to get the media and others to realize that folks on the other side of the aisle and, for example, the Democratic Party nominee for President make things up. They simply are not truthful about the programs. In fact, I have often thought, if you think about "Do You Want to Be a Millionaire," a couple of really good questions that should have a high dollar value to them because they would be very difficult for people to answer, and, that is, which party was the majority in Congress when preventive and wellness programs for seniors was put into Medicare? You would probably have to use one of the lifelines to realize that it was the Republican Party and not the Democrats. Better than that, which party was in the majority when for the first time in the history of the 35-year Medicare program a prescription drug program was voted off of the floor of the House? That should be way up around a quarter of a million, because the answer is the Republicans, not the Democrats.

But if you listen to AL GORE, if you listen to the Democrats who describe our program, frankly I believe you would have to say, less than truthful terms, we are out to destroy Medicare. That old Medicare partisan scare card unfortunately is being wheeled out once again in this election by the Democrats' presidential nominee, except I am pleased to say that he was so carried away with not dealing with the truth that the press has now found out that he simply makes things up.

Mrs. JOĤŇSON of Connecticut. I want to mention something that really has received no attention because it goes to what my colleague from Louisiana was saying. If you rely on the private sector and you have multiple plans out there, lower prices for seniors, better choices of pharmaceuticals, you also could use, and our seniors could have used it at this very time as HCFA is driving the Medicare HMOs out of the business, an ombudsman office. And our bill puts in it a new office that is separate from HCFA, within the government but separate from HCFA, who will help them when they need help, help them find the right coverage if they cannot find it, if they need to appeal the government's decision that they can or cannot have certain care.

Then this ombudsman will help them get the information together and make that appeal. Under current law, they have effectively no appeal rights. Here we are talking about a patient bill of rights for all under-65-year-old Americans, and that has passed through the House, we, the Republican majority, included in the prescription drug bill an appeals process so that every senior would have the right to appeal if they cannot have the right drug, if they cannot have the right procedure, if they need medical care that they are being denied, and this office of ombudsman who can help them get together the information they need, guide them through the process of appeal if they need to be guided through that appeal process, and help them whenever they need help in dealing with the government around the current Medicare plan.

I am very proud that we have set up this new independent office of ombudsman and also passed for every senior in America an appeals process that gives them those critical rights to speak up and say, "Wait a minute, I need that medical treatment, and I ought to have it and have someone neutral to turn to say, yes, actually you should have that medical treatment because you need it and Medicare should be providing it."

The breadth of our prescription drug bill, not only in the choices it provides seniors and in the pharmaceutical products it provides seniors, but also in restoring their rights as human beings under Medicare is really important for seniors to understand. I am proud we did it. I hope that over the course of the next few weeks we can join together, Republicans and Democrats, and of course our bill was bipartisan, but into a larger arena and get the President with us so that our seniors will not have to wait 3 years for prescription drug coverage.

Mr. THOMAS. I want to point out again that we are not talking about a risky scheme: we are not talking about something that is different than what seniors have now in terms of Medicare. The American Association of Retired Persons said that they are pleased that both the Republican and the Democrat bills include a voluntary prescription drug in Medicare, it is an entitlement, and what we have been talking about are the differences. We frankly think that when you talk about the differences, do not use scare tactics, do not say that this plan will not work because ironically, and the gentleman from Louisiana and my colleague from Connecticut know this, under the Al Gore plan, if they are not able to get those prescription benefit managers that you have talked about to do the job, which is to limit their professional experience and let a bureaucrat tell them what to do, if they are not doing it, the fallback provision in the Vice President's plan is to those insurance companies that the Democrats like to say, will say that our plan fails.

Our plan, which was passed on a bipartisan vote, reduces the cost of drugs to seniors up to twice as much as the Democrats' plan because it is flexible and it lets professionals make the decisions in a timely and professional manner. It may not seem like a big point now, but 4 or 5 years down the road when the senior finds out the drug they need is not one that is approved and therefore you do not get the group purchasing insurance premium value to it, when they realize that they do not have the flexibility, that they do not get to choose between plans, those differences that we are mentioning now will loom very large in the life of those seniors who need to choose and who need the flexibility of our program.

Mr. McCRERY. As the gentleman knows, one of the criticisms that Democrats have leveled at our plan is that the private sector insurance companies, the private sector pharmaceutical benefit managers will not participate in our plan. They will not offer a plan; therefore, we are not really offering seniors any choices. Well, the same criticisms were leveled in the State of Nevada, when Nevada's Republican Governor came up with a similar plan to provide prescription drugs in the State of Nevada.

And if I am not mistaken, and please correct me if I am wrong, but just recently the deadline came for submission of plans from the private sector or bids to participate in the Nevada State program and not only did the private sector step up to the plate and say yes, we will participate, but I believe Nevada had a choice from among at least five different plans.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, five different plans chose to compete for the business.

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, we will play in this game. We want to provide this benefit to your citizens in Nevada, so even though that same criticism was leveled at Nevada, the private sector will not participate. They do not like this plan.

We found at least there that that criticism was not warranted, and Nevada now has the luxury of choosing from among five different bids from the private sector to manage their prescription drug benefit in their State.

I predict, if our bill were to become law, we would experience the same thing. The private sector would step up to the plate and seniors would have multiple choices of plans as we have described.

Mr. THOMAS. And what we get out of that, as we repeated over and over, is the flexibility of choosing, but also the advantage through the competition of a lower price to the seniors, and, of course, given that the Medicare program is taxpayer financed, a lower cost to the taxpayers. We have to be concerned about the Medicare program, because it is not financially sound as we make these improvements, things like adding prescription drugs, we have to keep an eye on the bottom line costs 10 years out, 15 years out.

The intensive more than 1 year study that was undertaken by the bipartisan Medicare commission wound up unanimous in terms of the experts, whether they were professional, academia, in saying the one thing Medicare needs to preserve itself over the long run is a degree of competition and negotiation for the price of the services.

The plan we are talking about, the plan as indicated that the State of Nevada has put into place, provides the structure for that competition, which will produce, bend those growth curves a little, it will produce a plan that will save us money in the long haul. We are preserving Medicare by making sure that we can get the job done at the cheapest possible cost.

We are protecting seniors. We are, in fact, strengthening and simplifying the program. Now, that is not what we will hear from our colleagues on the other side of the aisle, because if they, in fact, were honest about the plan, we could focus on the differences, we could make adjustments, and we could provide seniors with prescription drugs in Medicare. That apparently is a choice that they have made that they do not want.

They want the political issue during this campaign. The Vice President is more than willing to make up stories that are not true to try to win the Medicare prescription drug debate. What happened to that slogan "I would rather be right than President?"

This particular candidate would rather make up stories in the attempt to convince people that his plan is better. It is not better. It is more costly. It is more limited. It does not provide the choices that this plan does, and it does not provide the savings in the long run, the competition and negotiations pro-

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I am glad the gentleman brought that up, as we have to conclude our discussion here. I am glad the gentleman brought up the issue of saving Medicare, because, indeed, if no changes are made to the Medicare system, we all know that it is not actuarially sound, and it will meet its demise. The program itself will meet its demise within about 20 or 25 years.

And when my generation, the baby boom generation, reaches retirement age, the Medicare program will not be able to provide benefits to my generation. So the gentleman makes an excellent point. The gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) also mentioned some of the reforms that we include, reforms of Medicare that we include in our prescription drug plan, which will facilitate the transition from the current Medicare system to a Medicare system that will be stronger, that will rely on competition in the private sector to drive down costs in the Medicare system and save Medicare for the long hall so that my generation and generations following mine will have the benefit of this program.

I appreciate the gentleman for yielding to me and saying that our plan does that, but the Vice President's does

Mr. THOMAS. I thank the gentleman for his comments. The solvency the day after tomorrow is important, the needs for tomorrow is important, but frankly we should not go one day longer than necessary to provide seniors with prescription drugs, and we ought not to keep talking about the issue. We did something, we passed it, especially when talking apparently coming from the Vice President is not truthful in the first place.

Mr. McCRERY. We passed it in a responsible way. I would admit.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I am very proud we are doing it in not only a way that will save and strengthen Medicare for future generations and provides more choice for seniors, but it provides more health care for seniors. Ours is the only bill that covers off-label uses of drugs. Since most of the cancer patients are over 65, and since many of the cancer treatments involve off label uses of drugs, only our bill provides coverage for most cancer treatments.

So we not only do it in an efficient, cost effective way that will strengthen Medicare in the long run for current seniors and future retirees, but we provide more choices and more health care. We need for the President to weigh in now and get our bill to his desk so every senior in America can have drugs as a part of Medicare now. Mr. THOMAS. Our bill provides that competition in negotiation, and the only thing I am really pleased about with Governor George W. Bush's plan is he gets it, he understands the need for that competition in negotiation to provide a better product, flexibility and choice, but ultimately at a cheaper

My only hope is that as we continue this very important debate, my druthers would be that we do not debate, we show action. We took that action in our hands, we passed a bill off the floor of the House, we would like to deal with legislation moving forward, but if it is apparently the way that the Democrats have chosen to be rhetoric, to talk about the needs, then I think, at the very minimum, what we would hope is that the Vice President, the Democrats' nominee for President, would not play fast and loose with the facts that, in fact, the debate be a truthful one.

This is a serious matter. It is not just partisan rhetoric. It is whether or not a senior gets the kind of lifesaving drugs they deserve at a price they can afford.

The bipartisan Republican plan that passed the House does that. We do not want rhetoric. We do not want debate. We want action. We have taken action. It is now up to the President and others. I thank both of my colleagues for participating and our colleague from Pennsylvania as well.

NIGHTSIDE CHAT

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Under the Speaker's nounced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. MCINNIS) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, as my colleagues recall, last evening I had an opportunity to address my colleagues and to speak about a number of different subjects. I would like to kind of do a quick summary or at least some additions or amendments to my comments last night based on some of what I saw today.

First of all, as many of my colleagues will recall last night I spoke about Pueblo, Colorado, and the home of heroes. This week is Patriots Week in Pueblo, Colorado, and there we are going to honor over 100 recipients of the Medal of Honor.

These are real heros, as I said last night, and I read the definition of heroes. And we do not have to explain to people what courage is and how courageous and brave these particular individuals were, we know that just because they are recipients of the Medal of Honor, they are amongst the most recognized, courageous and brave people in the history of this country.

I say with some sadness today that we lost one of our heroes who passed away at age 74, and I thought I would just read a brief paragraph or two about this particular hero. Douglas T. Jacobson, Douglas T. Jacobson who received the Medal of Honor was a Marine private, private in the Marine Corps for single handedly storming enemy positions on Iwo Jima, an action that resulted in the deaths of 75 Japanese soldiers, died in August. He had congestive heart failure.

Iwo Jima is often remembered for the photograph of the five Marines and the Navy Combat Medic raising the American flag on February 23, 1945, but the carnage of what occurred there was one, as described, as one of the most savage and most costly battles in the history of the Marine Corps.

This was taken from the obituary out of the New York Times. Unfortunately, obviously, Mr. Jacobson will not be in Pueblo, Colorado, but to his family, we mourn his passing and want them to know in Pueblo this week we will think about him. We will think about the action that he took on behalf of this country.

Moving on to another subject. I talked last night about the entertainment world, specifically I focused in on some of the video games that we can pick up or rent at the store or pick up or go down to the video arcade and play. I showed you a demonstration of some of them, including one which is called the Kingpin. And on the Kingpin, as I mentioned last night, you are actually able to put this video game on your video and focus in on the exit wounds of the person that you shot.

The game itself encourages you to be like a tough gang person and wipe out your opponents. And it is a gross miscarriage of, in my opinion, of responsibility, community responsibility, by some individuals, not all individuals, but by some individuals in the entertainment industry.

Mr. Speaker, I said yesterday in my comments that I felt that I probably represented 1 percent, maybe 2 percent, 3 percent of that entertainment industry that put that kind of trash out. Tonight while I was waiting for my opportunity to address my colleagues, I was back reading the New York Times.

And I noticed a story and I would like to say or comment on a response that was given to our concern in the United States Congress, our concerns as parents, parents who have young children that many of our constituents do, we expressed the concern of a lot of people and a lot of communities across this country.

Here is the response of one of the people of the entertainment industry, a guy named Larry Casinof, he is president of Threshold Entertainment, a company that makes, among other things, movies based on action oriented video games like Mortal Kombat and Duke Nukem.

Here is his comment about what Congress says about these video games, about what parents and communities are saying about these video games. I think it is a bunch of weasels scrambling for votes; that is exactly what this fellow calls my colleagues up here who express concern about the entertainment industry that small portion of the entertainment industry which puts this kind of garbage out there to be sold to our young people, with the intent of influencing our young people.

Let me tell you it would be interesting to call Larry on the phone and I wish had his phone number because I would call him this evening. In fact, if I could, I would bring a phone on to the floor, it is not allowed, but I would bring it to the floor and let my colleagues hear in the microphone, and I would ask Larry the question, Larry, do you have any children? My guess is he probably does.

Let us see. Larry, how young are they? And I would hope that his children are young. I would say Larry, do you buy these games? Do you buy Mortal Kombat, and do you buy Duke Nukem or do you buy Kingpin games for your own children? Do you allow your children to play the same kinds of games that you are profiting from by marketing to your neighbor's children, to your community's children, to your State's children, to the Nation's children.

My guess if Larry who has got the big mouth and says you are nothing but weasels if you question my integrity on putting this kind of trash out, my bet is he does not allow his kids near this stuff.

□ 2145

I think this guy is a self-righteous guy, and I do not mind saying it on the House floor; and I sure wish he would take a second look at his community responsibilities.

I sure wish he would take a look at some of the tragedies that we have suffered, some of the school shootings, Columbine High School, for example, in Colorado. I think he ought to take a look and say, gosh, are the people that are really worried about this, should we consider them vote-getting weasels or maybe, just maybe, it is somebody who is worried about the communities that they represent. I hope I get an opportunity some day to meet this fellow because I would like to ask him that question.

THE LIBERAL MEDIA BIAS

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, let me move on from there and mention something else. Obviously, we are in the presidential election; and when you get into an election that is as intense as this election is, the question always comes up, does the media favor one candidate over the other. Now, of course, as many of you know, obviously, I am a Republican, and I am concerned. I think that there is a liberal bias to the media in this country, not all of the media, obviously. We have many papers, the Wall Street Journal editorials which I think are outstanding. We have the Washington Times, but on a whole I think most people would agree that the media has a very liberal bent to it; that the media favors AL GORE as the next President of the United States. I think it has been clearly demonstrated in the last few days.

I guess a couple of weeks ago, an advertiser hired by George W. Bush put an ad out that had rats or something on the ad. You could not believe it. Many of you saw it. That became the headlines and the starting news story on the newscasts in the evening. They have played this story over and over and over and over. That word did not come out of George W. Bush's mouth, but they tagged him with it; and they have been tagging him day after day after day.

Well, another big issue that has come up in this presidential election is prescription drugs; and as I said last night, look, do not buy into what the liberal Democrats, not all Democrats because moderate and conservative Democrats do not necessarily agree with the liberal Democrat philosophy, but do not buy into their philosophy that they have the magic answer and that you are going to get something for nothing.

Prescription drugs are a huge problem in this country. Our medical delivery system is a huge problem in this country; but the quick and easy answer, especially for a politician, is to promise all of you that you can get something for nothing; that the government will take all the responsibility; you do not have to worry about individual responsibility anymore; we will do it for you and it will not cost you anything.

Prescription drugs are a big issue, but they have to sell this. Hillary Clinton attempted this about 8 years ago. She attempted, and I will say the polls were way up here, it took a lot of guts to stand up against Hillary Clinton and the national health care plan that GORE and Clinton supported 8 years ago, but the American people did not buy into it. Once they had time to evaluate it, once they understood what the consequences of a national health care plan would be, once they understood how poorly the government managed its current health care delivery system, like veterans benefits, like Medicare, like Medicaid. Once they realized this, they did not buy into that.

Initially, when the Hillary Clinton proposal came out to offer a nationwide socialized health care plan, the polls supported it, the majority of Americans said hey, we are tired of paying the kind of prices, we are tired of getting it stuck to us by insurance companies and frankly in a lot of cases they were. So they supported this plan until they began to look at the details. But during that period of time, until the American people had time to let the details settle out, until they had time to weigh what the consequences were of this nationalized socialized health care plan, there was a lot of propaganda put out there.

Well, you know what? We are seeing the same kind of thing. You know what is happening? The media is giving AL GORE a free ride on it. Let me say exactly what I am talking about. Not all of the media, obviously, because this headline came out of the Washington Times. AL GORE, to try and push his numbers higher against George W. Bush, has gone out and we have seen this history with AL GORE in the past, AL GORE at one point said that the movie Love Story, which my generation remembers, that Love Story was written about him and his wife, Tipper. AL GORE went on later to say that he is the one who invented the Internet, and now in the last couple of days AL GORE has stood in front of senior citizens, and I will say one of the ways that the liberal Democrats are selling their plan and are attacking the conservative or moderate Republican/Democrat plan is by the doctrine of fear, so a couple of days ago AL GORE stood up in front of a group of senior citizens and he said to these senior citizens, he said my mother-in-law, who lives with us, has arthritis and she has to pay, and I think the number was $138 a month for her prescription every month, and he says our dog has arthritis and the same drug that is administered to that dog, why that prescription costs, I think he said $37 a month.

Well, you know what? Afterwards, some people began asking questions, well, what was the price of this drug and what was the price of that drug? And this is the result: GORE made it up. He made up the antidote about the cost of the drugs. His own staff admitted that AL GORE made it up.

In all fairness, and talk about fairness here, do you think that the media has put this out? This came directly from AL GORE's mouth, by the way. Whereas this rats ad, or whatever it was, did not come from George W. Bush; it came from an advertisement authorized by his campaign or whatever. But do you think the media has done much about this?

Frankly, AL GORE has had some problems with credibility with the administration that he is associated with, but he says now he is his own man; but yet he stands in front of the American public and he lied to us about this. He fabricated. That is the word they are using, not the word lie. He fabricated the facts because it sounded good.

Of course, it is alarming that the average person would pay $138 or something a month for prescription drugs and the same drugs used on the dog would be $37 a month. That is unfair. On its face, its outrageous. Of course, we sympathize with the Vice President. Of course, we are drawn in by AL GORE's story. He told that story for a purpose, to get votes, to get your votes, Mr. Speaker. Yet now his staff admits well, he fabricated the story.

At the beginning of my comment in regards to this issue, I said take a look at whether you are a liberal Democrat, whether you are a conservative serving up here, whether you are a moderate, take a look from a nonpartisan point of view and see if there is fair play going on out there with the media. Ask the media, hey, why is not this story being played up like these other stories? I can say if that was not GORE but Bush who made up the antidote about the cost of drugs, it would be the lead story on every national broadcast in this Nation. It would be the lead story, bold headlines in a lot of newspapers across this country. They would unmercifully attack Bush for this kind of little example. But look what happened. It is a small story in a lot of these newspapers.

My point tonight is to demonstrate to you, as we get in these presidential elections, we do not have a level playing field, in my opinion, with a lot of the media out there on this presidential race. I am saying, Mr. Speaker, most of our constituents, in my opinion, will eventually see through this, and I hope most of our constituents have an opportunity to stand back and make an educated decision on who they want to support for the White House.

Well, let me move off of this subject.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Members are reminded that suggesting dishonesty of the Vice President or questioning his credibility are violations of the rules of the House.

Mr. McINNIS. Inquiry of the Speaker. That is a headline on a newspaper. Is that what the Speaker is referring to, is an objection to the headline off the Washington Times that says that the Vice President misled?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Rules of the House, quotes from a newspaper read in debate are held to the same standard as if spoken in the Member's own words.

FUN FACTS ABOUT WATER

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I will move on to a new subject now and that is on water. I want to talk this evening about water. Water is a fun subject to talk about. Really, it is kind of boring. In Colorado, we are a State that has critical reliance on water, but I thought before we begin the discussion in earnest about the State of Colorado, I thought I would go through some fun facts that impact all of our colleagues out here, all of our constituents; some neat things, interesting things to learn about water.

As I begin this, most people do not think much about water unless it does not come out of the taps, or they do not think much about the quality of water unless their water is dirty. There are some major issues that evolve around the natural resource of water. Water is the only resource we have that naturally renews itself. It does not expire upon its use.

So I thought we would go over some interesting things that I have found about water. It would be kind of fun for us this evening to take a lighter moment and talk about some of these things.

First of all, I have titled this little chart, which obviously you can tell I have slapped this thing together, but there are some interesting things. Who was the American explorer who compared the western plains to the sandy deserts of Africa? Zebulon Pike, Pikes Peak of Colorado. Another interesting fact, and this pertains mostly to Colorado, but the largest reservoir in the State of Colorado is the reservoir called the Blue Mesa Reservoir.

Next, what percent of water treated by the public water systems is used for drinking and cooking? In other words, all of the water that is treated nationwide by your public treatment system, how much of that is used for drinking and cooking? Less than a percent. That is an interesting fact. I thought it was more than that.

In fact, I thought most of the water that was processed by your treatment facility plant was used for drinking and cooking, but less than 1 percent of it actually is.

What river in Colorado used to be called the Grande River? That is the Colorado River, and we are going to go in later on a little more depth about the Colorado River. It is called the Mother of All Rivers.

Kentucky blue grass, an interesting point here, uses 18 gallons of water per square foot for each year. Tall fescue and wheat grasses use 10 and 7 gallons of water per square foot each year, respectively.

Riparian habitat makes up less than 3 percent of the land in Colorado but is used by over 90 percent of the wildlife in the State, which points out how important riparian habitat is; and our technological advances have shown us over the last 20 or 30 years why these riparian areas are so important for our wildlife.

Eighty-seven percent of the water leaving Colorado flows out of the Colorado River Basin towards the Pacific Ocean. The remaining 13 percent of water that leaves Colorado flows out of the Missouri, the Arkansas, and the Rio Grande River Basins towards the Atlantic Ocean. So 87 percent of water in the State of Colorado, and for a lot of you that are not from Colorado you will see why there are many references to Colorado, not just because I am from there but Colorado is really a critical State in the western States when we talk about the issue of water. As I just said, 87 percent of the water that goes into Colorado flows towards the Pacific Ocean and 13 percent of that water flows towards the Atlantic Ocean.

I might also add that Colorado is the only State in the Union where all of the free-flowing water goes out of the State. There is no water in the Continental United States, in any State in the Continental United States, like Colorado, that flows into Colorado. Colorado does not have any. It is an exception of one.

Producing a typical lunch hamburger, french fries and soft drink, this is hard to believe, uses 1,500 gallons of water; a typical drink, french fries and a hamburger. By the time you are able to grow the resources, produce the resources that are necessary to come up with your final product, you have gone through 1,500 gallons of water. It includes the water needed to raise the potatoes, the grain for the bun and the grain needed to feed the cattle and the production of the soda.

Let me move over here. The natural rotation of the earth, now this is one of the most amazing water facts that I have seen and for 18 years I have studied water, the natural rotation of the earth has been altered slightly by the ten trillion, ten trillion tons of water stored in reservoirs over the last 40 years, according to NASA.

So of the 10 trillion tons of water that is stored, it has actually altered slightly the rotation of the earth.

The Platte River, whose name means flat, was named by French trappers and explorers. The Native Americans in the region called it the Nibraskier, a similar word for flat.

The hottest spring water in the State of Colorado, 82 degrees Celsius, 180 degrees Farenheit is found in Horse Tents Hot Springs in Chaffee County. The largest hot spring in Colorado is the big spring in Glenwood Springs with a maximum discharge greater than 2,200 gallons per minute. I am from Glenwood Springs, Colorado, and I hope that many of you have already been through Glenwood Springs. It is a small town, a beautiful town, located about 40 miles north of Aspen, Colorado. If you have driven to Aspen, especially in the winter, you had to go through Glenwood Springs, and as you go over the bridge, if you go through there again, take a look and you will see that huge hot springs.

In May 1935, 10 miles south of Kiowa, 24 inches of rain fell in 6 hours. Note that the average for Colorado in a year, in a year in Colorado, the average precipitation we get is 16.5 inches, and here in Kiowa County, they actually got 24 inches in 6 hours. Grand Lake is 265 feet deep, the deepest natural lake in Colorado.

From 1820 to 1846, the boundary of the United States with Mexico was the Arkansas River. That was the actual boundary between the United States and Mexico, the Arkansas River. Wolford Reservoir, which is one of our newer reservoirs, located 7 miles north of Kremmling, Colorado, opened to the public over Memorial Day weekend, the 5.5 mile long reservoir covers about 1,400 acres and has a capacity of 26,000 acre feet and costs about $42 million to build.

Now, in our discussion this evening about water, we will be talking about acre feet, so it is a good time to define exactly what I mean by acre feet. An acre foot of water means that the amount of water over a 1-year period of time that would cover 1 acre 1 foot deep. Now, that is what an acre foot of water is. Eighty-nine percent of Colorado's naturally occurring lakes are found at altitudes above 9,000 feet.

Now, let us talk a little bit about Colorado and why this altitude is different or important. Colorado is the highest State in the Union. In fact, the district that I represent, the Third Congressional District of Colorado, which, geographically, is larger than the State of Florida, is the highest congressional district in the Nation.

In Colorado, we depend very heavily on the precipitation that occurs on those high points at that high elevation. That is what creates 80 some percent, and we will look at that statistic a little later on, but 80 some percent of the water as a result of the snowfall at that high precipitation. So as we point out here, 89 percent, almost 90 percent of our natural lakes are found at altitudes of 9.000 feet or high-

The average humidity that we have in Colorado is about 38 percent; technically, 37.9 percent. There are more than 9.000 miles of streams and 2000 lakes and reservoirs open to fishing in the State of Colorado. A dry wash, we often hear the term dry wash. What that really means, they are stream flows that occur only for a short period of time after the snow melt or after a rain storm, something like this. That is what they call a dry wash, or gulch,

Let me shift over here. The South Platte waters is used in the following ways. This is interesting. The South Platte, which is a major river in the State of Colorado, 10 percent for city and industrial use, 65 percent for irrigation, and 3 percent of the water for reservoir evaporation. Twenty-two percent of the water leaves that State.

Now, let us talk for a moment, leave this and talk just for a moment about water in general. Mr. Speaker, 97 percent, 97 percent of the water in the world is salt water, and of that 97 percent, 75 percent of the balance, so we have 97 percent of the water in the world is salt water, so we have 3 percent of that left, and 75 percent of that 3 percent is water that is tied up in the polar ice caps. So we can see that less than half of a percent is fresh water in this world that we would find in lakes and streams. Mr. Speaker, 73 percent of that stream flow in the United States is claimed by States east of a line drawn north to south along the Kansas-Missouri border. So 73 percent of the stream flow in this Nation is in the eastern United States. And, most of our rainfall occurs in the East, not in the West.

In fact, in many States in the East, their problem is getting rid of water. Our problem in the West is the ability to retain the water. Mr. Speaker, 12.7 percent of the water is claimed by the Pacific Northwest, which means that only 14 percent, about, 14.2 percent to be technical, so approximately 14 percent of the water, of the total stream flow of fresh water is shared by 14 States and these 14 States geographically consume more than one-half of the Nation in land area. Of those 14 States, Colorado sits at the apex. Again, back to the high elevation of the State of Colorado.

In Colorado, our high altitude semiarid climate, we have 85 million acre feet, of the 100 acre feet we get approximately a year of moisture that falls in the State as precipitation. So we have about 100 million acre feet. Here is an interesting statistic. Of that 100 million acre feet, approximately 85 million acre feet of that goes away in evaporation or goes away in what we would call transpiration through where the plants take the moisture from the soil and it essentially evaporates through the leaves of the plants.

Let us go back here for some other interesting statistics that I think will help give us a good idea of just how critical water is and how critical it is going to be in our future. Mr. Speaker, 48 million people in the United States receive their drinking water from private or household wells. In Colorado. water must be diverted for a purpose and for beneficial use. The reason I put this in there is that Colorado water law is very unique.

Our water law in the West is significantly different than the water law in the East. In the West, water actually is a private property right. One can actually own the water separate from the land. In some States in this Union, the water and the land go together. But in Colorado, they can be separated. In Colorado, it is necessary, and in the West in general, it is necessary for us to divert water.

Basically, in Colorado, we have as much water as we could possibly need during what is called the spring runoff, which lasts from about 60 to 90 days. But once that spring runoff is finished, the States in the West have to rely very heavily upon water storage. If we do not have the water stored, we do not have the ability to use it for the balance of the year that we do not have spring runoff. That is why water storage is so critical in the West.

What is interesting is that a lot of what we would call, I guess, politicians in the East criticize water storage in the West. It is because they are talking about two entirely different systems. It is almost as if we have two entirely different countries based on water differences. In the East, the water comes much heavier and it is treated, even legally is treated differently than the water needs and the water facts of the West, which is very important to remember as we go on here.

In the United States, approximately 500,000 tons of pollutants pour into our lakes and rivers each day. That is why all of us continue towards this effort of clean water and clean lakes. Now, we cannot be so extreme as to say, look, we cannot flush our toilets because there is a pollutant in the toilet. What we have to do is figure out where that balance is with the use of water, without getting too extreme on one side or the other side. It is interesting here that if you spill four quarts of oil, a can, four quarts of oil in a sewer system, by the time it is done, you will have about an eight-acre oil spread, eight acres, as a result of four quarts of Those are the kinds of things that we have to be very sensitive with about. That is why we have to be careful about the pollutants that are in our water sources and our water supplies. This is interesting. The maximum 24hour snowfall in the United States is 75 inches which occurred in the mountains of Colorado in 1921. Can we imagine, 75 inches of water in a 24-hour period of time.

Here are some other interesting facts. We will jump down here. Well, right here. Evidence indicates that an ancient irrigation system was found at Mesa Verde and may have been in use by 1000 AD or even earlier. It is interesting, the Anasazi down in the Mesa Verde National Park, down in the four corners of Colorado, and by the way, if vou have not been down to the Mesa Verde National Park, you have to go. Take a look at the Anasazi Ruins, they were fabulous. These people that lived in the cliffs, they were called the Cliff People, and that is where we find the first indication of the use of a dam in the United States, and it was by the Anasazi people who would go down by the stream below the cliffs, and the water, as I said, Colorado is an arid State, averages 161/2 inches of rain or precipitation in a year. So they would go down and store their water. That is the first indication we found of the use of a dam.

In Colorado, for a dam, we actually have a ditch, the San Luis People's Ditch, which has been in operation since its construction in 1852. That is the oldest irrigation system that we have that is still in continuous operation in Colorado. Fresh, uncompacted snow, and this is important to remember about the snowfall that comes down. In Colorado, we have an arid climate. As I said earlier, our humidity averages about 37 percent. But did we know that those snow flakes, when you are out there skiing in Colorado or just walking in the snow, those snow flakes that you see, 90 to 95 percent of that snowflake is trapped air. Mr. Speaker, 90 to 95 percent of that snowflake that we see at least in Colorado is 90 to 95 percent trapped air and I think that percentage is probably very similar in Washington, D.C., or up in Connecticut, or New Jersey when it snows.

Denver, Colorado has an average snowfall of about 60 inches per year, and the snowiest season occurred in 1908 where they had 118 inches. Avalanches killed 914 people in the United States between 1990 and 1995. On an average year, on an average year, most of the avalanche deaths actually occur in my congressional district out there in Colorado, because the Third Congressional District of Colorado basically has all of the mountains of Colorado. There are some that are outside of it, but for the most part, the mountains in Colorado are in the Third Congressional District, and avalanche is a huge danger that we have to deal with. But I can tell my colleagues this in a little promotion here which I do not think it is against the rules; I hope my colleagues ski, we have the best skiing snow in the United States. Try some of our resorts, Aspen, Vail, Steamboat, Beaver Creek, Powder Horn, Purgatory.

Let us go back to water. Water usage, this is one of the most interesting charts that I have come across in regards to water. Follow through with me when we talk about water usage. Americans are fortunate. We can turn on the faucet and get at the clean, fresh water that we need. Many of us take water for granted. Have we ever wondered how much water you use each day? Here is an idea. For the average person out there, I say to my colleagues, this will give us an idea of what the average person in America uses, the basic needs for water each day. Direct uses of water, again, this is daily, drinking and cooking, the average person uses about two gallons of water a day to drink and cook with. Flushing the toilet, between five and seven gallons per day, or excuse me, per flush, I am sorry, per flush. Washing machine, 20 gallons per load. The dishwasher, 25 gallons per load. Taking a shower, seven to nine gallons of water per minute while you are in that shower.

Now, growing foods takes most of the water. In this country, a lot of people, if you ask what consumes most water, one, they will not think of evaporation and maybe it is a misleading question, because evaporation really zaps up our biggest amount of water, but right behind it, the number one use of water in this Nation is the growing of food.

It is in agriculture. Every day in the super market we take for granted how much water is necessary to grow that food. Well, here is a good example of what is necessary. If we have one loaf of bread, by the time we grow the grain and so on and so forth to produce that one loaf of bread, we have used 150 gallons of water, 150 gallons of water. To give us an idea, I am sure many of my colleagues drink bottled water like I do. I stop at the convenience store. I am trying to get away from a pop and buy a bottle of water. Multiply, think of what you have in that container, see how many of those containers it takes to make a gallon and then multiply that times 150, and that is how much of the water you are holding in your hands is going to be required for one loaf of bread.

Mr. Speaker, one egg, one egg is 120 gallons of water; 120 gallons of water is necessary to produce 1 egg. A quart of milk, one quart of milk requires 223 gallons of water. These are numbers we cannot even imagine. If you would have given me this chart, given me just to you the right-hand side of the chart, colleagues, and ask me to fill in the gallons, I would not have even come close to these numbers. One pound of tomatoes, 125 gallons of water for a pound of tomatoes; 1 pound of oranges, 47 gallons; 1 pound of potatoes, 23 gallons of water. As we go down here, it takes more than 1,000 gallons of water to produce three balanced meals a day for one person.

So for every person, every one of my colleagues, if we have three balanced meals in a day, it has taken over 1,000 gallons of water to produce that food for us.

What happens to 50 glasses of water? If we had 50 glasses of water, very interesting, now, remember that evaporation is considered a portion in this, but what happens to our 50 glasses of water, if we had 50 glasses of water lined up, 44 glasses, as demonstrated right here, 44 of these glasses would be used for agriculture, for growing the food products that we eat; three glasses would be used by industry; two glasses would be used by the cities; and a half a glass would be used in the country.

I think this chart demonstrates just how critical water is. Now, obviously, we all know most of our body is made up of water, so we do not have to educate people about the importance of water. But it is interesting to just see how water interplays with everything that we do in any given day and how the circumstances of water are a lot different in the West than they are in the East.

Let us go back to Colorado. As I mentioned to my colleagues earlier, Colorado is the only State in the continental United States where all of our water flows out. We have no free-flowing water that comes into Colorado for our use. That is a very important issue here. So I thought I would point out particularly, colleagues, why in Colorado water is our lifeblood. It was written by Thomas Hornsby, the poet, and it is inscribed in our State capital that out in the West life is written in water.

Here is an idea of what flows out of the State of Colorado. It gives us the average annual outflow of major rivers through 1985. So while the statistic is through 1985, it still holds pretty accurate today. Our total that we show here is about 8 million acre feet. The total of all rivers in Colorado is about 10.5 million acre feet

We have up here, out of the South Platte, about 400,000 acre feet of water that flow out every year. We have the Republican River, about 14,000 acre feet. Over here we have the Arkansas River, which is 133,000 acre feet. Down here on the Rio Grande we have 313,000 acre feet. Over here on the Animas River we have about 663,000 acre feet. Up here on the Yampa River we have 1,500,000 acre feet. And here on the Colorado River, the river that I mentioned earlier in my remarks known as the mother of rivers, the Colorado River, earlier named by the Indians as the Red River and then later changed to the Grand River and then later Colorado, Colorado is the Spanish name for red, is 4,540,000 acre feet; 4,540,000 acre feet out of just the Colorado River.

What is Interesting here are our different river basins, and I will go through those very briefly with my colleagues. We have a good map here in color that gives a pretty clear demonstration of what we call the four major river basins. We have four major basins that drain most of Colorado. All of these river basins in this State are at the apex of those 14 States which consume over half the Nation.

Lots of statistics here but, needless to say, Colorado is the critical piece of the puzzle for western water. When we take a look at that, we have four major river basins. We have the South Platte, also known as the Missouri River Basin; we have the Colorado River Basin here in the purple; here in kind of the bland green we have the Rio Grande River Basin; and over here in the lighter green we have the Arkansas River Basin.

I thought I would talk about each of these river basins. First of all, the Missouri, which is up here in the red, and that is up in what I would call the northeastern part of the State of Colorado. Its primary river in the Missouri Basin or the South Platte River Basin is the South Platte River. Now, the South Platte River drains the most populous section of the State and serves the area with the greatest concentration of irrigated agricultural lands. So the greatest concentration of irrigated agricultural lands in Colorado is up in this section of the State.

The main stem of the river flows north, then east, and meets the North Platte in southwestern Nebraska. The South Platte River, which starts here, follow my pointer here, that is the South Platte River, up into Nebraska, is 450 miles long, with 360 miles of that in the Colorado River.

Rivers east of the divide. Now, remember that we have what we call a Continental Divide which runs from Mexico to Canada. And through Colorado it basically goes, following my pointer, basically goes like this. And on the east side, rivers east of the continental divide eventually will flow to the Atlantic Ocean from Colorado. Rivers here on the west side of the Continental Divide eventually flow to the Pacific Ocean and to the Gulf of Mexico. All the way from here to the Gulf of Mexico or to the Pacific Ocean.

The Arkansas River Basin, again down here in this lighter green, begins in the central mountains near Leadville, Colorado. It flows south and east through the southern part of Colorado towards the Kansas border. The Arkansas River, this river right here which I am following here with my pointer, that river is 1,450 miles long, and 315 miles of that river are in the State of Colorado.

We move over here to the Rio Grande River. Again, back to my pointer here, that is the Rio Grande in this kind of bland green here. The Rio Grande drainage basin is located in south central Colorado and it is comparatively small, with less than 10 percent of the State's land area. The Rio Grande River is 1,887 miles long, with 180 miles in Colorado.

And now, let us talk for a moment about the Colorado River Basin. The Colorado River Basin, of course, is this area that is located right here in the purple. That is the Colorado River. We can see how many rivers and tributaries come into the Colorado. There is the Gunnison, the Roaring Fork, and in that river basin we also have the Yampa River, the White River, and the Animas River, and we could continually go down, but the Colorado River, the Colorado River, the Colorado River system, drains over one-third of the State's area.

Twenty-five million people use water out of this basin for drinking water. Twenty-five million people depend on Colorado, specifically the Colorado River Basin, which is a good portion of western Colorado, 25 million people depend on their drinking water from this area of Colorado. Less than 20 percent of the Colorado River basin lies inside Colorado. So the length of the Colorado River Basin, less than 20 percent of that Colorado River is in that basin. But 75 percent of the water, 75 percent, goes into this basin comes from the State of Colorado.

It provides clean hydropower. We have 2 million acres of agriculture in the Colorado River Basin, and the Colorado River is 1,440 miles long, with just 225 miles of it in Colorado. Although, as I said, Colorado, in that 225 miles, puts 75 percent of the water into that river.

Now, the Colorado River Basin, our native flow, basically is close to 11 million acre feet a year. There are a lot of statistics here, but let me say to my colleagues that what we have become very dependent upon, if we flip this over very briefly, or if we pretended for a moment that this was the United States of America and we divided the country in half and we were to call this the western United States and we would call that the eastern United States, the critical factor to remember about water is that geographically there are two entirely different systems.

Water in the East has many, many different dynamics than water in the West. That is why when I talk with my colleagues, when I talk with them about water issues in the West, it is so important for my colleagues to remember that the water issues my colleagues face here in the East are different. There are different dynamics, there are different geographical constraints, there are even different uses and storage of the water.

Storage in the West is absolutely critical. If these States in the western United States did not have the water storage, for example, like Lake Powell, we would be in a real hurt. We could not exist on these lands, one, if we did not divert water from the streams; and, two, if we were not able to store the water.

I just pulled out Lake Powell. I do not know, I wonder how many of my colleagues have ever been to Lake Powell. It is spectacular. In fact, Lake Powell is so large that it has more shoreline than the entire Pacific West Coast. More shoreline in Lake Powell than the entire Pacific West Coast. It is one of the primary family recreation spots in the western United States. There are not many families in the western United States that do not know about Lake Powell, but there are a lot of families in the eastern United States that are not aware of the importance of Lake Powell, not just for recreation, family recreation, but to the whole western water system, for water storage, for clean hydropower.

The dam will hold about 27 million acre feet. The surface area is about 252 square miles; about 161,000 acres. This dam is so critical for our power. It provides power for millions of people. And needless to say, in the last couple of years we have seen a serious effort by the national Sierra Club to take down Lake Powell; to drain Lake Powell. And this is an example that points out the naivete, in my opinion, and I say that with due respect, but the naivete of an organization out of Washington, D.C. which comes out to the West to dictate what is in our best interest with western water.

There are a lot of physical characteristics, some of which I have mentioned about Colorado, that are important to remember when we talk about western water. First of all, the fact that all of the water in our State runs out of the State; the fact that we have an arid State. We do not get lots of moisture vear-round. Out here in the East, in an average year, there is pretty steady moisture. In the West, the primary moisture we get is in winter, and most of that moisture is in the Colorado mountains, the high Colorado Rockies. As I mentioned to my colleagues earlier, for the Colorado River, for example, 75 percent of that River Basin comes off that snow melt that we get in the high Colorado Rockies.

I mentioned earlier as well the different rivers that we have. That is why Colorado, and again we have the four major river basins, and why when we talk about water in the West, when we talk about water in this Nation, Colorado always surfaces. It is kind of a centerpoint.

Now, when this country was first formed, the Federal Government said, just because all the water in the West falls in one State does not mean that one State should own all of that water. We have to have interstate compacts. Let us create agreements between the States so that the States have a way for reasonable use of the water but they share the water as a country instead of keeping all the water as a State. And those interstate compacts, as most of my colleagues on the floor know, are critical for the use of this water.

So, for example, we do not go to war, and I can tell my colleagues that there have been plenty of so-called water wars, not the kind of wars where there are lots of deaths, although there have been deaths, but we had water wars in the past, and the interstate compacts have primarily brought peace to the region by fairly dividing up, or at least what was considered fair at the time, those water resources

□ 2230

There are a lot of interesting facts about these Federal river compacts. For example, the Colorado River Compact, believe it or not, the country of Mexico is entitled to parts of the Colorado River. In fact, the country of Mexico is entitled to a million and a half acre feet of the surplus water, a million and a half acre feet of the Colorado River.

How did that come about? A very interesting story. In World War II, the United States and Mexico were afraid, that is right, that the Japanese were going to invade Mexico; and Mexico came to the United States and said, would you enter our country and help protect us against the Japanese? And the United States also had a concern. We did not want the Japanese on our border coming through Mexico. So we agreed to enter the country and defend Mexico.

But Mexico understood our superior bargaining power, so they said, now look, if you are going to defend our country of Mexico, you really ought to give us some water for it. So the United States agreed to give about a million and a half acre feet of water every year to Mexico.

Now there is even a dispute where that water comes from. We have under the Colorado River Compact upper States and lower States, and even the dispute is how does that get split. It is supposed to be split evenly, 7.5 million acre feet with the lower States and 7.5 million acre feet with the upper States. But the lower States at times have argued, wait a minute, it comes out of surplus water and since there is no surplus water in the lower States, it all ought to come out of the upper States.

As you can see, the water arguments are intense throughout this Nation. But tonight the purpose of my comments on speaking on water, and as I summarize, my purpose here is that I hope my colleagues in the East understand that in States in the West like Colorado and Wyoming and Montana and California and Arizona and Utah and New Mexico, that these States are unique water States, States with unique water problems.

Colorado, as I said, is right at the apex. We have got the Continental Divide where the water on the east side of the divide flows to the Atlantic Ocean and on the west side of the Divide it flows to the Pacific Ocean.

We have 25 million people that depend on the Colorado River Basin for drinking water. These are issues that should not be downplayed. You know, on the East you do not feel the pain that we have in the West with our water. But I am asking that you understand the pain and I am asking that, before you agree with legislation and before you sign on the dotted line, for example to take down reservoirs like Lake Powell, that you have a clear understanding of the circumstances that are created when you alter the water system in the West.

In Colorado, we feel that water is for Colorado people; but we understand in Colorado that we have an obligation under the compacts to share that water. At the same time, we think there is a responsibility from neighboring States and from our fellow citizens in the eastern part of the country to understand what the unique needs are of the people of the State of Colorado.

Why multiple use and the protection of that water, whether we keep it there for minimum stream flow or whether we use it for agriculture uses that it has been well thought out over hundreds of years, 150 some years in Colorado, it has matured as we go through time

It has matured, the uses of this water. And it should not be easily dismissed by political movement coming out of some of my colleagues on this floor.

So, in summary, I know tonight primarily the discussion has been on water. To many of you perhaps it has been somewhat boring because water is not your primary focus in Congress. But I can tell you from those of us in the West, those of us in the Rocky Mountains, water is probably the number one issue when we talk about what can we do for future generations.

So I appreciate your understanding this evening. And, in conclusion, let me tell you some phrases that we take credit for coming out of the waters in the West.

The phrase "sold down the river." We do not want to be sold down the river in the West by those of us in the East. And we do not intend to sell you down the river in the East, either. We want a good cohesive partnership when it comes to water issues.

"Swallowed hook, line, and sinker." There are people that want you out there to swallow hook, line, and sinker that Lake Powell should be drained.

"Doesn't hold water." They want you to think storage does not hold water or there is a better way to do it.

"Not worth a tinker's damn." We think water in the West is an issue that is worth a tinker's damn.

that is worth a tinker's damn.

And finally, "fish in troubled water."
We in the western United States will be a fish in troubled water if we do not have interests and understanding by our colleagues and our citizens in the East. It is the United States and it does require understanding between these two graphically different areas of the country as to our water issues.

ILLEGAL NARCOTICS IN AMERICA

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MICA) is recognized for  $60\ \text{minutes}.$

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to come before the House again tonight to talk about the issue of illegal narcotics and its impact upon our society.

Tonight I am going to focus on a topic that I have discussed usually on Tuesday nights in the past before my colleagues and the American public, and that is the specific impact of illegal narcotics on our communities and on our population.

Tonight I will bring up again the chart that I did before, the little poster that I have had here on the floor before. And it, basically, says that drugs destroy lives, a large poster background. I think this background is fitting tonight to bring out again. It is a rather large poster. It talks about a rather large problem: drugs destroy lives

It is a simple message, simple poster. I have had it on the floor before. We have used it in my district to demonstrate that illegal narcotics are, in fact, wreaking havoc upon young people's lives and also all Americans' lives.

Tonight I want to specifically release some data that was given to our Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy, and Human Resources today, and that is a startling announcement and a startling revelation that, for the first time in the history of the United States of America, the drug-induced deaths exceed homicides across our land.

These are the figures that we have. Some 16,926 Americans lost their lives to drug-induced deaths in 1998. Murders in that year were 16,914, an incredible milestone in a problem that we are experiencing across the land from the East Coast to the West Coast to the Canadian border down to the Mexican border. And for the first time, again in the statistical compilation of the United States, drug-induced deaths exceed murders.

It is a sad milestone but, again, one reflected in so many communities affecting so many families and destroying so many lives.

This is indeed a sad turn of events for our Nation. And it is sad, too, that the administration under which this has occurred, the Clinton/Gore administration, has not paid attention to this problem and has tried to sweep the problem aside.

What really disturbs me as Chair of the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy, and Human Resources is the attempt in the last few weeks since I guess we are getting close to election to try to put a happy, smiling face on the problem of drug abuse and illegal narcotics misuse in this country.

There have been some staged events with the Secretary of HHS and other drug officials of this administration to try to come up with anything that puts a happy face on the problem that we face with illegal narcotics.

Unfortunately, this is probably their worst nightmare. We announced these findings today. It will be interesting to see what kind of a spin the media puts on this and also the administration.

The spin they have attempted to put on is that they are making progress. I think we have some facts tonight that dispute that.

The drug-induced mortality rates, and let me read from the National Vital Statistics Report, which is produced just within the last 60 days, talks about this total of death. It says, in 1998, again a total of 16,926 persons died of drug-induced causes in the United States. It says the category of drug-induced causes includes not only deaths from dependent and non-dependent use of drugs, but it also excludes accident, homicide, and other causes indirectly related to drug use.

So the figure that we have here, this 1998 figure, which is our last record, is actually a much smaller figure than if we take into account all of the drug-related deaths in this Nation.

Now, the drug czar, Mr. Barry McCaffrey, has testified before our subcommittee that if we take all the drugrelated deaths in the United States on an annual basis, we are approaching 52,000, equal to some of the worst casualty figures in any war in which we have been engaged.

This goes on to report that between 1997 and 1998, the age-adjusted death rate for drug-induced causes increased 5 percent from 5.6 deaths, now this is in 1 year, increased 5 percent from 5.6 deaths per 100,000 U.S. standard population to 5.9 percent, the highest it has been recorded since at least 1979.

The rate increased by 35 percent from 1983 to 1988, and that was back in the Reagan administration, the beginning of the Reagan administration, then declined 14 percent between 1988 and 1990, part of the Reagan administration and Bush administration; and it increased every year since 1990, beginning I guess the last part of the Bush administration. Between 1990 and 1998, the age-adjusted death rate for drug-induced causes increased by some startling 64 percent.

In 1998, the age-adjusted death rate for drug-induced causes for males was 2.3 times the rate for females and the rate for the black population was 1.4 times the rate for the white population.

And this also confirms other statistics that have been presented before our drug policy subcommittee that in fact those who are harmed the most by illegal narcotics are the minority population, including the blacks and Hispanics who are suffering right now not only from the problem of drug abuse.

But also, if we looked and examined the deaths here, we would see that the minority population is affected on a disproportionate basis.

In fact, during the Clinton administration, the number of drug-induced deaths has risen by approximately 45 percent in just 6 years. What is interesting, too, in these statistics that we have here is not the 1999 murder rate, and we do have the 1999 U.S. murder rate according to the FBI's uniform crime statistics. We do not have the drug deaths. The last compilation we have is 1998. But in 1999, we actually had a falling of the murder rate in the United States to 15.561. So we have a much greater number of drug-induced drug deaths; and we are certain that the figure we will get in 1999 will even exceed what we see in 1998. So by a dramatic increase even over this year's murders in the United States, we see drug-induced deaths surpassing that number.

Most people are concerned about weapons and destruction of life through guns and knives and other means of murder and mayhem. Now we have a statistic that should startle every Member of Congress and every American, particularly every parent and every community leader, that drug-related deaths have exceeded homicides homicides.

It is ironic that last week one of the communities most hard hit in the Nation by illegal narcotics is Baltimore, a beautiful historic city just to the north of our Nation's capital. Baltimore has had the misfortune of having in the past a very liberal mayor, a very antienforcement mayor, a very pro-narcotics and liberal utilization of illegal drugs lack of enforcement in that city over that mayor's tenure.

Fortunately, they have a new mayor, Mayor O'Mally. But Baltimore has been ravaged by illegal narcotics and again by a very tolerant policy. This headline was last week in the Baltimore Sun. It says "Overdose Deaths Exceed Slayings." It again cites that the number of deaths in that city by illegal narcotics and drug overdoses exceeds murders in the city. In fact, the State medical examiner's office reported that 324 people died of illegal drug overdose in Baltimore last year, passing the total of 309 homicides. In 1998 there were 290 overdose victims and 313 homicides. I hope later on to spend a little bit more time talking about the policy in Baltimore that turned into a disaster. And certainly this community is facing now the same thing that we see on a national level. This is an urban setting. Baltimore is an urban community. I come from a suburban area, the area just north of Orlando, Florida, a very family-oriented community and region. We have had, and I have held up here headlines from 2 years ago that the number of drug overdose deaths exceed homicides in central Florida, also. So we have suburban areas that are well-to-do: we have urban areas such as Baltimore that now see the same thing happening. We see rural areas impacted by illegal narcotics. We see every age bracket impacted by illegal narcotics.

Unfortunately today we announce that for the entire Nation, drug-in-duced deaths have exceeded murders across our land.

If I may, I would like to also focus on this chart that shows from the beginning of the Clinton-Gore administration, some 11,000 drug-induced deaths, up to 16,926, just shy of 17,000. Again, that represents a 45 percent increase under this administration's watch. Now I see why they want to talk about prescription drugs now. I see why they like to change the subject. Now I see why they like to report any glimpse of favorable statistics relating to drug abuse and illegal narcotics use, because this in fact is one of the most dismal figures and dismal legacies by any administration, Republican, Democrat or in any Nation. It is a very sad milestone for this country.

What really disturbs me, too, is the misuse of some of the data that has been released recently. Our Congress has required the administration under Public Law 105-277 to establish measurable goals in the funds and programs that we assign for combating illegal narcotics, particularly in a multibillion-dollar drug education and prevention program. We ask the drug czar and the administration to report back to the Congress on their efforts to curtail illegal narcotics on a performance basis that is measurable so we know that we are putting money in and we are getting results out.

One of the objectives of the report that has come to us was that we would reach an 80 percent level of our 12th graders, or young people, by the year 2002 perceiving drug use as harmful. That was the goal that we reach. Unfortunately, in some of the statistics that have been released lately to put a happy face on the drug abuse and misuse situation in our country, I have found the administration is changing baselines. For example, in 1996, 59.9 percent of the 12th graders perceived drug use as harmful. Even after we have run the media campaign, we find that in 1998, it dropped to 58.5 percent of the 12th graders perceived drug use as harmful. In 1999, they have even backslided more according to the information that we have obtained, and we are down to some 57.4 percent of the 12th graders now perceive drug use as harmful. The goal, remember, was to achieve 80 percent by 2002. So it is rather scary that they would take a new base year, 1998, rather than 1996, and now claim a 1-year decline, a modest decline and change from assessing 12th graders to eighth graders because they did find that 73.3 percent of eighth graders saw marijuana use as harmful. By using the 73.3 percent of eighth graders, they now only fall somewhere around 7 percent from reaching their 80 percent goal.

These are some of the statistics touted by the administration, but a clever change in the group that was surveyed and judged and also changing the baseline. But the facts remain pretty clear that in fact we have an epidemic of illegal narcotics use among almost every age group.

According to a January 26, 2000, white paper which was published by the National Center on Addiction and Substance abuse, which is also known as CASA, eighth graders in rural America, if we take out those eighth graders in rural America, 83 percent are likelier than eighth graders in urban centers to use crack cocaine; 50 percent are likelier than eighth graders in urban centers to use cocaine; and 34 percent likelier than eighth graders in urban centers to smoke marijuana. And 104 percent likelier than eighth graders in urban centers to use amphetamines including methamphetamines. If we start looking at some of the subsections of eighth graders, and in this case this study looked at rural eighth graders, we see a horrible trend in illegal narcotics use; and we are talking about crack cocaine and methamphetamines which have caused a fremendous amount of damage, death and destruction and I am sure in this figure of death we would even find those young people.

We find another report from May of this year that the number of heroin users in the United States has increased from 500,000 in 1996 to 980,000 in 1999. Again, this is not part of the administration's report to the American people. Nor would they want to talk about this statistic or this legacy, especially so close to the election. The rate of first use by children age 12 to 17 increased from less than 1 in 1,000 in the 1980s to 2.7 in 1,000 in 1996. This is not a statistic that we heard touted by the Secretary of HHS or our drug offi-

First-time heroin users are getting younger, another legacy of this administration, from an average of 26 years old in 1991, just before they took control of the administration, to an average of 17 years. That means the first-time heroin user in 1991 was 26 years of age. They have managed to bring that down to 17 years of age by 1997, not a pretty statistic; but we see why drug deaths are dramatically increasing in the United States.

According to a very recent Associated Press article, June 11 of this year, a survey conducted by the national drug control policy office itself said that about 80,000 12- to 17-year-olds and 303,000 18- to 25-year-olds admitted using heroin in 1998. According to DEA, our Drug Enforcement Administration, in 1990 the average age again of someone trying heroin was 26.5. We said in 1992 27 years of age, and again this administration managed to turn it around to an average of age 17.

A study conducted by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention for 15,349 students grade nine through 12 revealed that in 1991, again just before this administration won office in 1992, 14 percent of students surveyed said they used marijuana. That number increased to 26.7 percent in 1999. Students reporting that they tried marijuana at least once increased from 31.3 percent in 1991 to 47.2 percent in 1999.

Unfortunately, what we see during the past 7 years has been an increase in drug use and abuse in almost every category. We have some statistics that do not get publicized. For example, 4 percent, or 595,640 students, enrolled in grades nine through 12 have used cocaine according to the most recent study in the past month.

□ 2300

That is up dramatically over again the beginning of this administration. Methamphetamines, which were not even on the charts at the beginning of this administration, we have 99.1 percent or 1,355,018 students enrolled in grades 9 through 12 have now used methamphetamine, almost 10 percent of the students enrolled in grades 9 through 12.

If you want to worry about drugs and prescription drugs for elderly, and that is a serious concern that we must address, and we must make certain that those who are elderly and infirm or in need have prescription drugs, that is an important topic. But this topic that I present tonight is extremely important, particularly to our young people, when again we have a startling statistics like this.

Mr. Speaker, almost 10 percent of our young people have tried methamphetamines, and we have again 2.4 percent of our students enrolled in grades 9 through 12 have used heroin. Heroin, which we find now in a more deadly and potent form than we ever have, and I have cited the increases in marijuana use, which have nearly doubled in the terms of this administration. 2.8 percent of the students enrolled in grade 9 through 12 have injected illegal drugs, that is 268,038 students, again, in our most recent report.

These are not statistics again that you will hear from the administration, and the media unfortunately does not want to cover this problem. They, the media, have a more liberal bent, and they have, along with the administration, been guilty of sweeping this problem under the table.

One of the problems that we have, how did we get ourselves into a situation with these statistics, with drugs, drug-induced deaths now exceeding homicides in the United States. I want to say it was not easy. It took the Clinton administration almost 7 years to dismantle and systematically take piece by piece apart what was a very effective war on drugs.

Mr. Speaker, in fact, if we look at a period from 1985 to 1992, we saw over a 40 percent decrease in drug use in this country. The Clinton-Gore administration has failed to make the drug war a top national priority. Now, how can a President of the United States make drug enforcement, drug prevention, drug education, drug interdiction or a war on drug real when only eight times in 7 years, just prior to our work this year on the Colombian package, did the President mention the war on the drugs in his public addresses.

As a result, we have witnessed an explosion in drug use and abuse. We have witnessed an incredible amount of production of coca, the base for cocaine and opium poppy, the base for heroin, in Colombia. And I have cited in past special order presentations how this administration systematically first stopped in 1994 information sharing to the chagrin of even the Democrats, who protested their move, who stopped providing surveillance information that could be used in shoot down by other countries trying to stop drugs within other countries borders, not U.S. forces, but other countries which saw a resurgence in drugs leaving the source countries.

We saw again a policy where aid and assistance was blocked for some 3 years by a misapplication of our drug certification law, and we saw the stopping of aid even appropriated and designated by the Congress to get to Colombia that did not get to Colombia, and then finally when some few helicopters that we asked 3 years and 4 years for to get there to get to the illegal narcotics to go after the traffickers in the mountain terrain. When they finally arrived, it was almost in a ludicrous situation and a condition that they arrived without proper armoring which led us to require this Congress to pass a $1.3 billion package in emergency funding just recently. And we saw the President of the United States attempt to grandstand and also blur the issue of the tragedy that he had helped create in Colombia through very specific missteps and policy.

Despite that billion dollars in aid, we still see a tide of illegal narcotics coming into this country, that is because our Panama forward surveillance post was closed down, the administration bungled the negotiation of keeping our antinarcotics surveillance base in Panama, and it may be some 2 years before we get the surveillance capability, the forward-operating capability, the interdiction capability. That is why we have an incredible supply of drugs coming in and they are killing our young people.

Why are they coming in? Again, because of some direct and inappropriate missteps by this administration to stop drugs cost effectively at their source and also stop them by taking the military out of the surveillance business. And we know that this administration from 1992 to 1999, according to this report provided to me as chair of the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy and Human Resources, this administration cut antinarcotics flights, they declined from some 46,264 to 14,770 or some 68 percent from fiscal year 1992 to 1999. That is why we have a flood of illegal narcotics, heroin and other drugs in our streets and in our communities.

This report further details, again prepared by the General Accounting Office, that the administration cut ship days devoted to supporting interdiction of suspected maritime illegal drug shipments, which declined 62 percent from 1992 through 1999. So if you wonder why we have illegal narcotics in incredible quantities coming in to our country, here in fact is the evidence.

When you close down a real war on drugs, the result is death in our streets and now drug-induced deaths have exceeded homicides in our land for the first time.

Mr. Speaker, the other problem that we have and many young people do not realize, and even adults who are using the narcotics that are coming in, for example, the heroin that is on the streets today, the purity levels are incredibly high.

In the 1970s and 1980s, there were 3 percent and 4 percent, 5 percent purity levels in the heroin that was on the streets. Today it is not uncommon to find 70 percent or 80 percent pure heroin when mixed with other drugs or alcohol is resulting in the deaths druginduced deaths, that we have seen that again have now skyrocketed above murders in the United States. Even though the Republican-led Congress has instituted a $1 billion antidrug media campaign, we still see us losing the war on drugs in the United States for several reasons.

First of all, we have not had a war on drugs since 1993. The Clinton administration, one of its first steps was to dismantle the drug czar's office and slash the positions from some 120 down to several dozen. We have helped build that back up and with the aid of a new drug czar, Barry McCaffrey, we have made some progress in putting Humpty Dumpty back together again.

The interdiction and source country programs are both cut by some nearly 50 percent, and that was a further blow to any effective war on the drugs. And even with the institution of a $1 billion media campaign matched by a billion dollars and donated, we are still far away from winning or recreating a real war on drugs. Unfortunately, we found that in our subcommittee, the reports that we are getting even dismay us more. Heroin users, as I said, are even younger than ever.

We are finding also that emergency room reports and incidents of drug overdose in our hospitals and treatment centers are also dramatically on the increase.

Mr. Speaker, I am told by some local officials that the only reason that we do not have even higher death rates by drug-induced deaths is that, in fact, we have gotten a little bit better at the emergency treatment, but emergency room doctors reported in 1997 and 1998 that heroin is involved in four to six visits out of every 100,000 by use, 12 to 17 up from 1 in 100,000 in 1990. For young adults, from 18 to 25, 41 emergency room visits in every 100,000 involved heroin up from 19 in 1991. Among women, in general, the numbers have doubled in a decade. Again, more troubling information that comes before our subcommittee.

Mr. Speaker, we also have reports that dismay me not only about illegal narcotics but about other types of addictive habits, and we have heard some talk from this administration about cutting down tobacco use. Unfortunately, from the President, from the Executive Offices of the Presidency, we find that they may talk about tobacco, but they have their own way of sending the wrong message.

When you see the President of the United States smoking a cigar and talking about cutting down on tobacco use, it has obviously sent a dual message to our young people. Some of the reports that again my subcommittee have received that cigar smoking and the numbers of cigar smokers and the amount of cigar use is on a dramatic increase.

□ 2315

This report that our subcommittee received, and this was prepared by a number of doctors and a medical report, said the trends in cigar smoking between the years 1993 and 1997, the consumption of all types of cigars in the United States increased by 46.4 percent, reversing a steady decline of 66 percent in cigar consumption from 1964 to 1993.

Between 1993 and 1997, consumption of large cigars increased some 69.4 percent. Unfortunately, this is also affecting our college population and a survey of some 14,000 college students done in 1999, last year, found that 46 percent had either smoked cigarettes, cigars or used smokeless tobacco in the previous year.

Cigar consumption increased by 50 percent between 1993 and 1998, reversing a 30-year decline. Of course, I take the legacy of having more drug-induced deaths much more seriously than I do the cigar smoking report, but it just shows that when you set a bad example a bad example is followed by our young people, by our college students and by our general population.

One of the problems we have with this whole illegal narcotics issue is lack of national leadership on the issue. When you do not talk about it, when you destroy programs that were built up to deal with it, or you misdirect resources appropriated by the Congress to resolve the problem, we see the results, and they are not very pretty.

One of the most serious problems that we face today in the area of illegal narcotics is a new drug that is on the scene in large quantities. Some of these drugs are referred to as designer drugs or club drugs. In particular, I want to talk a few minutes about ecstacy. We have a July 2000 Joint Assessment of MDMA Trafficking Trends, that is ecstacy trafficking trends, which is produced by the National Drug Intelligence Center, in cooperation with the Department of Justice Drug Enforcement Administration and the U.S. Customs Service. This assessment talks about trends in ecstacy. Sometimes our statistic-counting does not even keep up with what is happening in the real world.

Some of that was evidenced today in the hearing that we conducted when we announced that for the first time in the history of our Nation that drug-induced deaths, drug-related deaths, exceeded homicides in our country. We talked to the statistic-gatherers and sometimes their statistics do not keep up with what is happening on the streets. That is unfortunate. But we found with this recent report, through, again DEA, Customs, Department of Justice, a trend with ecstacy that is startling. Nearly 8 million ecstacy pills have been seized by the U.S. Customs Service and the Drug Enforcement Administration from January to July 2000. That is 20 times the numbers seized in all of 1998.

An article in USA Today, just a short time ago, stated that U.S. Customs seizures of ecstacy have risen some 700 percent in the past 3 years from some 381,000 tablets in 1997 to more than 3.5 million in 1999. One of the things that we have learned about ecstacy is most of the ecstacy coming into the United States is produced at a very high profit, sometimes just a few pennies to produce this ecstacy and sometimes the ecstacy tablet sells for somewhere between $20 and $45 a tablet in the urban and rural areas of America, so there is high profit in this. It is a new drug of choice. It is a drug that young people are told is harmless, and it is a drug that is very common in some of the raves and youth dance clubs around the country. ĎEA intelligence reports, our drug administration intelligence reports, find that ecstacy dealers in Europe have joined with Israeli organized crime groups, have also found that more than 80 percent of the ecstacy coming into the United States is manufactured in the Netherlands. I am pleased to report that our U.S. Customs Service is going to reopen our operation in the Netherlands, and we will have agents stationed there. We will also increase our resources there to go after some of these traffickers, and I appreciate the cooperation of DEA and Customs in that effort. When we know where illegal narcotics are coming from, we can apply the resources to go after people who are delivering death and destruction to our communities.

Customs officials at Kennedy Airport in New York seized over 1 million ecstacy pills in just the first nine months of 1999. Ecstacy was first identified as a street drug in 1972, but we have never seen anything like the amount of ecstacy that has been seized. Just this year, since January 1, the U.S. Customs Service reported to our subcommittee that it seized over 219,000 ecstacy tablets just in Florida, my home State, and they had a street value of almost $7 million.

In May of 2000, U.S. Customs officials seized 490,000 ecstacy tablets, the largest single amount seized in the United States to that date, from a courier at the San Francisco Airport. Right now the Drug Enforcement Agency estimates that over 90 percent of all ecstacy smuggled into the United States is in capsule or pill form and 10 percent is in powder form.

MDMA, again ecstacy, that threat is expected to approach the methamphet-amine threat that we now see in this country by the year 2002 or the year 2003. The National Household Survey on Drug Abuse shows an increase in lifetime use of ecstacy, MDMA, by almost every age group in the country, especially the 18 to 25 age group whose use increased from 3.1 percent in 1994 to 5 percent in 1998.

I would just like to say a few more things about ecstacy. We received many more reports of bad ecstacy and ecstacy mixed with other drugs that is having fatal results across the land. This is a copy of the Boston paper, the Boston Globe from last week. The headline on the local section said Ecstacy Additives Trouble Activists. It says, law enforcement authorities and antidrug activists are warning that new and dangerous additives are being mixed into one of the most popular drugs sold and used in the city's nightclubs. Law enforcement officials say many makers of ecstacy eager to cut costs and meet demand for the euphoria-inducing drug among high school and college students are lacing the pills with cheaper and more dangerous substances. Of particular concern, authorities said, is the use of PMA, a chemical recently blamed for the death of an 18-year-old woman in Illinois.

Our Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy and Human Resources is receiving more and more of these reports of bad drugs. They are bad in the first place but they have these deadly poison additives to them, and young people are dying from them.

We had testimony yesterday in Atlanta, in a field hearing, from the father of a young girl who had ingested one of the designer drugs, and she died a most horrible death. Some two years she was on a life support system, convulsing. Her body temperature reached 107. At several points her heart rate had fallen to 25 and up to 170, literally destroying her body until she finally died; two years of suffering through a drug that she had taken most innocently.

Today we held a hearing as we announced again the news that drug-induced deaths in 1998 exceeded homicides and murders in this country. We brought from Florida a couple whose 15-year-old son Michael had ingested designer drugs and died, one of the 16,926 who died in 1998. Unfortunately, this puts a very human face on a problem which we have outlined tonight, and which, again, only shows a part of the problem.

From time to time, I like to cite some of the happenings around the country. I just cited an article about what is happening with ecstacy in Boston and this article appeared recently on August 18 in the L.A. Times, and it says, Teen Executed Over Drugs. A 15-year-old boy allegedly kidnapped from his San Fernando Valley neighborhood was shot execution-style as he lay bound and gagged in a shallow grave because his older half brother had not paid a $36,000 marijuana debt to a drug dealer, authorities said.

Now, when we compile the year 2000 figures, this death will not appear there because it is not drug-induced and it does not meet the qualifications. It will be in the 50,000 drug-related deaths cited by our drug czar, unfortunately.

The area that I come from which is, again, a very peaceful, family-oriented part of our Nation, central Florida, continues to be racked by illegal narcotics. While I was home, I had this clipping that I saved dated, again, August 29, where a young life was lost; Drugs Take Life is the headline; friend charged. Sherry Rich, 19, died early Sunday morning of an apparent overdose of ecstacy laced with heroin in an apartment complex in my area.

This is one, September 2, a couple of days later, Apparent ODs At Club Kills Two. Two men died and another was hospitalized from apparent drug overdoses after they visited an Orange County bottle club. This report said they purchased marijuana and some sort of pills, according to the Orange County sheriff's deputy.

□ 2300

While we hear crack cocaine is now down, even my area continues to be inundated. A recent article says Central Florida's crack cocaine problem is no longer a front-burner issue; it has been replaced in importance by heroin's comeback and the surge of new designer drugs. However, this says that crack continues to be a problem along with these other drugs. That is referring to my area of representation, which is Central Florida, again plagued.

Mr. Speaker, I received a letter from Mel Martinez, the chairman of Orange County, our central legislative body in Orange County, Florida, and he writes to me just a few days ago, "Congressman MICA: Eighty heroin overdose deaths have occurred in the 7-county Central Florida high-intensity drug traffic area in 1999 alone. The Florida Department of Law Enforcement recently released a report prepared by the Medical Examiner's Office indicating 48 heroin overdose deaths occurred in Miami last year, and 42 occurred in Orlando."

Almost every State, every community, every locale, every region of this Nation is facing the same thing.

Tonight we released the statistics that again state that U.S. drug deaths from drug-induced deaths in 1998 exceeded murder for the first time. Again, if we use 1999 murder figures, we are down in the 15,000 range. These continue to drop, while drug deaths continue to rise.

The headlines spell out the story, the threat of Ecstacy reaching cocaine and heroin proportions, and tonight we have outlined some of what is going on with Ecstacy.

Mr. Speaker, I do want to take a moment for my colleagues and others who may be listening to show what Ecstacy does to the brain. Many young people think it is a harmless drug. Dr. Allen Leschner of the National Institute of Drug Abuse presented a different grasp, but this just shows what happens to the brain. This is the normal brain; this is a brain that has absorbed or been affected by the use of Ecstacy. Basically, it induces a Parkinson's-type affect on the brain, destroying the brain cells, not allowing regeneration of the brain cells.

Not only do we have that, but Ecstacy that is attractively packaged in with all kinds of designer labels, which the U.S. Customs Service provided us, even fancy symbols that are put on of various designer clothing and the cars and things to induce young people to try these drugs. But this is the fancy packaging. These are the results. If we do not think the results are bad enough, again, to destroy the brain, look at the deaths, and many of these. I just read one from my local community, they used Ecstacy and other drugs or alcohol with these drugs, and also, the drug dealers are now cutting Ecstacy across the land with all types of deadly chemicals.

So this is what we end up with, a horrible situation and the destruction of life and limb and also brain. Ecstacy again, reaching cocaine and heroin proportions, and high schoolers report more drug use from June 9, 2000.

Again, the administration would rather probably talk about prescription drugs, and I do not want to demean in any way the importance of that, particularly for our elderly or those who have problems paying for legal narcotics, and I am talking tonight about illegal narcotics. But, in fact, we have a situation that has basically spun out of control. In spite of our good efforts over the past 3 or 4 years by the new majority, we have somehow missed the mark with the administration of the resources that have been provided to this administration. It is sad, again tonight, as I conclude, to report that for the first time in the history of our country, we have deaths by drug-induced means, drug-related deaths exceeding murder across our land.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the patience of the staff who have remained tonight. This is an important topic and should be on the minds of Members of Congress, it should be on our agenda, and it should be important to every American that not another American is lost to illegal narcotics in this country.
